"Well, really, that is beyond me just at present. It was put there by order of the committee, of which I am only an insignificant member, and—"

"Will you kindly inform me by what right the committee ordered it put upon our barn without our consent?" He was civil and self-possessed as he replied:

"Why, it was rather cheeky, wasn't it? But I presume they took your consent for granted. Anyway, if you don't mind, I'd like to have it remain there till to-morrow, when I can arrange with the committee. I'm awfully sorry if you object." He smiled across the fence at her, with frank, handsome eyes. Jo was mollified and recognized the fact with horror. In an effort to be as dignified as she felt she ought to be, she went to the other extreme.

"I most certainly do object, and furthermore it will not be necessary for you to see the 'committee.' I am perfectly able to take the sign down myself." And with a haughty toss of her bare head she went to the ladder. She was struggling with it and had half-dragged it toward the sign, when it was seized with quiet strength.

"Allow me—if I am not mistaken—this is my ladder—"

"And your barn, too, I suppose you were going to add—" She stood panting with childish rage. "The rent has not been paid, I know, but it will be as soon as possible. In the meantime, pray be generous enough to spare us further insolence."

There was silence when he carried the ladder to the fence, threw it over, and himself climbed to the other side. There, he turned a face white with suppressed feeling. "I shall not reply, for fear of telling you some plain truths as to your display of temper. I shall see about the sign to-morrow. In the meantime permit me to be equally firm in my determination that it must remain there for the present." Then swinging the ladder over his shoulder, he went off rapidly down the railroad. Jo stared stupidly after him, then she turned to the sign.

"There you are now, but not for long. We'll see." The white letters mocked her with a vacant grimace, and "Come One, Come All" danced before her eyes as she made her way slowly back to the house. They shone along every fence, they adorned the well curb, where she stopped for a drink of water. At the pig sty she paused and said in response to friendly grunts: "You would have better manners, wouldn't you, piggy-wig?"

At supper her mother said: "Well, Jo, what did you do about the sign?"

"Nothing," Matilda echoed, teasingly. "Nothing. Of course not. Jo's excitements usually end in smoke," then added: "However, there is nothing to do but to let the sign stand. It is not in our way."

But Jo's anger blazed. "Perhaps not, but it is the principle I object to. We are in old Taylor's debt, and his son knows it, and takes advantage of us. He thinks under the circumstances we will submit to anything." There was defiance in her eye and she buttered her toast with a vicious stab.

"I think you do the young man injustice," her mother argued, mildly; "he has always been very polite and upon the last occasion, when I called to ask for time in the payment of the rent, he—he acted most obliging, so that the interview was not so unpleasant as I feared." But the quiver of the sad lips spoiled the softening words and Jo's heart was harder than ever, her resolve strengthened.

It was dusk and the stars dim points of light in a somber sky when Jo's tall, thin figure emerged from the barn. After her trailed a long, rickety ladder. She paused in her effort to raise it. Somebody was singing a popular air. The loud but uncertain tones came from the railroad track. Going to the fence, she peered over, and in the half-light saw a man walking the ties, his step reeling and slow. Jo recognized a hired man from the Taylor place, whom she had often seen the worse for liquor.

Still singing, he came nearer. Then he tried to walk the rails, chuckling foolishly as he balanced himself for a second, then fell, full length across the track, and lay quite still. Jo, who had bent low cautiously, hoping he would pass without seeing her, rose now, with a quick cry of alarm. Climbing to the topmost rail she watched him intently, while he made no sign, but lay like a log. Without hesitation, she ran to him. Just then she heard a distant rumble and the shriek of a whistle. The train! With desperate strength she shook the prostrate figure. "Get up! the train is coming! Oh, get up! Quick!" But there was no movement in response. "Wake up, for heaven's sake." Then down upon her knees, with all her strength, she tried to drag the limp, unconscious man from the ties. She raised his head and her hand was wet. The horrible dampness sickened her; the croak of the frogs in the meadow near was maddening; the sound of the train grew more distinct, and still the heavy, clumsy body lay where it had fallen, now half upright in her arms. She rose, staggering under the burden, tripped over the ties, and stumbled over the steep bank. Down they sank into a mass of wild clover bloom that enveloped them in its cloying fragrance.

A frightful shriek and glare, a deafening rumble just over her head, then all was silence. She was alone, with the night and the stars; alone in worse than solitude. She rested the limp head in her lap; it felt wet, and she dared not look for fear of what she might see, and, seeing, faint at sight of. Her voice, raised in a cry for help, was caught by the smothering clover and sent back to her in mocking whispers. Then came what seemed a distant echo:

"Hello! Where are you?"

"Here."

"Where?" impatiently.

"Down here. Help!" And the bending blooms were brushed aside as a tall, dark shadow obscured her patch of sky.

"Why, Miss Josephine, what has happened? Are you—Good heavens!" For he saw she was not alone. Tenderly, without a word, he carried the still lifeless figure to an open spot, then returned and helped her to rise. "Tell me all about it," he said, gently, wiping the blood from her dress with his handkerchief.

Dazed and tearful, Jo explained. "I saw him coming along the track. He seemed to be—to be tipsy, and, well, he fell. Then I heard the train and dragged him out of its way. That's all." And she smiled, and blushed a little in the darkness at the pressure of her hand which accompanied his words: "Brave girl!"

Then both bent over the man, who slowly opened his eyes. "He is not dead," she breathed, gratefully, and he said: "No; he will soon be all right. He was unconscious from the blow; apparently struck his head as he fell. But it is not serious. Will you watch by him just a moment while I summon aid?" He returned shortly with two servants, who bore the wounded man away, leaving Jo and the hated son of the landlord together.

"With your permission I will see you to your house; but, first, may I finish what I had begun when I heard your cry for help?"

He went to the barn, where a second ladder—his ladder—rested near the one she had brought. Placing it in position, he mounted, and she ran to the foot.

"What are you going to do?"

"Remove the sign. I have reconsidered my determination." And he smiled down into her eyes.

"And so have I reconsidered mine. Come down, or I'll shake you off," and still pale, but laughing gleefully, she grasped the ladder by both sides and shook it a trifle. "Come down and don't bother about that old sign."

Again on terra firma, he placed his ladder so that it leaned upon hers affectionately, and together they went towards the house.

"By what good fortune did you happen to be so near when I was in trouble?" she asked, looking up at him as he made a pathway for her through the inquisitive corn.

"I came to take down the sign. And you?" A smile and quick blush. "So did I," she said.—Chicago Daily News.

A Splendid Chance For You.

The Farmers' (Twice-a-Week) Tribune, of Minneapolis, is making an exceptionally liberal offer to young people generally, particularly persons who have never tried soliciting newspaper subscriptions, to aid them in getting 100,000 subscribers by Jan. 1, 1900. It is probably the most liberal proposition ever made by any newspaper in America, and it will interest many who do not ordinarily care to engage in getting subscription.

The Farmers' Tribune is the daily Minneapolis Tribune and the Evening Tribune "boiled down" for the use of people who do not have time to read a daily paper. It comes to the home twice every week, filled with the best news of the world and the Northwest, the best serial and short stories, political gossip and market reports—all the best that money will buy.

Almost everybody can get a few newspaper subscribers from among his friends and acquaintances, and with such a generous offer as made by the Farmer's Tribune it is quite worth one's while to make the effort.

Send a postal card to the Farmers' Tribune for their subscription circular and sample paper.

A prompt denial is made by the sultan of Turkey of the report that he has been disciplining a squad of his wives by drowning. He is indignant at the charge of such a wanton waste of water.

If the mere kissing of a pretty girl is punished in Connecticut by 15 days' imprisonment what would be the Connecticut idea of justice in the case of a man who pleads guilty of having 42 wives?

The United States sent abroad in 1898 5,000,000 tons of corn, 4,000,000 tons of wheat, 2,000,000 tons of cotton, 1,700,000 tons of flour and meal and other products, bringing the total shipments up to 30,000,000 tons.

Harry Walters, of New York, can give good evidence that the wheels of justice never stop. He escaped from Sing Sing prison 29 years ago, but was captured the other day and taken back to serve the unexpired 38 months of his term.

Walter L. Farnsworth, of Chicago, who claims the same matrimonial rights as the sultan of Sulu, forgets that he neglected to negotiate a treaty with this government, and that he acquired the wives where polygamy isn't recognized.

The latest thing in New York city is electricity furnished in capsules. These little capsules, which can be carried around in the vest pocket, each contain enough power to burn an electric light all night. It would be interesting to know just what the inventors will spring on us next.

The special expert sent abroad by the agricultural department in search of new seeds, grains and plants, has brought back among other things an "everbearing strawberry." This wonderful strawberry, which comes from France, is said to produce fruit for months on the same plants, and a small patch will keep a family supplied for many, many weeks.

The South African republic is not so small as most people think. Its area is about 120,000 square miles, and it is larger than New York state and the whole of New England combined, and considerably more than half as large as either France or Germany. The Orange Free State is not so large, but together the two sister republics form a territory about the size of Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois combined.

A strange wedding was solemnized in Cleveland, O. William Moore, a blind peddler of notions, and Miss Elizabeth Brown, also a peddler and also blind, were married. The ceremony was performed by a blind man, Justice Palmer, the wedding march was played by an orchestra composed of blind men, and all of the invited guests were blind. Many a person is blind when he or she weds, but not in just this way.

It is strange how much a person may go through and come out uninjured, and how little it sometimes takes to kill. While a train was running 40 miles an hour near Waseca, Minn., a deranged woman who was being taken to an asylum jumped through the car window and was unhurt. In the same exchange we notice a dispatch telling of the death of a physician in a Connecticut town, resulting from a scratch by a surgeon's saw. Fate issues some strange decrees.

The movement for the Ohio centennial exposition in 1902 has more historic fitness than most of the expositions of recent years. The admission of Ohio to the union in 1802 was an epochal year and the beginning of a procession of new states which resulted in great national expansion. As the first of the states formerly called western states to celebrate a centennial, Ohio's exposition should interest the whole country, and especially those states which were part of the original northwestern territory.

The legal boundary in Alaska extends beyond Chilkat and White passes, and ten or fifteen miles north of Klukwan. The temporary boundary agreed upon accepts the highest points in Chilkat pass and White pass as the dividing line and runs down closer to Klukwan. It retains all the tidewater approaches and all of the Porcupine district recently occupied by American miners. It gives no countenance whatever to the claim that Taiya, Skaguay, Klukwan and Pyramid Harbor were all in Canadian territory.

Secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, has an idea that the rubber tree can be transplanted to American soil and grown to advantage and profit. He notes that in South America and other countries where the rubber tree flourishes it grows from the sea level to elevations of several thousand feet. This circumstance set him to thinking, and the result is a resolution on his part to send scientists to every country where rubber trees grow to ascertain whether the tree cannot be introduced into our own territory.

Probably few persons are aware of the extent to which the stock of large corporations is distributed in small holdings. Of 6,526 stockholders in the Illinois Central Railroad company barely one-seventh of them own over 100 shares apiece. Of 12,000 stockholders in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad 3,000 are women. The Pennsylvania railroad has the largest number of stockholders of any corporation in the United States, 30,000, and 40 per cent. of this number are women. The Western Union Telegraph company has 15,433 stockholders.

If there is any one thing which should be inculcated in the coming generation of American children it is the love of justice, and manifestly it is not just to distort facts in literature or history, even in a cause supposed to be good. It will not hurt the child to understand that great men of history had their faults, and that some men who had a bad influence were honest in their beliefs and erred only through ignorance of the truth. The child will then grow up determined to understand the facts in a case before giving judgment—and thus avoid hasty action.

HOW THEY VOTED.

Ohio Republicans Elect Nash Governor by 30,000 Plurality.

Kentucky Turns Down Both Democratic Candidates.

Nebraska Remains Loyal to Bryan and Democracy.

OHIO.

Republicans Victorious by a Plurality of from 30,000 to 50,000.

Columbus, Nov. 8.—At 12:30 the republicans claimed that their plurality would exceed 50,000, with over 100,000 for Jones out of a total of less than 900,000. The republican majority in the legislature is larger than usual, but no senator is to be elected.

Judge Nash was serenaded after midnight at the Neil House. To an enthusiastic crowd he made a brief speech upon being introduced by Harry M. Daugherty, his rival for the nomination. Judge Nash said that the Ohio result was a message to President McKinley that his home state endorsed his administration and presaged McKinley's renomination and re-election in 1900.

The republicans made their largest gains at the homes of Judge Nash, Senator Hanna and Chairman Dick. The democrats made their largest gains at the home of Mr. McLean.

KENTUCKY.

The Republican Candidate for Governor Elected by Good Majority.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—By the combined efforts of the republicans and anti-Goebelites, Attorney General W. S. Taylor (rep.) has been elected governor of Kentucky by a majority estimated at 15,000 over Goebel. Returns received up to midnight also indicate the election of the entire republican ticket while the complexion of the legislature is in doubt.

Comparatively little disorder prevails and aside from several arrests for alleged violations of election laws the election was characterized by a remarkable degree of quiet.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Fusion Ticket Turned Down by a Majority of about 8,000.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 8.—The reports that have come in show heavy republican gains in all the precincts heard from. The latest reports would indicate a republican majority of about 8,000, although Fuller, on whom the fusionists concentrated their efforts, is running slightly behind, but not enough to place him in danger. Leading populists admit defeat. They had hoped to carry through Bennett, but the indifference of voters leave them behind on all their candidates.

MARYLAND.

Smith, the Democratic Candidate for Governor, is Elected.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Incomplete returns from this city and meager reports from the state indicate that the republicans of Maryland have been overwhelmingly defeated and that John Walter Smith, the democratic candidate, has been elected by a majority variously estimated at from 10,000 to 15,000. The legislature is undoubtedly democratic.

IOWA.

Republican Governor Elected by a Plurality of 65,000.

Des Moines, Nov. 8. The republicans claim Shaw's election by 65,000, and the democrats concede 40,000. The indications are that the republican vote will show a decrease of six per cent from two years ago, and that the democratic total vote will show a loss of about 10 per cent. The probabilities are that there will be 80 republican members of the house and 35 republican members of the senate, a net republican gain of 10.

NEW YORK.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Returns from the state and city indicate that the republicans will have about the same majority in the next assembly as in the last, the democratic gains in this city being offset by losses in the smaller counties. In the assembly districts which have reported, including this city, 91 republicans and 59 democrats were elected.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—The republicans carried Massachusetts yesterday by 65,000 votes, electing W. Murray Crane governor. The entire republican state ticket was elected by practically the same plurality as the head of the ticket, and the legislature of 1900 will probably be republican by the usual large majority, there being few changes in either branch.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Estimates from all the counties of the state indicate Barnett's (rep.) plurality over Creasy (dem.) to be 138,483. In the same counties the estimates were necessarily based on meager information and complete returns may change the figures here given.

NEBRASKA.

She Stands by Bryan and Elects Holcomb Judge.

Lincoln, Nov. 8.—It is evident to both parties that Nebraska has repledged her allegiance to the fusion standard. While all republicans are not yet willing to admit defeat, the early figures point that way. There has been a steady falling off of the vote of both parties, but while the fusionist have suffered but little, the republican loss has not been less than three to a precinct. If the present ratio is maintained Ex-Gov. Holcomb, of the fusionist state ticket, will be elected by not less than 10,000 majority.

NEW JERSEY.

Trenton, Nov. 8—The returns indicate that the republicans have carried the state by about 20,000 plurality, although there was no direct vote on a state ticket. The republicans will control both houses of the legislature by good majorities, and will have an increased representation in the house of assembly.

MISSISSIPPI.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 8.—The entire democratic state ticket is elected by a majority estimated at 30,000.

REPORT OF ROBERTS.

United States Treasurer Tells of the Nation's Finances.

Effect of the New Revenue Law on Receipts—Marked Gain in Circulation of Gold Coin and Standard Silver Dollars.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, the treasurer of the United States, in his annual report to Secretary Gage sums up the operations of the last fiscal year by saying that "A notable activity was exhibited in all kinds of currency, with a marked increase in the use of gold coin and in a less degree of silver coin, while the prosperity of the country has at no time left any part of the government notes in the treasury above the demands of daily business in its several offices."

The Revenues.

He says: The effect of the new revenue law is shown in the receipts for the year, in which there was an increase over 1898 of $56,553,419 from customs and $102,536,520 from internal revenue. The collections of internal revenue were larger than those for any previous year, with the exception only of 1866, and the total ordinary receipts, which amounted to $515,960,629, were also the largest on record, with the same exception. The net ordinary expenditures were a little over $605,000,000, an amount exceeded only twice—in 1863 and 1864. There was a deficiency of $89,111,559 in the ordinary revenues.

Inclusive of loans and the issue of notes and certificates the total receipts on all accounts, by warrants, were $1,038,451,340, and the total disbursements $946,222,148. With the addition of the proceeds of the new three per cent. loan to the ordinary revenues there was a fiscal surplus of $100,791,521 for the year. The receipts from the loan represented every part of the country. Of the total of nearly $200,000,000, upwards of $125,000,000 came to the office in Washington in the form of checks on banks in every part of the country. Nearly $29,000,000 was paid in gold, upward of $25,000,000 in United States notes and the rest in other kinds of money.

Our Paper Money.

There were in circulation June 30, 1898, $286,572,329 in United States notes, $98,665,580 in treasury notes, $390,659,080 in silver certificates and $223,129,703 in national bank notes. On June 30, 1899, the amounts were: United States notes, $310,547,349; treasury notes, $92,605,792; silver certificates, $401,869,343, and national bank notes, $237,832,594. The paper in circulation was thus increased during the year by $43,828,386. As a result of these changes the treasury holdings of government paper fell, between the two dates, in United States notes from $34,063,687 to $15,278,667 in treasury notes from $2,541,700 to $912,488 and in silver certificates from $7,897,424 to $4,216,161. By continuance of the process of retiring treasury notes of 1890, redeemed in standard silver dollars, the amount of the notes outstanding was reduced during the year from $101,207,280 to $93,518,280.

Gold Circulation.

The gold coin in circulation, all in these denominations, steadily increased from $478,771,490, September 30, 1896, to $646,361,185 on the same date in 1899. In the small notes there was a shrinkage of $11,522,157 from 1896 to 1897, but in the next year there was an increase of $41,657,037, and from 1898 to 1899 the amount ran up by $58,665,456. During that year the increase of these denominations of both gold and paper was $82,576,789. The total addition to the paper circulation in the same period was $101,859,641, of which $43,174,225 was in the larger denominations. The addition to the gold in circulation during the year was $23,911,373, and this, added to the increase of the paper outstanding, makes a total increase of $125,751,014.

Silver Circulation Increases.

In the fiscal year 1898 the ten treasury offices paid out $40,832,149 in standard silver dollars, and in 1899 $42,532,296, an increase of $1,700,147. At the same time the receipts of standard dollars were $54,007,924 in 1898 and $37,581,040 in 1899, a decrease of $16,426,894. These changes indicate a growing circulation of these coins. Previous to this year the maximum of silver dollars in circulation at the close of any month was reached in December, 1890, as the result of urgent efforts to promote their use, when the record was $67,547,023.

Shows Healthy Increase.

In the fiscal year 1898 gold coin was taken for 10.03 per cent. of the receipts from customs, amounting to $2,076,736,587, and given for 11.83 per cent. of the disbursements, amounting to $2,195,973,013. In 1899 the receipts of $2,293,199,747 showed 37.6 per cent. and the disbursements of $2,371,283,629 showed 35.37 per cent. in gold coin. For the quarter ending September 30 gold formed 38.5 per cent. of the receipts and 35.2 per cent. of the disbursements. For 21 years there has been a natural and healthy increase of gold in circulation. While disbursements of gold have been so heavy the holdings of the treasury in coin and bullion have surpassed all previous records, both in gross amount and in net excess over outstanding certificates. The former gross maximum is found in September, 1888, at $332,551,306, and the net maximum, before 1898, was $218,818,252, in March of the same year. On June 30, 1898, the gross gold in the treasury was $202,825,049, and the net $167,004,429. These figures rose to $353,002,280 gross and $254,328,821 net, September 30, 1899. These statistics make plain a tendency to an increase in the use of coin of all kinds. On October 1, 1899, the estimated amount of gold in circulation was 23.18 per cent. of all the currency, and the gold in the treasury was 60.44 per cent. of the United States notes and treasury notes outstanding.

Easy to Establish Reserve.

These resources, the treasurer suggests, would make it easy to establish a permanent and adequate gold reserve. He points that while the reserve of $100,000,000 several times has been trenched upon under pressure of necessity, the trust funds set apart for a specific object, as the gold pledged for gold certificates and the standard dollars for silver certificates, have always been kept intact. A fund of $150,000,000 devoted by law to the purpose, with a provision that the notes once redeemed in gold should not be paid out again except for gold, would be self-sustaining and would prove a perpetual guarantee of safety.

A Duty of the Banks.

With reference to the appeals for notes and certificates which the treasury had to refuse because it had already gone to the limit of its powers, Mr. Roberts points out that the existing national banks of the United States have the right, under their charters, to add $345,029,413 to their circulation. Of this $29,181,680 would go to the city of New York and $15,925,700 to Chicago, from both of which places there have been persistent applications to the treasury for paper. In the face of the assertion that the far western states are suffering for want of currency, their own banks could issue additional notes to the amount of $18,255,245. The treasurer offers no criticism upon the banks, but puts it to them whether their sphere ends with cent per cent. or involves also an obligation of service to the community.

Issue of Gold Certificates.

On August 7, 1899, was resumed the issue of gold certificates after an almost uninterrupted suspension from April, 1895, during which the amount in circulation was reduced to $32,587,340. By the end of October this amount had been increased to $127,593,519. Within this period the treasury paid out $156,052,640 of the certificates, of which $83,063,229 were for gold coin and $72,989,420 were in current disbursements, while $62,022,250 were returned to the treasury in the receipts. The rapidity of the outgo is notable, as well as the proportion of the denominations under $1,000.

As a relief to the money market the payment of the interest due on November 1, amounting to $4,363,244, was anticipated. The coupons were received on and after the 16th and the checks for registered interest were mailed on the 23d and 25th.

The number of one and five-cent counterfeits detected at the offices of the treasury during the year was 89,928, all but 2,827 of which were cents, a large increase over previous years.

Iowa Troops Home.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 7.—The Fifty-first Iowa volunteers returned to their native state Monday, after service in the Philippines, and received a welcome in this city that warmed their hearts. A crowd of fully 5,000 people flocked hither from all parts of the state to join in the greeting.

"Olive branches preceding him," she mused some more. "He'll be home by dark."

CONFESSIONAL!

God of our Sires who hither fled
Across a strange and stormy sea,
Who suffered exile, toiled and bled
To make themselves and children free,
—God of the Prilgrims, Smite us not!
We have forgot! We have forgot!

How runs the story? Far away
We hear the epoch-opening gun
Fired by our Minute Men at bay
Upon the green at Lexington.
But far and faint, we heed it not,
— Lord God of Hosts, we have forgot!

The Bill of Rights our Fathers signed
And sealed with shot and saber-stroke,
Their just appeal to all mankind,
Their prayers sent up through battle-smoke,
Their faith humane, without a blot,
Lord Christ, forgive! — We have forgot!

Ah, if, where sun-set islands lie,
Thy brave, brown men their blood shall spill,
Shall strike for liberty and die,
Slain by the heirs of Bunker Hill,
Thou wilt remember, wilt thou not?
Though we, Thy people, have forgot!

We have forgot! A Roman lust
Profanes our ancient, holy things;
We trample justice in the dust;
We have the rabies of the kings!
The scarlet rage of gun and sword!
Have mercy on Thy people, Lord!

Amen!

—HOWARD S. TAYLOR.

While these lines are being written there is every sign of victory in the pivotal states. But whatever the result it can but inspire all of our forces, who know they are right both in morals and on the question of the real interests of the people, to continued effort which they will never cease until triumph is obtained. The idea was thus expressed in a letter from our state leaders to Mr. Bryan, writing of pending matters of importance. The letter said:

"I am more than sorry to intrude upon your resting time, but you can take plenty of it, especially if the fight you have been waging goes as now expected. And if it does not, why you may have to take a shorter rest time, and we all draw on our reserves of hope and courage."

Hanna's coming message, which McKinley is preparing, will, it is said, ask for still further increase of the standing army. How did this escape "Jerry J.'s" eagle Graphite?

Says the Republican governor of Wisconsin on McKinley's declared policy of the Philippines:

"It seems to me that the continued existence of our present form of government is threatened by this problem. We are a great nation, but we have our limitations. It is folly to talk of maintaining permanently our supremacy over those people."

Thus does the list of "traitors" and "copperheads" continue to increase, and by the best blood of the republic.

And still another "copperhead" is President Dowe, of the Commercial Travellers' National League, New York, who has resigned from a Republican organization on account of the McKinley imperialism.

Hanna has explained on the stump in Ohio how no trusts or bad combinations in restraint of trade exist. The National Watchman, from Holt's "Commercial Year Book," publishes a complete list of trusts, coming under the accepted definition, covering whole pages of The Watchman. They number 455, representing a "capital" of $4,250,000,000, of which 70 concerns, representing nearly $1,000,000, have been organized since last-March. Of the total capitalization more than half is "water," on which dividends are forced by blood drawn from the people. Almost every industry in the land, except those producers from the soil, are covered in these trusts. No, there are no combinations in restraint of trade. Soon there will be no trade in restraint of the combinations and no government by the people.

Even the Minneapolis Tribune knows of one trust, the coal trust, of which it says—which might be sent to Hanna:

"Of all the pernicious trusts, the coal trust that advances the price of coal to extortionate figures at the beginning of a hard winter is the most cruel."

The following are the features of a single day's market reports last week:

Wheat drops a cent to 65¾, Minneapolis; one year ago, 64¾. Average Minnesota country price (estimated) 54¼. Bar silver, 58½.

Oats dull and lower.

Corn lower and weaker.

Hogs and stock lower.

Potatoes dull, 12 to 15c in carload lots.

Provisions (Chicago) slow and weak.

Minneapolis flour dull. Three mills closed to reduce stocks.

Wall street.

Call money, New York, 5 to 20 per cent.

Sugar Trust, up one point.

Steel combine stock higher. Iron and tin and glass stocks higher—whence higher for all manufactures and articles of consumption, etc., etc., etc., etc.

Lower prices for producers, higher for monopoly.

St. Paul Globe: Trusts have raised prices on almost every article that the farmer is obliged to buy. But the farmer cannot form a corn, wheat, pork, beef or potato trust. He is at the mercy of all capitalistic combinations and defenseless against extortion.

And speaking of the combines, every one should have the "Book of Trusts," issued by the Traveling Men's League, of which Henry L. Chaffee is secretary. Address, 409 N. W. Building, Minneapolis.

Of the "Price Question Up to Date," Hon. George H. Shibley, director of department of money and banking, bureau of economic research, has demonstrations which are going to our daily press, with full diagrams, that conclusively apply the increased gold supply to what has really happened to prices outside of the raises by combines and trusts. It is the increase in the volume of metallic money, on the same theory of the free coinage advocates in 1896. His charts show how prices have followed the rising flood of gold, the "real thing" being that the supply of gold increasing, the purchasing power of gold diminishes, the other way of saying that prices rise.

Mr. Shibley discusses the subject most thoroughly in all its bearings, and is conducting a work of the most vital importance. Let us suggest that all interested avail themselves of the issues his bureau is making, especially our daily press which honestly desires to know the light, his adcress being 52 Lafayette Place, New York City.

It should make the American stop and think to read in the English disdatches that the Ladysmith disaster is like that that befell Burgoyne and Cornwallis! "It is safe to say," said the English report, "that the empire is face to face with a repulse compared only to the surrender of Burgoyne to the embattled farmers of our American colonies."

Says Olive Schreiner, writing from the Boer standpoint:

"The intellect and conscience of England are with us in our struggle for justice. From Herbert Spencer and John Morley to Frederick Harrison, the loftiest voices of the English nation are raised to recall their people to the path of justice and wisdom and in denunciation of the policy which would murder a nation to fill a few pockets."

"To fill a few pockets." How well that fits the case of America in the McKinley-Hanna regime.

The purpose of the anti-imperialists to subordinate all questions to the one of preservation of the republic, was well expressed by Professor A. H. Tolman of the University of Chicago, at the recent anti-imperialist conference when he said:

"The gold of our coinage is not so precious to me as the fine gold of our history."

We commend this sentiment to certain members of the faculty of Minnesota university. Thank God there are some of them who stand on this, as on other issues, with the masses. But far too many and too prominent of them are "chained to their idols," at the state expense!

National Committeeman T. D. O'Brien:—"The constitution of the United States has produced the best class of citizens in the world. Let us guard it as we would guard our own homes."

The state situation continues to trouble the goppite press. "Be not too confident," says the Preston Times. "A royal battle is in store for us a year from now." "The fact that Governor Lind is avoiding blunders, and making a good administration, is enough to make us pause and consider," says the Northfield News. And the uppermost thought of the one is that its editor is the man for secretary of state, and the other the man for governor. And the fact that neither will be "chosen" makes us all sad.

'Jan. 10, 1900, has been fixed for date of the great Jackson Day banquet at Minneapolis, under auspices of the State League of Democratic Clubs. The whole Northwest is to be invited, and Mr. Bryan will be the great character present. Hon. William Baldwin will be at the head of arrangements. Full particulars later.

It seems that Admiral Schley is a great favorite with the Peoples' party national leaders, who would like to see the ticket made "Bryan and Schley." At this outlook such a ticket would be so much expansion that more territory would be needed for it to run on.

The cat is now clear out of the bag as to the purpose of the state Republican "machine," made clear by the capture of the "documents in the case," to-wit, the confidential circular issued by the Republican state magnates. It is jointly the action of the so-called League of Republican clubs of odoriferous John Goodnow memory, and the Republican state central committee, the Goppite chief thus officiating being Hon. F. B. Wright for the former and Hon. John H. Steele for the latter, better known as the Eustis manager of '98.

The scheme has been fully laid bare by The Globe and other of our state press, but is not in fact so stupendous as to call for all the secrecy and mysticism that has attended the incubation. In a word, it is but the selection of the Minneapolis Tribune's country issue, the Farmers' Tribune as the organ of the bodies mentioned, and as the medium of conducting a sort of bureau work. The object of this special machine favor, is the paper long edited by one, Captain C. L. Smith, who pieced out his meager Tribune "salary," by the fat one paid him by the state, in the dairy department, the loss of which, at the hands of Major Bowler, who appointed a better man in his place, was made the occasion of so loud a "squeal" by the military gentleman mentioned.

In order to bring the large elevator concerns into compliance with the law, regarding the asking of reports, Inspector Reishus has reported a large number of them to the attorney general for prosecution for violation of law. Does any one believe that Inspector Clausen would have bothered the elevators for that or any other shortcomings?

ARE PROVEN FALSE.

Stories of Disaster at Ladysmith Denied—Fall of Colenso Confirmed.

London, Nov. 7.—An immense weight was lifted from the public mind by a brief official dispatch, published Monday morning, by which the continental stories of disaster at Ladysmith were proved to be false, although the dispatch itself revived the anxiety of the more timid in another direction, as it indicated that Gen. White, instead of sitting tight and acting wholly on the defensive, as it is held in many quarters he ought to do, persists in making sorties and risking another Nicholson's Nek disaster. Generally, however, the cheery tone of the dispatch, showing that there is no anxiety at Ladysmith as regards the ability of the beleaguered garrison to hold its own, has had an excellent effect on the country.

London, Nov. 7.—The officials of the British war office when shown the dispatch from Durban of November 3 said they had no further news regarding the military situation in Natal, but thought no undue significance should be attached to the concluding phrase. They could not say whether the railroad to Ladysmith was intact, but they admitted that Ladysmith is now completely surrounded.

It is believed that the Orange Free State commanders now have 11,000 men concentrated against Kimberley and on the Free State southern frontier. Opposed to them are only 7,000 British troops. The towns which lie open to their attack are Aliwal North, Burghersdorph, Steynberg, Barkly and Molteno.

Estcourt, Natal, Friday, Nov. 3.—Colenso is now in the hands of the Boers. Before the evacuation was decided upon the enemy tried to cut off our outposts. The Durban light infantry under Lieut. Molyneaux and a force of Dublin fusileers were sent to the relief of the outposts and a brisk fight ensued. The Boers were repulsed, leaving 12 dead. Twenty Boer horses were killed and the others stampeded. The chief motive for the withdrawal, however, was that the long-range guns of the Boers had made the position untenable. No orders were received for retirement.

Durban, Natal, Nov. 2.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The official roll call shows that 843 members of the Gloucestershire regiment and of the Royal Irish fusileers are missing as the result of the engagement on Farquhar's farm. Thirty-two members of the Gloucestershire regiment, ten members of the Royal Irish fusileers and two members of the Tenth mountain battery were found killed. Between 70 and 100 escaped and returned to Ladysmith, whither 150 wounded have been brought.

CONTINUES LARGE.

Trade of the Country Apparently Reaches Its Highest Mark During October.

New York, Nov. 4.—Bradstreet's says: "Despite some variation in the currents of trade distribution, the aggregate movement continues of immense volume; in fact, if the aggregate of bank clearings in the country outside of the metropolis is a trustworthy index, as it no doubt is, the country's trade reached its highest mark in the month of October. Prices certainly show marked strength in view of the proportions of earlier advances. Cooler weather has been welcomed by the retail trade of the country, and some stimulus has already been noted, alike to distribution and to the confidence of distributors. In some lines of wholesale trade, notably dry goods, there has been some quieting of demand, without, however, any perceptible effect being exercised upon values of textiles, which, indeed, are more firmly held than ever."

R. G. Dun & Co., weekly review of trade says: "British disasters in South Africa have brought to view something beside the steady self-reliance of the English people, that they hold not many American securities to be dislodged in any time of alarm, but are inclined to take more when stocks and money look for safe investment.

"A little decline of ¾ cent in wheat and 1½ cents in corn does not hinder exports, though it is some evidence that growers think they have ample supplies.

"Prices of pig iron for early deliveries are still advancing, but as a great part of the demand has protected itself by contracts running far into next year, including purchases of 50,000 tons Bessemer this week at $23.50, and as billets are quoted at $39.50 for spot, but $35 for next year, the market can be interpreted several ways. More weakness appears in some lines, of which the works have not orders running far ahead. But it is claimed that 1,800,000 tons of rails, 80 per cent. of the entire capacity, have been sold for next year."

Killed by Powder Explosion.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—A terrific explosion occurred Friday afternoon at Aetna, Ind., in the Aetna powder mills, in which two men were killed and one man injured. The dead are Rudolph Christainsen and August Lung. The explosion was in the dynamite mix house, the cause not being exactly known, but supposed to have been from a piece of iron getting under the mixing wheels or a drop of water falling from the roof into the car used to haul nitroglycerin. The house, which contained 1,000 pounds of dynamite and perhaps 500 pounds more in process of making, was destroyed, pieces being found half a mile away from the scene.

Holland Boat Tested.

New York, Nov. 7.—Under the waters of Peconic bay, on Long Island sound, a marvel was accomplished Monday which the naval officers who witnessed it say is destined to revolutionize naval warfare. From the Holland submarine boat, at a depth of ten feet, a Whitehead torpedo was discharged without causing so much as a ripple on the surface of the bay. The test was witnessed by the board of inspection and survey.

Resigns.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The resignation of Denis J. Swenie, chief of the Chicago fire department, is in the hands of Mayor Harrison for acceptance next month. Persistent report about the city hall Monday afternoon had it that this resignation was to take effect December 3. Whether Mayor Harrison will accept it or not is not known. Mr. Swenie has been a member of the Chicago fire department since December 3, 1849.

Well-Known Journalist Dead.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Frank Gilbert, of the Inter Ocean, one of the best-known newspaper men of Chicago, died suddenly about nine o'clock Saturday night. He had long been a sufferer from heart disease. Mr. Gilbert was 60 years of age. He had been prominent in newspaper circles in Chicago since 1866. He was assistant treasurer of the United States from 1877 to 1881, being in charge of the subtreasury in Chicago.

PRELIMINARY REPORT.

The Philippine Commission Tells of Its Work—Filipinos Unfit for Self-Government.

Washington, Nov. 3.—In accordance with the understanding reached at the conference at the white house, the Philippine commission has submitted to the president the preliminary report which it had promised to prepare. The report appears to be a compact summary of conditions on the islands as the commission left them; of the historical events which preceded the Spanish war and led to the original Filipino insurrection; of the exchanges between Admiral Dewey and the other American commanders and the insurgents; the breaking out and progress of the present insurrection, and, finally, a statement of the capacity of the Filipinos for self-government. A notable feature of the report is a memorandum by Admiral Dewey explanatory of his relations with Aguinaldo.

In this it is stated that in all of Dewey's negotiations with Aguinaldo no alliance of any kind was entered into, nor was any promise of independence made to him.

The efforts at conciliation with Aguinaldo and his various commissions are set forth in detail. The commissioners were assured of the beneficent purposes of the United States and the president's readiness to grant the Filipino people as large a measure of home rule and as ample liberty as consistent with the ends of government, "subject only to the recognition of the sovereignty of the United States—a point which, being established, the commission invariably refused even to discuss." The commission adds that nothing came of negotiations, as Aguinaldo's emissaries were without powers and merely came, and came again, for information. Courteous reception was accorded to the insurgent commissions, and earnest appeals made to stop further bloodshed, all witnessing "the spirit of patient conciliation" exhibited by the American commission in endeavoring to reach an amicable adjustment with the insurgents, as well as the obduracy of Aguinaldo.

The chapter devoted to "capacity for self-government" is the result, the report states, of diligent inquiry for several months, in the course of which a great number of witnesses were examined, of all shades of political thought and varieties of occupation, tribe and locality. The most striking and perhaps the most significant fact in the entire situation is the multiplicity of tribes inhabiting the archipelago, the diversity of their languages (which are mutually unintelligible) and the multifarious phases of civilization—ranging all the way from the highest to the lowest. As to this the report says: "The Filipinos are not a nation, but a variegated assemblage of different tribes and peoples, and their loyalty is still of the tribal type."

The report concludes as follows:

"Our control means to the inhabitants of the Philippines internal peace and order, a guarantee against foreign aggression and against the dismemberment of their country, commercial and industrial prosperity, and as large a share of the affairs of government as they shall prove fit to take. When peace and prosperity have been established throughout the archipelago, when education shall have become general, then, in the language of a leading Filipino, his people will, under our guidance, 'become more American than the Americans themselves.'"

Washington, Nov. 4. — The cabinet meeting Friday lasted two hours. Much of the time was spent in the reading and discussion of the preliminary report of the Philippine commission. The report was considered very satisfactory and received the full approval of the cabinet.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Assistant Postmaster General Heath Presents a Strong Plea for the System.

Washington, Nov. 6.—A vigorous plea for rural free delivery is made in the annual report of First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath. Mr. Heath says the service so far has resulted in increased postal receipts, enhancement of the value of farm lands reached by rural free delivery of from two to three dollars per acre; a general improvement of the condition of the roads traversed by the rural carrier; better prices for farm products, the producers being brought into daily touch with the state of the markets, besides educational benefits conferred by relieving the monotony of farm life through ready access to wholesome literature and knowledge of current events.

On November 1 rural free delivery was in successful operation over 583 services, radiating over 40 states and one territory, Idaho, Wyoming, Mississippi and Montana being the only states unrepresented. Between the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, 1899, and November 1 an additional expenditure of $150,000 rural delivery has been extended to nearly 180,000 persons, at an annual cost of about 84 cents per capita, against an average per capita cost of $2.80 in small towns of 5,000 population.

"It is a small matter to the resident of a town," says the report, "to be saved a walk of a few hundred yards to the post office, while on the contrary it is a great accommodation to the farmer to be spared a drive of five or ten miles over country roads to get his mail. In a recent public discussion advocates of the system who took the value of the time thus lost in the busy farming season at only 50 cents per head found that their figures ran up into many millions of dollars lost to the agricultural interests through being obliged to send to the village for the mails."

Miners Sentenced.

Moscow, Idaho, Nov. 7.—The culminating scene in the long-drawn-out labor troubles in the Coeur d'Alene mining region was enacted in the federal court here Monday afternoon, when the ten men found guilty of interfering with the United States mails near Wardner during the riots of April 29 were sentenced by Judge Beatty to each serve 22 months in the United States prison at San Quentin, Cal., and pay a fine of $1,000, with the exception of Dennis O'Rourke, who, on account of his youth, gets off with 20 months and a fine of $1,000.

Esterhazy Sentenced.

Paris, Nov. 7.—Maj. Count Esterhazy, the reputed author of the bordereau which brought about the conviction of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus on the charge of treason, was sentenced Monday by default on his cousin Christian's charge of swindling to three years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 50 francs. He was also ordered to refund the 35,000 francs claimed by Christian.

A Lucky Hunter.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 7. — Hunter Johnson, a white citizen of Jackson, while hunting in Pearl river swamp, east of the city, several days ago, discovered a box containing nearly $50,000. The money was incased in an iron case and is in gold pieces, nearly all of the $20 denomination. It is thought the money is a war treasure. All of the coins bear date prior to 1850.

HE COULDN'T BE BLAMED.

Did Everything in His Power to Secure Support But Was Handicapped.

"I suppose it was a little cheeky," said the young man to the old fellow on the rear platform of the car, "but what are you going to do in such a case?"

"Yes, what are you going to do?" queried the old fellow, in reply, though having no knowledge of what was meant.

"I got up the courage to ask her hand in marriage and she murmured yes."

"They generally murmur."

"Then to be in good form, I had to go and ask the old man's consent."

"Perfectly correct, young man—perfectly correct."

"I took a bracer and walked in on him," continued the young man, "and in due time I had stated my case. He waited a decent length of time and then said I could have her."

"That was beautiful—beautiful."

"Yes, as far as it went. Yes that was all right, but I wasn't through with him yet. I had to ask him if he'd lend me a hundred dollars to get married on. Wasn't no other way, you know."

"No, no other way," repeated the old fellow as he got a new brace for his back. "And he loaned it to you?"

"Noap. Threw me down with a dull thud."

"You don't say!"

"Did for a fact. Yes, the whole thing is off, and I have loved and lost. I don't see where I'm to blame, though."

"Not a bit of it. You loved and wanted to marry; but it takes money to get married on. He had it, but wouldn't lend it. No money—no marriage. Plain as the nose on your face, and you're not a bit to blame. "Put it thar, young man, and cheer up and get a new hold with your toes. You had to do it—had to do it—and anybody as says you hadn't is a liar and a hoss thief and dasn't stand up before the undersigned for three rounds!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE ICE MACHINE'S PART.

At Last There Has Been a New Feature Introduced Into Uncle Tom's Cabin.

There is a new wrinkle in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" theatrical companies. One of them, which is ransacking the state of New Jersey for audiences, has hit upon the device of buying a refrigerating machine and using real blocks of ice in the scene in which Eliza, pursued by a pack of barking mongrels, crosses the river carrying in her arms a stuffed doll.

The icemaking machine has proved an enormous success. At the Ridgewood opera house, where the ice machine played a few evenings ago, a frantic crowd fought its way through the doors. At the first performances the ice machine was kept in the background. Several cakes were manufactured before the performance and placed on the green baize river. They were carefully sanded on the surface, so that when Eliza made her grand dash for liberty she would not turn undignified somersaults. The ice machine, however, had been so largely advertised that yokels wanted to see it. They sat in their places after the curtain descended upon the solemn death of Little Eva and howled for the ice machine to come out and show itself. The stage manager and a couple of deck hands had to carry it down to the footlights. Then they turned the handle and, amid uproarous applause, the machine produced a cake of real ice.

Since then a part has been written in the play for the ice machine. When the river scene opens a couple of southern speculators are discovered experimenting with the machine. They produce their ice, and not having any immediate use for it turn it into the river, and it sits upon the river surface at proper intervals to accommodate Eliza's footsteps. A colored man comes out and sprinkles sand over the ice in full view of the audience.—Chicago Chronicle.

Its Origin.

"Hoot!" cried the owl ever and anon.

The fowls of the air and the beasts of the field stirred uneasily in their sleep and muttered maledictions.

"Why are they so angry?" asked the owlet at last.

"They are envious, my child," replied the owl, "of my Scotch dialect. Hoot, hoot!"—Detroit Journal.

How Mrs. Pinkham HELPED MRS. GOODEN.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 12,733]

"I am very grateful to you for your kindness and the interest you have taken in me, and truly believe your medicines and advice are worth more to a woman than all the doctors in the world. For years I had female troubles and did nothing for them. Of course I became no better and finally broke down entirely. My troubles began with inflammation and hemorrhages from the kidneys, then inflammation, congestion and falling of the womb and inflammation of ovaries.

"I underwent local treatment every day for some time; then after nearly two months the doctor gave me permission to go back to work. I went back, but in less than a week was compelled to give up and go to bed. On breaking down the second time, I decided to let doctors and their medicine alone and try your remedies. Before the first bottle was gone I felt the effects of it. Three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of her Sanative Wash did me more good than all the doctors' treatments and medicine.

"The first remark that greets me now is 'How much better you look!' and you may be sure I never hesitate to tell the cause of my health."—MRS. E. J. GOODEN, ACKLEY, IA.

The New Explosive.

Thorite, the new explosive, has been distinguishing itself by passing through a 4½ inch Harveyized steel plate. If its success continues, it will make as great a record for itself in the military world as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has in the medical world. So far nothing has appeared which can equal this wonderful medicine in its speedy and permanent mastery of all diseases of the stomach, liver or kidneys. It's a good remedy to try when everything else has failed.

Matter of Length.

"How long should mourning gowns be worn by a widow of 22?" was the question that came sobbing through the mails. Now it chanced to be the sporting editor's day off, and the religious editor, therefore, was attending to the Side Talks with Young Persons. "There is no hard and fast rule," wrote the religious editor, confidently, "but they ought to come down to the boot tops, at least." This incident illustrates the occasional awkwardness of a newspaper standing as a bulwark of morals to the exclusion of everything else.—Detroit Journal.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Its Peterson and Ball now. Ole bottoms shoes and Sin chairs.

—Our enterprising harness maker is handing out calendars for 1900. Charley believes in advertising.

—The day train on the G. N. instead of running through to Wahpeton will, after Sunday, only go to Morris.

—A new sidewalk has been put down on the south side of Bridge street, from Third street to the alley.

—There has been several wood sawing outfits in town during the past week. They seemed to find plenty to do.

—A large new covered bread pan left at the soldier's reception dinner can be had by the owner, by calling on Mrs. J. D. Young.

—Until further notice the post office in Delano, Minn., will open at 7:30 A. M. F. H. LINDSLEY, Post Master.

—No finer fall was ever seen than we have been having. Should present weather continue another month, winter will be materially shortened at this end.

—"My Ideal Boy" by Rev. Dr. C. B. Mitchell, in Delano, Monday evening, Dec. 4. Dr. Mitchell has the reputation of being a fine lecturer. Don't fail to hear him.

—A reception was held in the Odd Fellow's Hall, Monday night, in honor of Mrs. Mulford, who is about to leave for Wisconsin where she will keep house for her son Roy.

—If you have a cellar to dig or a lot to grade down you can get rid of the dirt by leaving word at the M. E. parsonage, where dirt is needed to bank up the house and grade the lot.

—Fred A. Knoll has again succeeded in rigging up neat quarters for an office. The latest seems to be an improvement on all its predecessors. Fred is a man to learn by experience.

—We were pleased to see Warren Merriman who was reported as sick a few weeks ago, out hauling wood this week. He is looking as "pert" as common. He and Frankie make a good crew in the wood business.

—Rev. Thompson, of Macalester College, is to preach for the Presbyterians here. As the methodists have a minister by the same name it matters not which church you attend it is Rev. Thompson anyway.

—The water fountains are being put in trim for winter. The iron fountain was warranted to run all winter, and if it is possible to arrange it so it will, it certainly should be done, as it would be a very great convenience to many people many times.

—The Eagle's suggestion that the business men of Delano ought to organize a board of trade is a good one. If our business men would get together on business principles they could help each other and the village in many directions. Let a meeting be called soon and an organization effected.

—Several of the Delano pupils were suspended from school on account of not having been vaccinated, a short time since. Nearly all have complied with the requirements, and are again in attendance. It is too bad for any one to loose days at school. They can never make them up. They are gone forever.

—The entertainment given at the City Hall Monday evening by Misses Josephine Bonaparte Rice and Ida May Paulson was fine, and very well received by the small audience present. Another entertainment in town the same evening kept them from having as large an audience as they otherwise would have had.

—While driving to Minneapolis on Tuesday, we met a number of team loaded with something which at a distance looked like coarse saur kraut. We soon learned that it was beet pulp from the St. Louis Park beet sugar plant. Farmers get the pulp for half a dollar a load, and a load will feed 40 or 50 cows, we were told, for a day, and makes very good food for milk cows.

—One pupil called on us to know when that doctor was coming around to vaccinate people for nothing. On being told that we knew of none, he said: "I read it in the Eagle." We told him he could read most anything in the Eagle and advised him to go to their office and find out what they knew about it. He finally concluded to be vaccinated and return to school without consulting the Eagle.

—The remains of Mrs. Joseph Van Eman, buried fourteen years ago, in the Delano cemetery, were exhumed Wednesday and taken to Buffalo where her husband now lives, to be reburied in the Masonic cemetery, at that place. Mr. Van Eman's first wife who was buried in Minneapolis was moved to Buffalo several weeks since, on account of the cemetery where she was previously buried having been condemned and all bodies ordered moved.

—Manure and other refuse, from barns and houses, thrown into alleys have become, in several instances, almost intolerable nuisances. Some of the alleys, whenever there comes a little rain, are about impassible. Nearly every barn has a manure pile, and in some places it is hard to pick ones way through the alley with a wagon. Our city fathers should see that they are kept in better condition, or pass an ordinance that no manure or rubbish be thiown into alleys.

—An entertainment and sale of fancy work by the Junior Journal Club will be given Monday evening, Nov. 13, in the City Hall. Admission 10 cents.

Programme is as follows: Music by trio, Ray Borrill, Charley Bentz and George Borrill; recitation, Edith Chancellor; solo, Mabel Young; recitation, Miss Featherstone; solo, Miss Cotton; dialogue entitled "How She Cured Him". Recess for sale of fancy work. Grinding over machine; music, trio. Per order COMMITTEE.

—It shows a woeful lack of interest in school matters when a quorum of the Board of Education can't be gotten together to hold regular meetings. Men whose business affairs are so rushing or whose interest in education is so lax that they can't even attend meetings, ought not to accept positions of such importance. President Burnes, Secretary O'Hair, and I Gutzwiller, we understand, were the only embers present at last Monday evenings regular meeting. Turn out to the meetings gentlemen and see to it that school affairs are in first class shape.

Its of no Use Denying.

A London dispatch of Nov. 9, says: "Negotiations in London have led to an agreement between the United States, Great Britain, and China to maintain the "open door" in China, which power will endeavor to develop both the American and English trade", etc. etc.

Officials in Washingtou are said to be completely surprised at this telegram, claiming to not understand its meaning. Away with such duplicity. The people of this country have had enough of such dealings.

The Finest Limited Train.

From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago is the Burlington electric lighted and steam heated. Every comfort that other trains have and some that no others have. Remember this when buying railroad tickets.

Ohio Republicans Rebel.

Columbus, Nov, 2.—An anti-imperialist meeting held here this evening was attended by 1,000 people, including prominent members of both parties. Gen. John Beatty, President of the Citizens' Savings Bank and a Republican, said:

"I'll tell you how you can stop the needless Philippine war in twenty days. Vote in such a way next Tuesday as to express your disaproval of it."

He said President McKinley was afraid to call Congress in special session to advise with him in the matter because he knew it would stop the war. The President, he said, hoped to crush Aguinaldo before Congress met regularly.

Alfred E. Lee, also a Republican and Consul to Frankfort, Germany, under Hayes, spoke against the war. Resolutions condemning McKinley's war policy were adopted.—World.

Burlington Reclining Chair Cars.

Running on two trains a day to and from Chicago, are the largest, roomiest, and in every way best, of any such cars running from St. Paul and Minneapolis. When you buy a ticket over the Burlington you get the best.

Agents Wanted.

County Cullings.

Merchants at Buffalo have agreed to close business at 7:30 every evening except Saturday. This gives business men and clerks a chance for a few hours recreation.

Judge Giddings held a special term of court at Buffalo, Monday, and adjourned to Monticello, Tuesday. Mrs. Brenn, of Howard Lake, was granted a divorce.

The Eagle says of the Waverly celebration on account of the soldiers home coming: "The Waverly people are hospitable and well meaning, but those who arranged the visit of the governor made a big mistake. On such occasions a home gathering of home people is the proper thing." It also says Gov. Lind was there and aired his views, etc. etc. and "everybody felt he was simply playing for votes. How does the Eagle know? And why didn't the Old Bird fire that heavy shot when it had big game? When President McKinley came out and thanked boys for promising to remain in the Philippines, when, as a fact they refused all inducements to reenlist for six months, would have bee an opportune time for our feathery friend to let her s c r-e-e-c-h.

Especially For Ladies.

Are those splendid compartment cars on the Burlington Limited from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago. All the comforts of home including an elecric heater for your curling-iron. When you send for a railroad ticket, insist on having it over the Burlington.

Among Our Exchanges.

Good for Helen Gould. She has already contributed over $6,000 for the purpose of spreading literature against the seating of Brigham Roberts in Congress.—Litchfield Review.

Aitkin Age: When the British lion gets two or three of his feet tangled up in Oom Paul's whiskers, it might be a good time for Uncle Sam to mention that Alaska boundary question again.

St. Peter Herald: If Editor Pease of Anoka ever runs against Lind for governor, he will not publish the latter as "jack lind." The size of the job would make him think it was the Honorable John Lind and that his poster type would not be big enough for the name.

Help the Cause.

There has never been a political campaign that will equal in importance that of the one to be fought next year. The republican party, backed by the money power of this country and Europe, is alert and agressive. Flushed by the victory of three years ago it will seek by every means in its power to maintain its supremacy.

Democrats must be up and doing. They must wage an unceasing war upon their enemies. In no better and more effective way can this be done than by the circulation of good, sound democratic newspapers. The publisher of the Chicago Dispatch, the great national democratic weekly, will send to every new subscriber for three months a copy of the Chicago Dispatch for ten cents. If you are not taking the great political weekly, send in ten cents at once. You should not only do this yourself, but you should induce all your friends to join with you. By a little effort you can easily raise a club of ten or twenty subscribers.

The Chicago Dispatch is indorsed by William Jennings Bryan and other democratic leaders.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

WHAT'S become of General Congressman Joseph Wheeler, who went over to capture Aguinaldo. Is he up another tree?

MAJOR JOHN A. LOGAN, Jr. is reported among the slain in the Philippines. He leaves a wife and three children at Youngstown, Ohio, and a mother in Washington.

THE cruiser Charleston, one of the new navy of the United States, was wrecked on a reef on the northern coast of Luzon on the 7th of November. It is not stated whether or not the flag was kept up.

BISHOP IRELAND is reported by the Independent, of Litchfield, as having said in a speech at that place, that the man who would sell his vote was a worse traitor to his country than those who rebelled against it during the civil war.

IF the present administration is anxious to save people from their sins and follies, instead of crossing the Pacific it might try enforcing the canteen law among its own soldiers, and include recommendations on temperance for all the people, in its communications to Congress.

THE Boers and the United States Imperialists are alike in being obliged to hurry up and do something quick If the Boers don't take Ladysmith before the English General Buller, with reinforcements, gets there they may not be able to take it. And if Gen. Otis don't get Aguinaldo and subdue the Filipinos before Congress meets, they may stop his pay and he would loose interest in keeping them "well in hand."

TO THE average American who has been taught from infancy up to respect our flag because of its representing life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to the oppressed of every land, it is hard to see the need of sending thousands of young men, and squandering millions of money in enforcing our government upon the Filipinos against their wills; or how people can sympathize with the former oppressor of our forefathers in their war of aggression against the Boers.

ADVERTISE and SUBSCRIBE.

ACCORDING to newspaper reports from Manila, which people have long since learned to read with considerable allowance, the United States soldiers are chasing Aguinaldo and his few followers almost off the island, either crowding him off the mountain tops or into the sea. If, as reported, he has only a thousand or so followers, and they cowards who dare not stand, and all the rest of the people in the archipelago are in favor of surrendering to this country it is hard to see why it should require 70,000 American troops and one of the largest navies we ever had to subdue the country.

THE Democratic National Committee is to meet next Tuesday, the 20th inst and plan for the coming presidential campaign. There is talk of holding an early convention, perhaps in February, and placing in nomination the presidential candidate and announcing the platform so that people may talk over the issues of the campaign and familiarize themselves with the different views of the parties and vote understandingly. Where men are afraid their political views want stand scrutiny, or their candidates' characters are at fault, and they wish to take advantage of ignorance or dishonesty among voters they favor a short campaign. If candidates and issues are plainly announced in February, farmers and others who are busy in summer will have time evenings to read up and post themselves thoroughly and know what suits them and what they want to vote for; so that when the wiley politician comes around to tell them how to vote and what is best for the country they can tell them that they have read up on the different subjects, and usually they will find it an easy matter to "do up" on an argument most of the petty tricksters that perambulate about during the campaign at somebody elses expense, hunting votes.

"Lettuce, Pray, Have Pease!"

Some of our exchanges have been publishing "Agricultural Courtship." Of the four stanzas, four lines might be considered most appropriate at present provided the last word of the last line was capitalized, unless, banish the thought, the candidate himself is the poet!

"I do not carrot all to wed,
So go, sir, if you please!"
The modest onion meekly said
"And lettuce, pray have pease!"

GOV. JOHN LIND has issued his Thanksgiving Day proclamation for Thursday, Nov. 30.

Some Analogies.

The cuttle fish has a peculiar habit of darkening the waters, so that its enemies, when in pursuit, can't follow it. The skunk infects the atmosphere with such odors as to throw its enemies off its track The goldbugs of today seem possessed of something akin to these propensities. They fill the country with reports of dangers innumerable much worse, they say, than financial affairs, in order to divert attention from their gold standard intentions. They pronounce weekly or daily elegies on free silver and Bryanism, and Chicago platform. They shout, insurgent, copperhead, traitor, to some of the most patriotic men our country contains. They howl about not pulling down the flag from where ambitious imperialists have placed it. Then they cry, after pronouncing it dead, "Down with free silver"!

St. Cloud Times: It remains to be seen how the people will take it, when they come to understand that the massing of a strong naval force at Manila, by the McKinley administration, is for the purpose of mixing up in the very much mixed Chinese question.

Keep Your Eyes Open.

It is a big gulf between the assertion of a Catholic bishop, linked to McKinley, that the monastic orders are the benefactors of the inhabitants of Luzon and that of the insurgents that the feudal prerogatives of these orders gained in the middle ages from the Spanish crown include the jus primae noctis; fact is that the periodical uprisings of the inhabitants in this century was mainly against these feudal rights, so that a former Spanish governor of the islands called the monastic orders the curse of Spain. Fact is too, that these orders are immensely rich, and, as they cannot have accommulated this wealth by their own exertions, they must have accumulated it by the involuntary servitude of the inhabitants. Considering these facts, a common president might at least have tried to break the back bone of the revolution and saved many lives of our boys by declaring that involuntary servitude was abolished under our jurisdiction. But McKinley has a special mission from providence as every historical imperialist had. Consequently he claims unconditional surrender, and naturally the islands presume that this is the upholding of the feudal prerogatives of the monastic orders. They keep on fighting till overcome and will begin again soon as they have a chance.

Exists there a promise of McKinley to the Catholic church to uphold these prerogatives to receive in return the support of the prelates for his re-election? Time will show. Keep your eyes open. O. M.

The Philippine Question.

The report of the Philippine commission does not touch this question nor that of our position in the island of Mindanao. It skips gracefully over it. For their consideration Mindanao might be located in the moon. But those who furnish the blood and the money for this imperialistic enterprise ought to have the minutest information. Lately the Turkish Tagals of Mindanos acknowledged the U. S. as ruler, claiming protection against the Moors of that island and the imperialists should triumph. Fact is that our possessions on this island, nearly as large as Luzon, are a few small coast strips inhabited by about 1000,000 people, the aforesaid Tagals. Otherwise Mindanao is under the rule of an independent Sultan who has an army of 100,000 warriors. These Turks are ferocious fighters; actually they furnish the dreaded pirates of the Malay archipelago. There are only two ways. Either we must fight this independent powerful ruler or pay him a tribute to leave our subjects on that island in peace. The two largest islands, one with a population dissatisfied, treacherous, always ready for an uprising and favored in that by the climate; the other populated by ferocious fighters that is the situation into which the imperialistic tendencies of McKinley brought us blind folded. Though a disagreeable position in peace and a dangerous one in war, it is no use crying quits because our national honor is at stake. But McKinley, the imperialist is not the man to finish that business. It must be a man who has the deepest respect for the law of the land and for the principles which are the fundament of this republic. O. M.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10, 1899.

"A Bryan triumph" is what nearly every democrat and many republicans see in the results of the State elections, and it is not likely that there will be any more serious talk of anybody else for the head of the democratic ticket, next year. Col. Bryan's magnificent success in his own state, where he largely increased the fusion majority in the face of many obstacles, including the influence of the Federal administration and the lavish expenditure of money by the republicans, arcused admiration even among his opponents.

Bos Hanna's success in Ohio, probably the most costly campaign ever carried on in a single state, is accepted as having knocked the bottom out of all the schemes to spring an anti-McKinley candidate on the republicans, and, unless something of a scandulous nature should be fastened upon his administration between now and the meeting of the republican national convention, Mr. McKinley will not be opposed for renomination; but a strong element in the republican party, including many of its most prominent men in Congress, have already began to demand of McKinley that he depose King Hanna before the Presidential campaign opens. That will not be an easy job, as Hanna has as much justification in claiming his dearly paid for victory in Ohio as a personal vindication as Mr. McKinley has in claiming it as an endorsement of imperialism by the country.

Imperialism run mad may be looked for in future acts of the administration, as Mr. McKinley and all his cabinet have succeeded in persuading themselves into believing that the state elections were an endorsement of imperialism by the people, notwithstanding the anti-imperialist victories in Nebraska, and in Maryland. The result in Ohio was not an endorsement of anything except the power of money corruptly spent.

Owing to the large number of Maryland democrats engaged in business in Washington there has been unusual rejoicing at the National capitol on account of the return of that state to the democratic fold, from which it would never have strayed had there not been a bitter family row in the democratic camp Maryland democrats are very positive in saying that they can keep the state in line now that the party is again united.

Now that there is no campaign to influence it is admitted by members of the administration that the movement to capture Aguinaldo and his army, which it was officially announced the day before election could not possibly fail, has met with delays which it is feared will give Aguinaldo time enough to get away.

Gen. Joe Wheeler has written that he will take his seat in the House during the coming session of Congress, but as he has not left Manila yet, so far as known in Washington, and it will take between six and eight weeks for him to make the trip, he cannot be at the opening of Congress. Constitutional experts say that should Gen. Wheeler appear in the house to take the oath his status would be entirely different to that occupied by him when objection was raised to his resuming his seat in the House while holding the commission of a major general of volunteers, on the ground that his acceptance of a commission in the army vacated his seat in the House, an objection which was sustained by the committee of which Speaker-to-be Henderson was chairman, and which would have been sustained by the House had not the personal popularity of Gen. Wheeler been so great that the House declined to consider the report on the plea that there was not time enough, owing to the nearness of the end of the session. When Gen. Wheeler's present commission-brigadier general of volunteers-was given him he was not a member of the House, although he had been elected as such. Consequently no objection will be made to his being sworn in as a member whenever he presents himself, but the moment he takes the oath as a member of the House he will cease to be a brigadier general.

Secretary Gage says he thinks the State elections were an order to the republicans in Congress to put the single gold standard into a law. Democrats only hope that he will be able to convince the republican leaders in Congress to think the same way.

Admiral Dewey carried his specialty of doing things before others think he is ready to do them into the arrangements for his marriage. Two days ago he procured his marriage license, and he'll probably be married before the public knows anything more about it.

Democratic Victory.

That the democratic party of Ida county has reasons for rejoicing, no one can doubt. If a democrat should complain of the treatment received at the polls in Ida county last Tuesday, he would be inclined to be swinish. The county gave a republican majority last year of 175, but this year the same party was cut down to 98, a gain of 82 votes for the democracy. The entire democratic ticket was elected except that of sheriff. Democratic gains were made in Ohio, Nebraska and several other states.—Pioneer, Ida Grove, Iowa.

McKinley Imperialism.

Imperialism has only one principle, to gain or sustain political power either by brutal force or by deceit.

People must be led blindfolded to an established fact to face the consequences.

Nobody wanted to annex the Philippines; nobody wanted to buy the tottering souvereignty of Spain there except our imperialistic president. To keep this project from the people's judgement; to create an established fact, the secretary, John Sherman had to be dismissed under some pretext. It is the flag of American imperialism that floats in the Philippines. Nobody intends to howl the flag down. It is the principle which it covers against which republicans and democrats object. It is the principle proclaimed by McKinley and accepted by the imperialists that he is the selected and inspired tool of destiny to lead the American people on the imperialistic road to which we object, because that road is against the laws of the land.

Here is this Sulu island. It belongs to us. McKinley granted to the Turkish ruler, slavery and poligamy. He upholds it. Article XIII of the amendment to our constitution forbids slavery or involuntary servitude within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction. Shall we uphold our constitution or McKinley's imperialism? And those imperialists dare to call us traitors. O. M.

THE LITTLE BARE FEET.

Little bare feet, sunburned and brown,
Patterin', patterin' up and down,
Dancin' over the kitchen floor,
Light as the foam-flakes on the shore,
Right on the go from morn till late,
From the garden path ter the old front gate;
There hain't no music ter me so sweet
As the patterin' sound of them little bare feet.

When I mend my nets by the foamin' sea,
Them little bare feet trot there with me,
And a shrill little voice I love'll say:
"Dran'pa, spin me a yarn ter-day."
And I know when my dory comes ter land,
There's a spry little form somewheres on hand;
And the very fust sound my ears'll meet
Is the welcoomin' run of them little bare feet.

Oh, little bare feet! how deep you've pressed
Yer prints of love in my worn old breast!
And I sometimes think, when I come ter die,
'Twill be lonesome-like in the by and by;
That up in Heaven I'll long ter hear
That little child's voice so sweet and clear;
That even there, on the golden street,
I'll miss the pat of them little bare feet.
—Joe Lincoln, in Saturday Evening Post.

Cupid in a Cyclone

VLASTA looked wistfully out of her small-paned window, deep-set in the heavy sod wall, and sighed.

The piles of unwashed dinner dishes over which she was at work hardly accounted for that sigh and the view without was pleasant rather than otherwise.

It was a Sunday afternoon in the late June, hot and unusually still for that windy country, but the rolling stretches of prairie grass and the green fields of young wheat and corn still held the freshness of early spring.

But the cloud, "no larger than a man's hand," is always present in some form or other.

One was at that moment rising lazily on the western horizon, over the low green hills, just as a faint summer cloud, unseen by the girl, whose eyes were fixed on a nearer, and, to her, much more attractive object. This, as is apt to be the case when maidens sigh, was a young man, who, on the other side of a barbed wire fence some little distance away, was busily engaged in washing his buggy, which was rolled in front of his own little sod house.

He was of middle size, dark haired and featured like herself, and clad in the careless costume of overalls and jacket of blue denim, and dingy from exposure to sun and weather, and the battered sombrero of light felt, which were usual in his everyday occupation of farming.

As anyone familiar with that part of the country could tell at a glance, they were young Bohemians, members of that great army of hardy settlers who have made homes for themselves in the previously untilled west.

But hearts will be hearts in every place, and Juliet may pine for her Romeo in ancient castle no more than in humble sod house, as did this commonplace little heroine, with her plain but kindly face.

Now, by custom immemorial Sunday is the rural holiday everywhere, and it is especially so among our foreign-born citizens, who on that day sally forth, clad in their best, ready for visiting and merrymaking and seeing no incongruity between church and mass in the morning and a dance in the afternoon and evening.

So, considering this, it seemed that the young settler, Albrecht Hollub, should be on pleasure bent, and the signs indicated that so he was, or soon should be. Herein lay the sting which changed for her the sunshine of that glorious June day to gloom.

For Albrecht was "going riding" in his new buggy—going without her, and, no doubt, with some other girl—when it was really her place on that seat beside him.

And had she not proudly occupied it until that unlucky night not yet two weeks ago, but seeming half a lifetime, as a girl's short lifetime goes?

Such a little thing, too, as is generally the case, to have caused all this trouble. She was not sure how Albrecht felt. Perhaps he was glad to get rid of her—here two great tears dropped into the dishpan at the thought. Just a dance at a young friend's wedding—it being their custom for a bridal party to go to a justice or county judge to have the ceremony performed, and then to return to the bride's home for a grand celebration, which usually lasted all night. Then a foolish quarrel, when Albrecht, heated by excitement and beer, had insisted that she danced too often with the bride's elder brother. She had refused to listen to him, of course, with the result that he had walked out into the darkness and had never seen her since.

Perhaps she had sought covertly, and, no doubt, awkwardly, to find an opportunity of making amends, but he had ignored or avoided her, though they lived on adjacent claims; hence, for her, at least, bitter days and nights. She felt vaguely, in her simple fashion, the hardness of the woman's code which bids her "wait and weep" in silence, a rule that has broken many besides country hearts like hers. And all this time the cloud in the west was rising. It looked much like a puff of black smoke now, and there were others, not so dark, climbing up beside it.

The dishes were finished and put away in the kitchen "safe," or cupboard, and the girl sat down by her window—she was very fond of that window in those days—and gazed absently out. The landscape was left desolate to her, for Albrecht had disappeared, probably to attire himself for his outing.

Her father nodded in the shady doorway over his long, curved pipe. In the inner room her mother discoursed volubly to her second daughter in her native tongue, which is never forgotten by the "old people," at least. The shouts of the numerous younger children came from without, where they romped among the farm wagons and machinery, and the horses and cattle grazed contentedly on the fenced-in prairie that formed the pasture. It was all homely, but peaceful, and presently the girl's eyes, heavy with unaccustomed vigils, closed. She did not see the cloud rapidly swelling and taking on the ominous shape dreaded by the prairie dwellers, the so-called funnel form, which in this case was a much flattened one.

It seemed but a few minutes later when Vlasta roused abruptly in dazed bewilderment. A distant shout, one of alarm and warning, seemed echoing in her ear. How dark it had grown. And there were Albrecht and his little old mother, who kept his house, standing before their door, exclaiming and gesticulating wildly. At the same moment there came a rush of furious wind, bringing the sound of a low, menacing roar, while the mass of dusky green cloud seemed to quit the horizon and start swiftly on an earthward path.

Vlasta guessed instantly the peril that threatened, and sprang up with a terrified cry.

"My father, mother, quick! The cyclone! The cyclone!"

Then followed wild confusion, screaming children running to their parents, frantic exclamations, bustle and hurry.

Whither should they fly for refuge in that hour of terror? It was the good mother that solved the problem with prompt presence of mind.

"The henhouse, children! Let us run to the henhouse!" she cried, and she crowded her stout self and her best feather bed, brought from the fatherland, valiantly through the narrow doorway, followed by her husband carrying his pipe and armchair, and by the others with whatever they chanced to catch up, all racing through the thick, whirling dust to the designated place of refuge.

In fact, it was the most suitable one within their reach, being really a low "dug-out" in the side of a small hill, the front or open side facing south and filled in with a sod wall, containing only a small, rough door and a tiny window, whose four small panes were thickly coated with dust.

In they rushed pell mell, causing wild discomfiture to the usual occupants of this abode, which flew, fluttering and cackling wildly, from their rude nests and perches. The father was in the act of closing the door after the last one was in, when it was pushed violently open from without and Albrecht and his mother, lacking such a shelter of their own, flung themselves among them.

Then the door, like that of the ark, was shut and braced by the father's stout shoulder. And none too soon, for the air was thick with flying debris. There were 12 of them—more souls than the ark carried, and crowded into a much smaller space, but that mattered little at such a time.

The fowl screamed, the children wailed, the big mother and little mother rocked and prayed in each other's arms, and the father bemoaned his farm and stock; but as for Vlasta, the cyclone had given her what the fates had otherwise denied, and the uproar and danger were all dominated by the joy that Albrecht was again beside her, so close that she could almost feel his deep, hurried breathing.

It was but a moment, and then, with a deafening roar, a rush of darkness, a choking breath of sulphur, the storm center was upon them.

Vlasta remembered now how it happened, but when she was able to realize anything her arms were around Albrecht's neck and he was holding her to him and murmuring words of endearment, which she felt rather than heard. "My love, my little one"—though she was as tall as he—"do not fear. I will keep thee safe—I, thine own beloved."

Vlasta's pet white pullet fluttered on their shoulders like the white-winged dove of peace. The storm went swiftly on its resistless way, leaving desolation behind.

Their houses were in ruins; their little possessions torn to pieces or scattered far and wide, even a large part of the growing crops rooted up or ground into the soil.

But their lives were spared, and they are hardy and courageous. Sod houses can soon rise again, and other crops grow green on sunlit plains, and before long in the new home there will be "sounds of revelry by night" and another merry wedding dance.—Chicago Herald.

"I am not satisfied with the new minister," said the old-fashioned deacon; "his sermons are too short."

"I could stand that," said the liberal brother, "if they were not so narrow."

"Even that might be overlooked," said the third, a studious one, "but they are hopelessly shallow."

Then they voted to make a change. —Brooklyn Life.

A Splendid Chance For You.

The Farmers' (Twice-a-Week) Tribune, of Minneapolis, is making an exceptionally liberal offer to young people generally, particularly persons who have never tried soliciting newspaper subscriptions, to aid them in getting 100,000 subscribers by Jan. 1, 1900. It is probably the most liberal proposition ever made by any newspaper in America, and it will interest many who do not ordinarily care to engage in getting subscription.

The Farmers' Tribune is the daily Minneapolis Tribune and the Evening Tribune "boiled down" for the use of people who do not have time to read a daily paper. It comes to the home twice every week, filled with the best news of the world and the Northwest, the best serial and short stories, political gossip and market reports—all the best that money will buy.

Almost everybody can get a few newspaper subscribers from among his friends and acquaintances, and with such a generous offer as made by the Farmer's Tribune it is quite worth one's while to make the effort.

Send a postal card to the Farmers' Tribune for their subscription circular and sample paper.

A Timely Publication on South Africa.

A South African War Supplement, just from the press, and a revised to date two colored map of the South African seat of war, is announced by the New York World Almanac. The large demand for the 1898 World Almanac Spanish American War Supplement has prompted the present enterprise.

The supplement is a veritable compendium of information about South African affairs. It contains a complete resume of important events leading up to the war between England and the Boers, with a description of Cape Colony, Natal and the Orange Free State and South African Republic, showing area, population, production, railways, telegraphs, transportation routes, foreign commerce, religion and climate; also the fighting strength and resources of the combatants in the struggle for supremacy in the greatest gold producing country in the world.

The 1899 World Almanac, a substantially bound book of over 500 pages, the South African War Supplement and the War Map will be sent by the New York World, postage paid, on receipt of 25 cents in silver or stamps.

The Minneapolis Journal Says

"The Burlington buffet library car is one of the most convenient ever put on wheels. Besides all the periodicals and literature provided, there are duplicate whist boards for the amusement of the traveler. Goodness only knows what is "limited" in the way of beauty, comfort and luxury on the Burlington "Limited."

Superior Dining Service.

Rev. Jesse R. Zeigler, of Monango, N. D. recently went over the Burlington on a trip to Pennsylvania. He writes: "I found the service and accomodations of your route superior to any I have known in the West. This is especially true of the dining service."

Bolivia has some odd restrictions in its franchise laws. Nobody can cast a ballot in Bolivia unless he can read and write and has an income of at least $260 a year, while bankrupts are barred from voting.

Respecting the kaiser's naval plans, the Korrespondenz Fuer Centrumsbedaetter von Berlin declares that the center will make no concessions. We judge that this settles it, if there be anything in a name.

An Illinois woman is suing a dramatic instructor because he failed to make her a star for $1,500. Some people couldn't be made stars for 1,500 times that amount. No amount of money will accomplish the impossible.

A correspondent of a St. Louis paper at Mountain Home, Tex., tells of a boy 12 years old, bitten by a rattlesnake there, who jumped 12 feet when the snake struck him. He says five men who killed the snake will certify to the measurement of the distance, and that they "all belong to the same church."

Gen. O. O. Howard, while recently the guest of a Mr. Converse in Malden, Mass., was taken by his host to see the public library of that place, where is Bicknell's great historical painting, "Lincoln at Gettysburg." It was then discovered that out of the entire group of 21 figures, the leading actors in the civil war, Gen. Howard is the only one now living.

In tearing down an old house at the corner of Evergreen avenue and Madison street in Brooklyn to make way for a new church a secret passage was found leading to a big tunnel that runs under the street for a block or more. A copy of the New York Sun of August 14, 1838, was found in the tunnel. What the tunnel was used for is not known. This is, indeed, a mysterious world.

A dispatch from Manila says that a hospital aid society has been formed there by the ladies of the military circle, and that Mrs. Lawton, the wife of Gen. Lawton, has been elected president. Contributions from this country are to be distributed. It is the intention to furnish the sick and wounded with clothing, periodicals and slippers, and to visit them personally for the purpose of cheering them up.

In former times it was generally supposed that the function of an icebox was the reception of milk, meat, butter, etc., so that such articles might be kept cool and in good condition until required for use. Several recent happenings in Chicago, however, have clearly demonstrated that an icebox is really intended as a suitable place in which to put the bartender while the saloon cash register is being neatly emptied.

The "Only Woman's Page" of the New York Tribune states that a society leader of Cleveland, O., has started a crusade to induce women to wear men's clothes on horseback, and that this new proposition has met with great favor among those of the fair sex who have long been wanting to appear in high hats and ride on men's saddles. That is a great deal more sensible innovation than it would be for men to attempt to wear women's clothes on horseback.

The reported invention of a new method of manufacturing tin plate by which the process will be shortened from six days to a little more than an hour may have very important results. The president of a new tin plate company and an experienced manufacturer says that it will reduce the cost of the product at least $10 a ton. This would enable new process manufactories to drive all the present tin plate trusts out of business and completely revolutionize the industry.

A spark from a Burlington locomotive fired the old civil war blockhouse on the Chariton river, 15 miles west of Macon, Mo., and the historic old place was burned down. For many years this blockhouse has stood as a grim reminder of the civil war, and it was marked with hundreds of bullets. It was one of the thirteen blockhouses erected on the Hannibal & St. Joe road during the early part of the war to protect the bridges across the larger streams from roving bands of bushwhackers. One by one the old scars are being erased, and it is well.

Philologists are in the midst of a discussion as to what word can be coined that will take the place of automobile. A shorter word is said to be needed, and the word makers are trying to supply the want. But when it is all over the old word will probably stay. It may be a trifle long and awkward, but the public is now so thoroughly used to it that it will be exceedingly difficult to bring about a change. "Telegraph," "telephone," "bicycle" and other similar words were objected to upon the same ground as "automobile," but they have managed to survive.

If the disease and plague epidemics which are now terrifying the countries of the world continue in their deadly work the problem of excess population will be solved. The latest epidemic to assume great proportions is reported from Japan. Out of 50,000 cases of dysentery in September 12,000 persons have died, and with the ending of October 100,000 cases were reported. The disease is sweeping across the island like a tidal wave. We, in this fair and healthful country of ours, do not realize what it is to be in the throes of a real epidemic or plague.

Colonel Hayes and Major Coleman captured Aguinaldo's secretary in Corranglan, with an escort of 175 bolomen, on his way to the province of Nueva Visaya.

The United States cruiser Charleston, which was patrolling the northern coast of Luzon, was wrecked on a reef Tuesday, Nov. 7. All the men and officers escaped. The Charleston has been in Asiatic waters more than a year. She was one of the first vessels to be sent to Manila after the destruction of the Spanish fleet by Admiral Dewey, the navy department utilizing her for the purpose of sending ammunition and other supplies for the Asiatic station.

TROOPS ENTER TARLAC.

Meet with No Opposition—Bamban Captured—Aguinaldo Said to Be Surrounded.

Manila, Nov. 13.—Col. Bell's regiment and a small force of cavalry entered Tarlac Sunday night without opposition. Where Aguinaldo, with his army, and the so-called government have fled, is a mystery.

Manila, Nov. 13.—Gen. MacArthur took Bamban Saturday. This is supposed to be the strongest position held by the Filipinos except Tarlac. The brief accounts of the engagement received indicate that the rebels fought according to their recent tactics, retreating after firing a few volleys. One officer of the Thirty-sixth regiment is the only American reported killed.

Manila, Nov. 14.—Gen. Young is supposed to have reached San Nicolas, about 30 miles east of Dagupan, but his wagons are far behind.

Col. Hayes has captured Aguinaldo's secretary and Maj. Coleman is in Carrangolan, with an escort of 175 bolomen, on his way to the province of Nueva Visaya. The son of Gen. Llaneras and his family are prisoners. The general barely escaped.

The correspondent of the press with Gen. Young telegraphs from San Jose that Aguinaldo did not escape to the northeast. He and his army, the correspondent adds, are surrounded. His last orders to the Filipino commander at San Jose were to hold San Jose and Carranglan at all costs.

Maj. Marsh's battalion of the Thirty-third regiment, which includes many old rough riders from the southwest, attacked 400 Filipinos three miles from San Fabian, on the Dagupan road, on Friday. The Filipinos had been firing at the outposts. Maj. Marsh found them intrenched across the river. Their trenches had been made after Gen. Wheaton's arrival. Maj. Marsh charged them, a portion of his battalion fording the stream and part crossing by the bridge. When the Americans approached, the Filipinos, afraid to show their heads, poked their rifles above the trench and fired blindly. Maj. Marsh's force pursued them for a mile. Fourteen dead Filipinos were left behind, including the lieutenant colonel commanding on the field. Two Americans were wounded.

CRUISER WRECKED.

The Charleston Strikes Reef on Northwest Coast of Luzon—Officers and Crew Saved.

Manila, Nov. 14.—The United States cruiser Charleston, which has been patrolling the northern coast of Luzon, was wrecked on a reef off the northwest coast Tuesday, November 7. All on board were saved. The Charleston ran aground near Vigan on a hidden reef, with 35 fathoms of water on both sides. She worked her machinery for two days and nights in trying to get afloat.

A typhoon arising, the crew were compelled to take to their boats and seek refuge on a small island five miles away. The natives are friendly. Lieut. McDonald and a number of sailors put off in a small boat and reached the Callao, which brought them to Manila. The gunboat Helena has been dispatched to bring away the crew.

Lieut. McDonald describes the Charleston when he last saw her as hard and fast aground, with her bottom badly stove and well out of water.

The cruiser Charleston, which was built in San Francisco, in 1888, had a displacement of 3,730 tons, was 312 feet 7 inches in length, 46 feet 2 inches in beam, and 21 feet 8 inches in draught. She was of steel, having two propellers, one funnel and two masts with military tops. She had the following armament: Two eight-inch guns, six six-inch guns, four six-pounders, two three-pounders, six one-pounders, two machine guns and one light gun, with four torpedo tubes. She had a complement of 306 men. The naval register issued at the beginning of the year gives as her commander Capt. William H. Whiting, and her lieutenant commander was Gotfred Blockinger.

LOST AT SEA.

Belgian Steamer Founders Near Island of Alderney—Many of the Crew Perish.

London, Nov. 14.—On Friday night the Belgian steamer Belgique, from Antwerp for Alexandria, foundered off the Casquet rocks near the island of Alderney, the scene of the tragic disaster which last March befell the London & Southwestern Railway company's passenger steamer Stella. The night was stormy. A boat was launched with 16 men, but five of these died of exhaustion and three others were drowned in the endeavor of the ship St. Kilda to rescue them. Eighteen persons, including the captain, out of a total crew of 26, are believed to have been drowned.

Corean Minister of War Dead.

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 14.—Gen. William McE. Dye, minister of war to the king of Corea and ex-chief of police in Washington, D. C., died here Monday night of diarrhea, a disease from which he has been suffering for several years. Gen. Dye, owing to ill health, left Seoul, Corea, on May 5 for home. He arrived in San Francisco June 27, and after remaining there several days came to Muskegon. At Chicago he was joined by his wife. Since his return here he has been confined to his bed. His death was unexpected.

War on Illegal Fishermen.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 14.—The largest haul of illegally used fishing tackle ever made in Wisconsin was that completed Monday in Lake Winnebago by special wardens. Forty thousand feet of deep-water gill nets and eight miles of set lines comprised the seizure. Two alleged illegal fishermen, Charles and August Lang, were taken after a display of firearms. Fish weighing 1,575 pounds were in the nets and were sold as provided by law.

Will Pay All.

Marion, Ind., Nov. 14.—William E. Heal, the Grant county treasurer, who disappeared from Marion October 5, 1897, returned home Monday after an absence of over two years. When he left Marion it was disclosed that he was an embezzler of nearly $18,000, of which $14,000 was Grant county funds. Upon arrival here he was arrested. Mr. Heal says he has returned to face the penalty and to pay every cent of his shortage.

BOERS SUFFER DEFEAT.

Their Guns Are Silenced After Four Hours' Fighting Near Ladysmith.

London, Nov. 14.—A special dispatch from Durban, Natal, dated Thursday, November 9, evening, says:

"Native runners who have just arrived here from the Drakensberg district report that the Boers suffered a severe defeat at Ladysmith this morning. The Boer guns were silenced after four hours' fighting, during which the Boer losses were heavy. No details have been received."

The simultaneous attacks on Ladysmith, Mafeking and Kimberley, which were opened Thursday, manifest full recognition by the Boers of the fact that every day lessens their chances of a successful onslaught on any of the three British strongholds. Gen. Joubert's chances of reaching Pietermaritzburg can be said to have vanished.

There is no doubt that, from the British point of view, the general situation in Natal is rapidly improving. Nearly 8,000 troops reached South Africa during the last 48 hours, and by the end of the week from 6,000 to 7,000 more will be added to the British strength in Natal. These will probably be pushed forward to Estcourt, bringing the British force there up to 10,000 men and making a general attack on Ladysmith by Gen. Joubert very hazardous.

London, Nov. 13.—The war office Sunday morning issued the following dispatch from Cape Town, November 12, noon: Col. Gough, at Orange river, reports that during the reconnoissance of 15 miles to a point nine miles west of Belmont on November 10 the officers of the patrol first came on a Boer position taken upon a great semicircular ridge standing out into a plateau. They endeavored to make the Boers develop their strength by demonstrating with two squadrons of the Ninth lanciers and a field battery on the left wing, with 1½ companies of mounted infantry on the right wing and with artillery in the middle of the plateau, out of the infantry fire. The enemy began by firing at our cavalry from a gun at the north end. As the cavalry, in open order, began to circle around them the hills seemed full of sharpshooters. The mounted infantry endeavored to outflank the enemy's left, in order to discover the lager, coming under a heavy and unexpected fire from a few skirmishers.

Col. C. E. Keith-Falconer, of the Northumberland fusileers, was killed. Lieuts. Beran and Hall, of the same regiment, and Lieut. C. C. Wood and two privates, of the North Lancashire regiment, were wounded. It is said that Lieut. Wood died of his wounds.

One White and Five Navajo Indians Killed During Attempt to Arrest One of the Latter.

Flagstaff, A. T., Nov. 13.—One white and five Navajo Indians killed, two whites and one Navajo wounded was the result of an attempt of a deputy sheriff to arrest a Navajo Saturday ten miles south of Walnut Station, news of which has just reached here. Deputy Hogan and three other white men attempted to execute a warrant on a party of Navajos accused of stealing horses. The posse entered a brush corral, where the Navajos were, when the Indians made resistance and a shot was fired at Hogan, striking him in the back, he at the same time being in a tussle with one Navajo who was trying to shoot him. Hogan drew his pistol and killed his antagonist. The fight became general and ended when the ammunition of the white men was exhausted. The result is that five Navajos are dead and one wounded. William Montgomery was shot through the heart. Hogan was wounded three times, but not seriously.

Three Men Steal $30,000 Worth of Diamonds from a Jewelry Store in Cleveland, O.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—Thirty thousand dollars' worth of diamonds were stolen Monday afternoon from the store of Sigler Bros. at No. 354 Euclid avenue. Three men entered the store, which is on the second floor. One of the trio stood at the elevator cage and the other two entered the office of Mr. Sigler. One of the strangers engaged the attention of one of the clerks and the other talked to Mr. Sigler, at whose side was a black box, four by ten inches, containing the diamonds. Mr. Sigler says his attention was detracted for a moment, and upon turning to his supposed customer all had fled and the box of jewelry was gone. The police have no clew save a description furnished by Mr. Sigler.

To Name Place of Next Convention.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—After a consultation between Senator M. A. Hanna and Mr. Charles F. Dick, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the national republican committee, the latter announced that it had been decided to call the committee together on Friday, December 15 next, at Washington, to name the time and place for holding the next national republican convention. The session of the committee will continue for two days. The following named cities are mentioned as probable applicants for the national convention next year: Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Denver, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Buffalo.

Found Dead in His Cell.

Milwaukee, Nov. 13.—Ransom Wiltse, the veteran who murdered Mrs. Maria Edgar last June by placing poison in a can of beer, and who was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment on Saturday last, was found dead in his cell at the county jail Sunday. A post mortem was held, the physicians deciding that death was due to natural causes.

Three Perish by Fire.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 14.—A special from Detour, this county, says that on Sunday the three sons of Mrs. Kate Orr, aged eight, six and five years, were burned to death in a fire which originated in their home. The mother, a widow, was away at the time, the boys being in charge of their grandmother, who, however, escaped unharmed.

Santo Domingo, Nov. 13.—Congress has proclaimed Jimines president of Santo Domingo and Vasquez vice president. They will enter into office December 1, when the constitution will undergo a change. The country is quiet and business is improving.

DEWEY TAKES A BRIDE.

The Hero of Manila Quietly Weds Mrs. Hazen at Washington—Couple Leave for New York.

Washington Nov. 10. — Admiral George Dewey and Mrs. Mildred M. Hazen were married quietly at the rectory of St. Paul's Catholic church in V street, near Fifteenth, this city, shortly before ten o'clock Thursday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James F. Mackin, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Joseph H. Foley, assistant pastor, and Rev. Sidney Hurlbut. The ceremony was of the simplest character, according to the rites of the Catholic church, and the only witnesses besides the officiating clergymen were Mrs. Washington McLean and Mrs. Ludlow, mother and sister respectively of the bride and Lieut. Caldwell, Admiral Dewey's secretary.

The ceremony was performed with the ring, according to the nuptial rites of the Catholic church.

Including the address of Father Mackin, it consumed less than five minutes. Father Mackin was the first to hail the bride as Mrs. Dewey. Congratulations and felicitations followed, and the wedding party drove directly from the rectory to the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. McLean, where a wedding breakfast was served.

New York, Nov. 10.—Admiral and Mrs. Dewey arrived in New York Thursday night from Washington. They were driven direct from the West Twenty-third street ferry to the Waldorf-Astoria, where they are the guests of Mr. Boldt, the proprietor of that hotel. The admiral and his bride did not register.

PRICES GO UP.

A Noteworthy Feature of Trade Which Is Due to the Greatest Consuming Demand Ever Known.

New York, Nov. 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The most noteworthy feature of the time is the rise in prices. Cotton rose on Wednesday to 7.21 cents with much excitement, putting the price 2½ cents higher than it was a year ago, and yet it was still higher in September, 1897. Wool has risen relatively more, about ten per cent. in two weeks, and the average of 100 quotations by Coates Bros. is higher than it has been at any other time since May, 1892. Pig iron has risen further, $25 being quoted for anthracite No. 1, the highest price since January, 1883; but hides are at the highest point since January, 1873, having risen all the year with very little reaction. Prices of products have not correspondingly advanced. Leather and boots and shoes were higher in November, 1895, than they are now; cotton goods were higher in January, 1896; woolen goods in July, 1894, and even the products of iron, though greatly advanced, are not as high as they were in January, 1890. Such wide discrepancies in advance cause much embarrassment, but are the natural characteristic of a rise which is mainly due, not to concerted action in any trade, but to the pressure of a consuming demand, the greatest ever known, which for the time exceeds supplies, though very unequally. Its results begin to justify the conservative feeling which finds expression in many branches of business.

"Failures for the week have been 157 in the United States, against 211 last year, and 23 in Canada, against 26 last year."

BATTLE IN VENEZUELA

Porto Cabello Surrendered to Castro's Forces After a Long and Bloody Struggle.

Porto Cabello, Venezuela, Nov. 13.—Gen. Paredes, a former commander in the army of ex-President Andrade, who had refused the demand made upon him by Gen. Cipriano Castro and the de facto authorities to surrender the town, even when this was reenforced by the request of the British, American, French, German and Dutch commanders, surrendered Sunday morning at ten o'clock after a terrible battle. The aspect of the city is one of ruin and devastation, and it is estimated that upwards of 650 persons were killed or wounded during the fighting. Dr. Braisted, of the United States cruiser Detroit, and the other surgeons of the various warships in the harbor, are ministering to the wants of the wounded.

Acquitted.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—After a trial lasting three weeks Hary Hammond, a tailor, was acquitted of the charge of attempting to murder John T. Shayne, a prominent merchant of this city. Last spring Hammond shot Shayne in the cafe of the Auditorium Annex, where Shayne was at lunch with Mrs. Hammond, the divorced wife of the tailor. Much evidence was introduced in the trial to show that Shayne had rendered Hammond's home unpleasant.

Prices of Lumber Raised.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 14.—White pine lumber manufacturers have agreed upon a uniform mark-up in prices, taking effect at once. The advance is 50 cents per thousand in some grades of dimensions and one dollar a thousand on sume grades of uppers. Notice is given that all grades not advanced now will be shortly, making a uniform advance of one dollar per thousand all around on all grades.

Fatal Collision.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 13.—A double-headed Pittsburgh & Lake Erie freight train of 55 loaded coal cars crashed into the caboose of another train at McKee's Rock Sunday night and piled the wreckage up high. Three men were in the caboose. One of them was taken out dead. Another had one foot crushed and both legs broken and a third was so badly injured that he may die.

New Treaty with Spain.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The Spanish minister, Duke d'Arcos, was among the callers at the state department Thursday. It is understood that the negotiations for the new treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation have opened at Madrid, and while not directly participating, the authorities here are exchanging views on the various features of the treaty.

Sent to Prison.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 10.—In the superior court Thursday Lewis Warner, aged 60, who wrecked the Hampshire county national bank and the Hampshire savings bank by embezzling $500,000, was sentenced to a term in state prison of not more than 12 nor less than nine years, the first day to be in solitary confinement.

Fire in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 13.—Fire broke out at six o'clock Sunday evening in the Bradley block on Bank street, destroying the upper two of the seven stories. The damage done amounts to $100,000, chiefly by water.

SOCIAL DELIGHTS.

What One Experiences Sometimes While Engaging in the Game of Whist.

This is what a Detroit whist player is willing to take oath took place at a party where he was doing his level best for a prize:

The large lady, his partner, gave the right sleeve of her shirt waist a hitch, muttered under her breath and then said to the other lady: "Look at that, now. It's all askew and so annoying. I don't care who you go to or how much you pay, it's always the same way. Did you signal for trump, or was it the other hand."

"That sleeve lost us three tricks," continued the complainant. Then the other lady wanted a recipe for making chow-chow pickleilly or something of that sort. Of course, my accommodating partner went right to reeling it off, playing a king to my ace when she had a three spot, revoked on another suit, led right into the enemy's strength, and then had the nerve to ask me if I saw anywhere that she could have bettered her play. Say, I wanted to boil her in oil.

"I tried to keep from turning red, saying anything sarcastic or swearing a little, and succeeded reasonably well.

"Then she went to telling about a new hat her neighbor had bought. She took two five spots at a heavy cost, and then consoled me with a half-screaming explanation that she had been playing pedro the night before and had lapsed into it again without thinking. I never behaved better in my life, feigned sudden illness, got away and made things blue for two blocks. After I was gone she told the opposition that I played a very stupid game."—Detroit Free Press.

FREE GOVERNMENT LANDS.

There are still thousands of acres of government lands in the states of Washington and Oregon, also prairie and timber lands near railroad and water communication that can be bought for $3.00 per acre; and there are no cyclones, blizzards, long winters or real hot summers, no failure of crops, but always good markets. If you wish to raise grain, principally, or fruit, or the finest stock on earth, you can find locations in these two states where you can do this to perfection. If you are looking for employment and wish to secure steady work at good wages, I can help you to do this. I have no land for sale, but if you want information about this write me at 199 E. THE ELECTIONS

AND THEIR BEARING ON THE ISSUES OF 1900.

Unbiased Review—Ohio's Significant Minority Contrasted With the Magnificent Nebraska Victory — Imperialism the Great, Burning Issue—Mr. Bryan's Over-Towering Personal Strength. Hon. C. A. Towne's Conspicuous Part. State Political Points—Anti-Imperialism Organized in Minnesota on Strictly Non-Partisan Lines — More Trouble About That Republican "Orgin"—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Nov. 13, 1899.

An important review of election results is in every way encouraging to the reform forces. Such unbiased review is necessary in order to counteract the usual misrepresentation of the facts, which in this case has been done with unusual ingenuity. This will appear in the following reviews of the four principal states.

Beginning with Ohio. Our friends, the enemy, made the comparisons with certain former years when the state had gone Democratic, or cast the smallest Republican majorities, such years as those preceding presidential years, or otherwise known as "off years." Does anybody believe this was an "off year," when vital questions were up, and especially that of endorsement of the Ohio president. Therefore the comparison must be with later or Republican years. Nash has something like 50,000 plurality, whereas Bushnell, the present Republican governor received 67,000 when elected two years ago. Then the vote was some 200,000 less than has now been cast. The change against the Republicans has therefore been enormous. But further. Two years ago there was but about 23,000 minority or third party vote, wheras now Jones has received fully 100,000. This is estimated to be at least three-fourths from the Democrats, in the large cities. All of the Jones vote is to be added to the McLean vote on the protest against Hannaism and Imperialism. Jones' campaign was distinctly anti-McKinley, and in his address since election, he hopes that what he has done will contribute to forcing a halt in the wicked and un-American Philippine policy. The result, therefore, is that instead of winning a victory in Ohio, the McKinley administration is snowed under by more than the Nash plurality over McLean—or at least 60,000 to 70,000 votes!

Take Nebraska: All reports agree that in the closing and effective parts of the campaign, the chief figures of which were Mr. Bryan and Mr. Towne, the issue turned almost entirely upon the administration's policy. Of course endorsement of Mr. Bryan and his position upon all issues was co-incident to it, but Mr. Towne himself states that the question of imperialism was the burning one to which the public never tired of listening. The magnificent majority there, mounting up to almost 20,000, is the increase over the meagre fusion majority for governor last year of 2,721, and over the 13,000 given Mr. Bryan in '96.

Entirely misleading is the statement that the Republicans made little effort in that state. The testimony is that they made the fight of their lives there. There was a schoolhouse campaign made all over the state. Unprecedented amounts of money were sent there and everyihing done, in the Republican power, to weaken Mr. Bryan's hold upon his home state. The victory is greater and more magnificent on that account, which is beyond question.

As to Kentucky: Misleading comparisons have been made when Kentucky was Democratic, going back to 1875. It is deemed a Republican victory, that in an unprecedented factional fight, the Republicans may have elected a governor, though that is not yet certain, but if so, they have merely succeeded through Democratic division in maintaining what McKinley secured in '96. But the fact is, there is nothing discouraging in Kentucky situation from the fact that both of the warring Democratic factions are pledged to Mr. Bryan and the regular organization next year. It is quite sufficient if, as is believed to be the case, the legislature is all right for Senator Blackburn.

New Jersey, if 20,000 Republican, but reaffirms her position as a Republican state, since she went 16,750 Republican in '98, and gave McKinley only 87,000 in '96. Let her go and stay in welcome, with her whole trust brood.

With regard to Maryland. Here again misleading comparisons are made. The comparison must be with the recent gubernatorial election, when the Republicans carried the state. The fact that the Democrats have this year exceeded 15,000 shows that Maryland has returned to the fold to stay.

The same comments would apply to all the other principal states. But it is unnecessary to itemize. New York has done no more than to return the small Republican plurality given Roosevelt in '98. National issues were not fought there to any extent, yet the 17,000 or 18,000 plurality this year must be compared with the McKinley 200,000 in '96. Massachusetts gives 65,000 this year, against the 83,000 given the present governor in '98, while in Boston, where the imperialist question was made a distinct issue, the Republicans were routed horse, foot and dragoons.

It was gratifying to the friends of Hon. C. A. Towne that he was in the tremendous campaign made in Nebraska. They well know that he did his full part. Mr. Towne himself says that the meetings there were such as he never before saw in a campaign. The people came many miles through the country, and imperialism was the theme that most deeply interested them. He pays a great tribute to the intelligence of the people of Mr. Bryan's state and their loyalty to their beloved statesman is almost one of reverence. As above stated, the Republicans made their utmost efforts to save Nebraska, hoping thereby to save themselves from the campaign they dreaded so much next year, with Mr. Bryan at the head of the united reform forces.

It is learned from Mr. Towne that Mr. Bryan has stood the ordeal of this tremendous campaign and his labors of the past year, very well, but that upon the earnest solicitation of friends, Mr. Bryan will take a surcease for a time, and will probably spend the winter quietly in some portion of the south, probably Texas.

The Democratic national committee is called to meet November 20, at Chicago. It is hoped that active work for next year's campaign will then be inaugurated.

The organization of the Anti-Imperialist League in Minnesota has been an event of the week, Hon. Edwin Burritt Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the National League, Chicago, having been here for that purpose. Mr. Smith gave very encouraging report of progress of the anti-imperialists, stating that within the past 40 or 50 days, upwards of 60 branches of the league have been organized. The national name is American Anti-Imperialist League. The Boston, or parent league, has become the New England branch of the American. It is probable that the Northwestern states will be organized into the Northwestern League, the headquarters of which would be at Minneapolis or St. Paul.

The Minneapolis anti-imperialists will soon hold a public mass meeting which will probably be addressed by Prof. Freeman of Wisconsin university, with other speakers of note. This meeting, however, will in no way conflict with the coming Jackson Day banquet and mass meeting under the auspices of the Young Men's League of Democratic clubs which Mr. Bryan will attend. In fact the anti-imperialists are to act entirely independent of partisan politics.

Some of our Republican friends are troubled about the bureau suggestion of election "earthquakes." Well, Ohio thrown into a 60,000 to 70,000 minority is one, Maryland reclaimed, another, while if Nebraska is not an earthquake, what is it? But after all the real, surething earthquake will be next year, when Bryan goes in.

And, regarding funerals. There's Hanna's. Good bye old dollar mark. You will be missed, but not mourned.

To be or not to be Eustaced, is the question Bob Evans is considering.

A glance at eastern newspaper news suggests that there is not so very great difference between gold newspaper prosperity and that of 55-cent wheat and 5-cent cotton. In Philadelphia the old Philadelphia Record is about to go for $1,500,000 under the hammer, when its value was never placed lower than $5,000,000—part of the Singerly estate. There is a receiver for the Utica, N. Y., Herald, also suspension of publication of Harpers' Round Table. A distressingly dull market is reported for jokes for the funny papers—significantly appropriate. There is an oppressive boycott of the New York Sun by the trades labor unions, and application of The Sun to the courts for relief by the injunction route. This, with 20 per cent money on Wall street, makes a "public" situation quite up to the gold standard notch.

The recent national bank statement throws light on 20 to 40 per cent money in the channels where money should be plenty. For while loans and discounts increased $210,000,000 in the year ending September, '99, individual deposits increased $420,000,000. That is, money money went into hiding in the banks, rather than into business.

John Sherman was the author of the anti-trust law, and what did the Hanna party do to John Sherman?

The number of those who dispute Governor Lind's proposition that the volunteer soldier carries a conscience as well as a gun, are growing beautifully less.

After two short years of the gold standard, Chile cries "Hold, enough." Curtis, in the Chicago Record, says that wages have decreased from 20 to 35 per cent, with a corresponding reduction in the purchasing power of incomes of the entire population of Chile. Valparaiso is on the front edge of a panic, the same as almost constantly confronts Wall street.

President McKinley in 1899:—"I confidently believe congress will provide for these people (Philippines) a government that will bring them blessings and advance their material interests."

King George III. in 1776:—"One parliament will provide for these colonists (American) a government that will fully protect all their interests."

And what did George Washington say?

Grover Cleveland, on McKinley Imperialism:

"The use of power in the extension of American institutions presents an inconsistency whose evils and dangerous tendency ought to be apparent to all who love these institutions and understand their motives and purposes."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

WEIGHING OF GRAIN.

State Weighmaster Edward O'Brien has prepared a report covering the crop year ending Sept. 1. This report shows that during the year there were weighed 202,293 cars, and that the revenues of the office were $34,485.41. The expenditures were $57,448.68, the deficiency of $22,958.27. The total number of bushels of grain weighed was 160,940,006. Of this amount 120,763,937 bushels were wheat; 9,361,464 corn; 21,518,813 oats; 1,264,833 rye; 1,932,486 barley, and 5,496,493 flax.

Since the creation of the state weighing service in 1885 the fee has ranged from 30 cents down to 15 cents per car, and for the past two years or more the latter figure has prevailed. Up to January, 1897, when the fee was reduced to 15 cents, the department was self-sustaining. The 15-cent figure has been inadequate to meet the requirements. On Sept. 1 the fee was advanced to 20 cents, and on Nov. 1 to 25 cents. The result of this increase was a deficiency of but $16.99 for September. October will show a surplus of about $350.

In the past five years the average weight of a car load of grain has increased from 625 bushels to an average of about 850 bushels. One car recently received and weighed at the Pillsbury "A" mill contained 1,523 bushels.

REDUCED RAILWAY RATES.

The annual report of the Great Northern railway shows a total trackage in the system of 5,850 miles, an increase of 209 miles since the last report. It was estimated in the report of last year that the reduction of wheat rates on account of the opening of the New Fosston and Duluth line, would reduce the revenue about $1,000,000. This year's report shows the reduction to be a little over $875,000, the average reduction amounting to one and one-third cents per bushel, which went to the profit of the farmer. There was a general reduction in all rates, but the increase in business was sufficient to carry the total earnings of the fiscal year to nearly three millions in excess of last year, most of which was used in the betterment of the line. Nothing perhaps better illustrates the growth of the territory traversed by the road than the increase in the amount of mail carried, which exceeds by 50 per cent the total earnings and weight of four years ago. About the 15th inst., the company will open up its new line from Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, to Port Hill, on Kootenai river, in British Columbia, which will give steamer connections at Nelson with the line from Spokane.

A BOLD STROKE.

George Stark, late from Wahpeton, N. D., made a daring attempt last night, at the point of a revolver, to recover some money he lost in a faro game in Minneapolis. Had he not collided with a passer-by, in Postoffice alley, his capture would have been doubtful.

Stark arrived in town a week ago from North Dakota, where he had been working as a farm hand, and immediately began to buck the faro game with rather poor success. He visited the gambling house on First avenue every day, losing continually, until, becoming desperate by his run of ill-luck, he determined to make a bold strike for his money.

He presented a revolver to the dealer's head, and taking $235 from the drawer, skipped out. He was arrested and the money secured by the officers. When arraigned for trial no one appeared against him. The money was returned to him and he was released.

A MAGNIFICENT GIFT.

One hundred thousand dollars in one lump is a vast sum, and with it much good can be done. With this idea in view Mrs. John S. Pillsbury, through her husband, former governor of the state of Minnesota, yesterday presented the Home for Children and Aged Women in Minneapolis, with that amount of money.

While it had been understood by the board of directors that Mrs. Pillsbury was intending to make a present to the home, the magnitude of the gift staggered even the most sanguine, and after the presentation speech had been delivered expressions of surprise were heard on all sides.

ATTEMPTED HOLDUP.

During a football game at Duluth, between the Ironwood, Mich., and Duluth high schools, two men made an attempt to hold up Rene Hugo, a high school boy, who was selling tickets. He put up a plucky fight, and resisted them until they became frightened and fled without getting anything. They struck him in the head as they left with some heavy implement, and he was unconscious for a time. The game resulted 18 to 6 in favor of Ironwood.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Jacob Walz, a butcher in Winona, had a close call to being gored to death by a domesticated deer at his home. The animal was a stag and had shown signs of viciousness.

Carl Johnson, who owns and operates a threshing machine, was seriously scalded at Nadine by the boiler of his engine exploding. Little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Wallis McNalan was thrown from his wagon near Plain View, and had several of his ribs broken, one of which pierced his lungs.

Gov. Lind has designated Justices Collins and Canty to act with Attorney General Douglas as the court of claims to adjust the Twin City Jockey club's claim against the state, as provided by the last legislature. The claim is in the neighborhood of $35,000, though the original cost of the grand stand was above $100,000.

Dr. W. B. Green, of St. Paul, while extracting shells from his rifle at Nickerson, accidentally shot and killed a lumberman named Freeney.

A new creamery, said to be the best equipped in the state, is about ready for business.

Nelson Rust, of Itasca State Park, has been indicted for killing Wm. McMullen in October, 1898. Rust claims the deed was accidental while hunting.

Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Williams tried to settle their differences in the streets of Hardwick. They fought until separated, both being badly disfigured.

Robbers stole $160 from Ole Osmondson, while he was sleeping in a hotel at Jasper.

The German-Methodist church of Minneapolis was slightly damaged by fire while services were being held. A panic ensued, during which a young girl was either crushed or overcome by smoke. She was carried out of the church, and recovered as soon as she got fresh air.

A local wholesale hardware house at Duluth received a train of fifteen cars loaded with bicycles for next year's trade. It is claimed such an order of bicycles has never been equaled in the Northwest.

At Spicer, a fifteen-year-old son of F. O. Swanson while feeding a corn husker had his right arm caught in the knives and mangled so badly that amputation was necessary.

The sale of the Cass Lake town site was attended by a large number of buyers from various sections of the state, and bidding on the 40 on which the town is located was exceptionally lively, bringing over $10,000.

POSTAL STATISTICS.

Report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster Bristow—Present Number of Post Offices, 75,000.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General John L. Bristow, in his annual report, announces that during the past fiscal year 14,634 postmasters were appointed, 12,523 being fourth-class postmasters and the remainder presidential. Concerning the policy of removals, the report says:

"The policy of former administrations of removing fourth-class postmasters for political reasons, regardless of length of service, resulted in the changing of postmasters in all the important fourth-class offices early in those administrations. The four years term of the great majority of fourth-class postmasters, therefore, expired early in this administration, which accounts for the greatly decreased number of appointments made during the fiscal year as compared with the preceding one. Special attention to disciplinary measures and the general improvement of the service has therefore been permitted."

There were 2,925 post offices established and 1,565 discontinued. At the close of the year, the total number of post offices in the country was an even 75,000. The department has discontinued a number of private post offices, which it has been advised were conducted for the sole benefit of some private institution; not only depriving the government of its legitimate revenues, but giving undue advantage over competing firms in postal facilities. Extension of rural free delivery necessitated discontinuing 80 post offices, applications to restore a number of which are now pending.

About 4,000 more post offices were inspected than in any previous year. Registered mail lost averaged one piece in every 25,980 handled. There were 1,679 postal arrests during the year, including 119 postmasters, 31 assistant postmasters, 41 post office clerks, 21 railway postal clerks, 34 letter carriers and 361 post office burglars. Of all these, 659 were convicted and 629 cases are still pending in the courts. The report says the practicability of transporting the mails over the proposed all-American route to the Yukon in Alaska is a problem yet to be determined, and a recent inspection found so few settlers in this interior country that only one post office was established.

Among the recommendations are for authority for inspectors to take out search warrants whenever necessary; for payment of expenses of various authorities in arrest, and detention of post office prisoners; an appropriation for constructing inspectors look-outs in offices wherever deemed necessary; an amendment to the interstate commerce law to prohibit telegraph and express companies or employes from abetting in green goods swindles, lotteries or similar schemes; legislation prohibiting loose pouching of circulars and other small mail matter, and providing a larger newspaper wrapper than is now issued.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

The Strained Relations Between the Two Countries Apparently Becoming More Marked.

London, Nov. 13.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says: An uneasy feeling regarding the relations of Russia and Japan is spreading here. There is no doubt that Japan is practically allied with China, despite the degradation which the empress dowager inflicted upon the Chinese envoys to Japan on their recent return. This was merely a tactical move, with a view to appeasing Russia. A large Russian fleet intends wintering in Nagasaki harbor, and some remonstrance by Japan is probable. Prince Henry of Prussia, the commander of the German squadron in the North Pacific, is watching the progress of events. He recently declared in the course of a conversation that the Japanese army was in splendid condition from the European point of view.

London, Nov. 13.—Hurry orders have been received by the builders of the Japanese battleship now in process of construction at Clyde Bank, to complete the vessel as speedily as possible. The new ship, which will be one of the largest afloat, is to be finished by January 1, 1900. It is believed that these instructions are the result of increasing tension between Japan and Russia.

Natural Gas Giving Out.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 11.—Natural gas is rapidly failing in the north part of the Indiana field. The Dieterich syndicate has given notice that it will abandon its plants in the smaller towns. Five towns in this county are left to freeze, and nearly 2,000 families will eat cold victuals and shiver over fireless stoves. Coal cannot be had at any price, and there is no wood in the market. The syndicate controls the gas plants in over 20 cities and towns in various parts of the state. In Indianapolis the syndicate has shut off all factories and hotels as well as public buildings.

War on Prize Fights.

New York, Nov. 11.—Prize fights in New York state are doomed. Gov. Roosevelt has started a crusade against them and will force through the legislature a repeal of the Horton law and the enactment of a new statute prohibiting pugilistic contests. He will if necessary make the matter a party issue. At Albany Friday he declared that no more prize fights would disgrace New York after January 1, 1900.

Poison in the Pies.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 13.—Two people are dead and a third is seriously ill in Kansas City, Kan., from eating mince pies apparently containing ptomaine poisoning. The pies were eaten at dinner Sunday evening. George W. Hoffman, aged 72 years, a carpenter, and his son-in-law, John Salmon, aged 45 years, died after hours of agony. Mrs. Hoffman is critically ill.

Are Wasting Their Efforts.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Postmaster General Smith has been notified by Director of Posts Vaille, at Manila, that large numbers of circular letters from business firms in the states are being addressed to the Philippine provinces, and that under present conditions it is a waste of time and money to send mail for points outside of Manila, Cavite, Iloilo, Cebu, Jolo and Negros islands.

Victors at Football.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Results of the leading football games played Saturday: Pennsylvania, 11; Michigan, 10. Wisconsin, 23; Illinois, 0. Chicago, 76; Northwestern, 0. Harvard, 11; Dartmouth, 0. Yale, 42; Pennsylvania State, 0. Princeton, 12; Carlisle, 0. Columbia, 16; West Point, 0. Lafayette, 6; Cornell, 5. Beloit, 5; Minnesota, 5. Brown, 38; Massachusetts, 0.

Says Queen May Abdicate.

Frankfort-on-Main, Nov. 11.—According to a London dispatch to a Frankfort paper, it is quietly rumored in the immediate entourage of Queen Victoria that her majesty has determined to abdicate the throne, and that the first definite announcement of her intention will be made during the coming visit of Emperor William to England.

Tea Poisoning.

Victims of tea poisoning are becoming alarmingly prevalent. Women demand the life and variety of Health, and instead of doing it naturally by building up their systems they resort to tea. They should take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters instead. By strengthening the digestive organs this brings beauty and good spirits. It tones up the nerves, drives away the blues, regulates the bowels and cures all forms of dyspepsia. All druggists sell it.

"I feel it my duty to write and let you know what your medicine, '5 Drops,' has done for me. I have had rheumatism about 18 years, but was able to be up most of the time, until a year ago last May, when I was taken down and not able to move about. About six weeks ago I saw your advertisement and wrote for a sample bottle. After taking a few doses, it did me so much good that I ordered some more for myself and friends and in every case it has done wonder, and given perfect satisfaction. Dr. Woodliff, my family physician, who has had rheumatism 15 years, is taking '5 Drops,' and says it is the most efficient rheumatic medicine he has ever used. May 31, 1899."

The above refers to "5 Drops," a perfect cure for rheumatism, kidney and all kindred complaints. The proprietors, Swanson Rheumatic Co., 164 Lake St., Chicago, offer to send a 25c. sample bottle for only 10c. during the next 30 days. Be sure to read their advertisement of last week.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a business disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. THERE are women everywhere who suffer almost constantly because they cannot bring themselves to tell all about their ills to a physician.

Such women can surely explain their symptoms and their suffering by letter to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for the confidence reposed in her has never been violated. Over a million women have been helped by her advice and medicine.

A WOMAN HELPS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham in attending to her vast correspondence is assisted by women only. If you are ill, don't delay. Her reply will cost you nothing and it will be a practical help as it was to MISS ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio, who says: "I shrunk from the ordeal of examination by our physician, yet I knew I must have treatment. My troubles were backache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. I am so grateful to you now that I am willing to have my name published to help other girls to take their troubles to you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound used as you wrote me has made me entirely well and very happy. I shall bless you as long as I live."

Mrs. Pinkham receives thousands of such letters from grateful women.

MISS NELLIE RUSSELL, of 138 Grace St., Pittsburg, Pa., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham says: "From childhood I suffered from kidney trouble and as I grew older my troubles increased having intense pain running from my waist to my womb and the menses were very painful. One day, seeing your advertisement in one of our papers, I wrote to you.

"When your reply came I began taking your Compound and followed your advice and am now in perfect health, and would advise any lady rich or poor to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I can praise above all other remedies. It is a wonderful help to women."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Nov. 17, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Sunday morning the ground was covered with snow but it soon melted away.

—Communion services will be held at the M. E. church at 10:30 a. m., Sunday, Nov. 19.

—One of the members of the Board of Education seriously objects to that honorable body being made an intelligence office.

—A thunderstorm Monday evening is claimed by weather prophets to be an indication of six weeks more of good weather.

—Charley Conzet has concluded to sell his calendars for 1900 at 5 cts each and turn the proceeds over to the M. E. parsonage fund.

—The Ladies Aid of the M. E church will give a 5 o'clock tea at the home of Mrs. Maxfield, next Thursday afternoo. Everybody is invited.

—W. D. Freeman was the first man to purchase, at the GAZETTE office, a 1900 calendar, as advertised by our popular harnessmaker, and the M. E parsonage fund was enriched a nickle.

—On Wednesday morning Rev. Thompson and a part of the crew expected, turned out and worked at grading the parsonage lot of the M. E. church. On Thursday they continued the work and have wonderfully improved the property.

—Several of the boards from Mrs. Mulford's high fence are said to have mysteriously disappeared between the hours of 11 p. m. Monday and 3 a. m. Tuesday. It is not generally believed that the meteoric shower announced for this week knocked them off either.

—The Catholic order of Forresters gave a progressive sinch party last evening, in the Odd Fellows' hall, to the members' families and friends. Refreshments were served. Albert Eppel captured gents prize and Mrs. Teischler ladies prize in the sinch playing.

—On Saturday evening the Board of Education held a special meeting, all members present. Several bills were acted on. The principal was ordered, as the small pox scare had subsided, to admit back to school scholars who had been excluded on account of not being vaccinated.

—The Delano Board of Education has finally concluded that it would be more in keeping with the enlightenment of the 19th century to have water in the school house for pupils and teachers to drink, so, at the Saturday evening meeting authorized the purchasing of a pitcher and glass for each room.

—Remember that Rev. C. B. Mitchell, D. D., of Minneapolis, is to deliver his lecture, "My Ideal Boy" at the City Hall, in Delano, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 5. The proceeds to go towards defraying the M. E. parsonage debt. Turn out and hear a good lecture and help to rid our town of an incubus.

—The Junior Journal Club entertainment at the City Hall, Monday evening was a success. Although the rainy afternoon was discouraging, the weather cleared up in the evening and a good sized crowd gathered and enjoyed the entertainment. The fancy work made by the club was disposed of at fair price.

—The announcement is published of the collapse of the National Church Mutual Insurance company of Lisbon, Iowa. The company had written a number of risks in Minnesota. Insurance Commissioner O'Shaugnessy says: "People ought to be very careful how they insure in companies that are not licensed in this state.

—Last Saturday's fair day was not so good a business day as some. There seemed to be more people than stock in attendance. Each year salable cattle seem to be becoming scarcer and scarcer. The creamery business seems to interest farmers only in milk cows, and other cattle are sold while young, thus ridding the country of beef and young stock.

—From an article appearing in the Philadelphia Medical Journal, by Benjamin Lee, M. D. Secretary of the State Board of Health of Pennsylvania, kindly sent us on request, we quote the following, which may interest our readers at the present time:

"The presence of smallpox at several different points in this State at the present time, and the fact that many physicians have failed to recognize the true nature of the disease on its first appearance, makes a few remarks on this subject appropriate. Since the disease was first reported in Bedford County, in the month of November, 1898, it has made its appearance in 21 counties and more than 100 different localities. The number of cases reported has been about 900 and the number of deaths 7."

"In order to set this vexed question at rest, the State Board of Health, has on five different occasions, caused inspections to be made by experts whose decision may be considered as authorative. In every instance these physicians have not hesitated to pronounce the disease in question to be true smallpox. The last of these investigations was made in Allegheny County, by Dr. Wm. M. Welsh, Surgeon in charge of the Municipal Hospital of Philadelphia, a physician who is confessedly the authority on this subject in the United States. I beg leave to introduce his report in full:

"PITTSBURG, August 5, 1899.

"DR. BENJAMIN LEE,
"Sec. State Board of Health of Penn.

"DEAR SIR:—After a careful examination of a number of cases of an eruptive disease now existing in various towns and boroughs adjacent to Pittsburg, concerning which, I am informed, there has been some question as to the diagnosis, I have no hesitation in saying that the affection is smallpox. It is exceedingly mild in character—so mild, indeed, that many of the more usual symptoms are either absent or so indistinctly marked as to be overlooked. Wherever smallpox has recently prevailed in this country it has uniformly been of the same unusually mild type. It seems scarcely possible that a disease as fatal as smallpox ordinarily is can continue very long without assuming its characteristic severity Possibly a change of type may be seen on the approach of cold weather. It is, however, of vital importance that the true nature of this malady should be recognized, and that every effort possible should be made to stamp it out before winter sets in, or before a change of type occurs. "Very respectfully,

"WILLIAM, M. WELCH, M. D."

Rebekah's Reception.

Last Tuesday evening the Rebekah lodge of this place tendered a reception and banquet to the Buffalo lodge.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather only a few of the bravest responded. Those were, Mesdames Electra McKnight, Shattar, Ellis, Mc Clatchie, and Letford. On their arrival they were received by Mrs. Sturman, who kindly administered to their wants till time to convene at lodge. Not being a member I am unable to relate what transpired at the meeting, but as one of the guests, I can positively testify as to the merits of the reception and banquet.

A short program by the home sisters, aided by three of the guests, was rendered. Mr. F. Lindsley reading off the numbers. Miss Mollie Maxfield's solo "She Was Happy 'Till She Met You" was appreciated by all, as was also Miss Blanch Rader's instrumental selections, Miss Young's solo, "My Wild Irish Rose" reflected the usual credit and was rather stimulating to the writer whose sympathies are always with the choice blooms of the "Emerald Isle". The recitation by Mrs. Sturman conveyed a moral lesson not only to Rebekahs but to all mankind. A reading "Selling the Farm" by Mrs. Tom Rader was ably given, the pathos it contained was in a measure dispelled by the final reunion of three isolated hearts. Mrs. F. Lindsley's recitation "Burning of Charlestown" admits of no criticism, and was enjoyed by all. But the principal attraction of the evening seemed to be Mr. Nelson's phonograph, around which the audience gathered and refused to retreat. Only the stentorian voice of Mr. Kespohl announcing refreshments could induce the multitude to give way.

The refreshments, consisting of oysters, sandwiches, salads, pickles, cake and coffee, were served in courses.

The ladies and gentlemen who waited on table deserve especial mention for their graciousness of manner as well as their knowledge of serving.

Social intercorse did not lag for a moment when it could be courteously indulged in.

The company separated at a late hour, some to lie down to sleep, others to lie awake to witness the expected meteoric display whose nonappearance proved a weary disappointment. K. G.

Calendars for 1900.

As it seems so easy for the little folks to raise a purse to help get Dewey a gold watch, I thought of a far better scheme to get a little money to help pay the mortgage on the M. E. church, as follows: I have just received from Chicago 500 neat calendars for the year 1900 at a cost of about $18.00. Now, let each one call at the following places: C. M. Conzet, A. W. Wittman, Gazette office, Eagle office, M. E. church parsonage, and P. H. Darrow's, Rockford, and pay just 5 cents for each one and I will turn it over to the treasurer of the church, which will be just $25.00. You will never know how it happened and you will all have a calendar at the cost of 5cts and it will do your heart good to look at it and think what it has helped to do.

Yours truly,
C. M. CONZET.

Personal.

John H. Coolen, of Smith Lake, visited Delano friends this week.

Miss Vinnie Chance has sufficiently recovered to be about town again.

Miss Fannie Heibel has gone east where she expects to remain with relatives.

Mrs. Austin Cooper and the boys have taken up their winter quarters in town.

Mrs. Romain Streeter, of Montrose, visited visited Delano friends yesterday.

Mrs. Templin and two children, of Wisconsin, came up Wednesday for a visit at her old home.

Charley Kaemer came up from the southern part of the state last evening and enjoyed the Forrester's sociable.

Messrs Gutzwiller and Buckley have gone to Chicago. They didn't leave word that they would move there, but they seem to be making frequent trips.

The following ladies entertained the Buffalo delegation of the Rebekah lodge, Tuesday afternoon: Mrs. L. M. Maxfield, Mrs. John Sturman, Mrs. Tom Rader, Mrs. Frank Lindsley and Miss Mabel Young.

County Cullings.

Bshop Ireland visited Litchfield and gave a talk to the old soldiers, last week. Wonder why the Eagle eye didn't see politics in that?

The Willmar Argus, James A. Wharton's paper, says: "Its more fun to go duck shooting in this country than fishing, especially on Sunday. Wonder how Jim found that out?

John Walker, of Rockford, has sold his farm, on which he has lived for 42 years, to two Schleif boys for $10.000. John will probably move into some neighboring town, maybe Delano.

The Eagle keeps insinuating that Gov. John Lind hid "behind the toilet room door on his way to the reception" at Waverly. If he did the Eagle eye must have sighted him. Nobody else seems to have looked there for the governor. We really believe the Eagle, in telling this is only keeping up her well established reputation.

The Waverly Tribune must be going to get up a few hot numbers. It advertises "Will some of our delinquents bring in enough potatoes, onions or wood to square themselves on our books?" If they haven't these articles we would advise the delinquents to bring something else or look out far the "hot number" anyway.

Victor Sykora and wife, a young married couple, of Montrose, according to the Buffalo Journal, were taken in custody by Sheriff Nugent last week for abusing a six year old boy whom they had secured from an orphans home in the city. They plead guilty and were fined $10 and costs, amounting to $22, and the child was taken from them.

Theodore Schwengle, 16 years of age, and whose home was three miles east of Rockford, while hunting at Rice Lake about three miles west of Rockford, was, by the overturning of a boat drowned. The occurrence took place near noon and the body was taken home in the evening. Coroner Powell thought no inquest necessary as the drowning was purely accidental.

According to the Cokato Enterprise, Attorney Ed H, Farnham, of that place takes a beautiful fall out of the Minnesota Journal for raising a question of the candidacy by the democrats of "Golden Rule" Jones, of Ohio, admitting him, Welch born, as a running mate for Bryan as vice president. Mr. Farnham cites them to the constitution that a vice resident must be eligible to the office of president, and a president must be native born. The Journal and its class, are evidently hard up for campaign argument and propose to have it, constitution or no constitution.

They claim that patents can now be procured in less than half the time formerly required.

The Irony of "Civilized War."

The Boers kill Gen. Symons, and the leader of the Boers at once sends a telegram of condolence to the widow. Joubert finds that he has not ambulances enough to carry off the wounded after the explosion of British shells, so he sends over to the British and borrows anbulances. Briton and Boer spend the day in slaughtering one another, and late in the afternoon sit down to "swap" medicines, nurses and other ameliorations of warfare.

What could be more supremely ridiculous? Does it not reduce warfare among civilized peoples to the utterly absurd? Does it not show how completely the masses of mankind have outgrown the instinct for the "man hunt?"

To stab one's enemy and then put one's arm about him and fall to with the medicine bottles and the sprgical instruments to undo what one has done, weeping the while and saying, "Poor fellow! so sorry! It breaks my heart!"—then, as soon the poor wretch is able to get upon his feet, to fall upon him with knife and pistol—

Really, the human animal has only a surface sense of humor!—World.

PLATH,—on Friday, Nov. 10, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plath, a daughter.

Help the Cause.

There has never been a political campaign that will equal in importance that of the one to be fought next year. The republican party, backed by the money power of this country and Europe, is alert and agressive. Flushed by the victory of three years ago it will seek by every means in its power to maintain its supremacy.

Democrats must be up and doing. They must wage an unceasing war upon their enemies. In no better and more effective way can this be done than by the circulation of good, sound democratic newspapers. The publisher of the Chicago Dispatch, the great national democratic weekly, will send to every new subscriber for three months a copy of the Chicago Dispatch for ten cents. If you are not taking the great political weekly, send in ten cents at once. You should not only do this yourself, but you should induce all your friends to join with you. By a little effort you can easily raise a club of ten or twenty subscribers.

The Chicago Dispatch is indorsed by William Jennings Bryan and other democratic leaders.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

GENERAL CONGRESSMAN JOSEPH WHEELER has come down out of his tree long enough to recommend that Congress declare its intentions of souvereignity in the Philippines, on penalty of a long costly war.

SEVERAL of our exchanges commented on a little article that recently appeared in the GAZETTE. They oppose the dividing up of the money business but advocate a gold standard, while admitting that gold and silver both pleases the people best.

ADMIRAL DEWEY seems to be good at catching white elephants. He "took" the Philippines and they have been a source of great annoyance to the country ever since. He took the house a few "financially patriotic" people gave him and now is wishing he hadn't.

FROM the wonderful zealousness of some of the preachers and bishops in this country in the cause of extending Christianity to the Filipinos it looks strange that the government should have so much trouble getting its chaplains to accompany their regiments to the Philippines.

IN 1897 President McKinley in his message said: "I do not speak of forcible annexation, because that is not to be thought of, and under our code of morality that would be criminal aggression". Wonder if there will be anything like that in his message to the coming Congress.

ABOUT the most inhuman treatment of men by their fellow man was the reported turning adrift of dishonorably discharged United States soldiers among the enemy in the Philippines without money or means of getting to their homes thousands of miles away and with the request that no one employ them. It seems to be reaping about the only reward to be expected

UNCLE SAM must, if reports from the Philippines are true, have made some terrible blunders, or be hard pressed to keep an enemy in the field in that country. First, Aguinaldo was brought there from Hong Kong, and his army supplied with guns, and now comes the report that among his ablest opponents are the dishonorably discharged soldiers from his own army.

THE Litchfield News Ledger says: "The report of the Philippine commission took the wind all out of the anti expansianists. It being a non partisan body makes the rebuke all the more severe."

But what is there so terrible about the report? And then, in case there was, how came it a "not partisan" body? Who appointed the commision? Was it a "non partisan"?

PROSPERITY continues to be here in the g. o. p. papers and a few goldbug organs. But along the line of railroads it is not panning out. For instance the section men along the G. N. are now getting their $1.10 a day instead of a $1 25. Most things they have to buy that are manufactured and protected are higher. Wheat is an exception. When the farmer and laborer both fall to the bottom of the commercial ladder it is hard for them to see the need of "benevolent assimilation" and "commercial expansion".

JUDGE ELLIOTT, of Minneapolis, recently discharged from custody a couple of Christian Scientists arrested for practicing medicine without a license, and charged with attending a little girl who recently died of diphtheria. It is claimed that in discharging the prisoners, the court practically held that Christian Science does not come under the head of the practice of medicine. What head, then, does it come under, if it takes charge of diphtheria and other sick patients? Much that is called practice of medicine, is done now a-days without the use of drugs. Massage, electricity, baths, and external applications are many times used in treating different diseases to the exclusion of drugs administered. Would the judge pronounce a regular M. D. who treated a case of any kind without dosing with drugs as not practicing medicine?

GOLDBUGS seem to mislead many into the idea that free silver, 16 to 1, means for a silver standard alone. This is erroneous. It simply means what it has meant for years. It means to have the money as now coined, 16 silver dollars equal to 1 gold dollar, only it means that either the gold or the silver dollars shall be good for all debts and obligations to the government or anybody else, as we have learned to use them. It means that no man shall refuse to take the money of the United States for what it is worth, in this country; that if a man owes another and tenders him in payment either gold or silver dollars, the creditor must accept; that the debtor and not the creditor can be chooser of which metal he pays his debts in; that he can pay in the kind of coin he has; that the debtor cannot contract that his debt be paid in gold, or in gold certificates, and oblige debtors to go to some bank or money dealer and exchange his hard earned silver dollars for gold and pay a premium, possibly of 50 per cent for the gold with which to pay his debts.

How It Looks To a Man Up a Tree.

"Gen. Wheeler has decided not to return for congress. He is writing a letter to President McKinley with the request that it be forwarded to the house of representatives. In the course of an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press he said:

If congress the first day of the session passes a resolution declaring in unmistakable terms that the sovereignity of the United States is to be maintained in the Philippines, thus dispelling Aguinaldo's delusion that the anti-imperialists can assist him, it will be performing a sacred duty. Such a resolution would save the lives of many American soldiers and of thousands of deluded Filipinos; would avert famine, suffering and desolation from these islands and would render unnecessary the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars".—Minneapolis Tribune.

Now if Congress in the absence of General Congressman Wheeler, should fail to follow their distant colleagues advice and all these enumerated dire calamities should continue as they have for the greater part of a year past, would not some who have favored continuing the war against the Filipinos begin to think it better to draw it to a close as soon as possible. Of course congress will follow the president and Gen. Otis, rather than Gen. Wheeler, though the latter has the credit of knowing more about such things than the others.

Looks Queer.

It certainly looks queer that a man should be so lauded to the skies as was Admiral Dewey one day and his name become a bye word the next, and yet people were contributing to buy him a house, watches, and various articles one day and the next abusing him and hooting at his picture in a theatre. Why is this? Is it politics? It looks some like it. One day he was the candidate of many for president, the next it is announced that he couldn't be elected Marshal of a 4th of July procession. When it was decided to run McKinley for president and that Dewey was not wanted, how easy was it to get up a cry that he had given his house presented to him, to his wife, and advertise the matter broadcast. If the house had been bought by him and he wanted to give it away would anybody have said aught against it? When it was given him for his valiant services, why then should it not be as completely his, to do with as he sees fit, as if it were purchased from his own pocketbook?

Isn't there just a little politics in this wonderful change of heart of the "financially patriotic" brought about by the Admirals views concerning things in the Philippines, for instance when he said that if Gen. Wood instead of Otis had had charge there would have been no war or at most a very short one.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17, 1899.

Republican members of the House are scrambling as eagerly as though the big prize, the Speakership, had not been awarded months ago. The chairmanship of committees and the patronage of the House are the prizes for which they are now struggling. Cannon and Hitt, both of Illinois, have been assured of retaining their places at the head of the appropriation and Foreign committees; consequently there is no fight upon either of them, not because the selecctions are acquiesced in but because they know that fighting will be useless. The biggest fight is over the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee, which carries with it the floor leadership of the party. Payne, of New York, was chairman of that committee, after the death of Mr. Dingley, in the last House, and he claims it again. But several other members, including Dalzell, of Pa., and Hopkins of Ill., think they have equal claims, and as Mr. Payne is not over popular with members they are getting strong backing. The fact that Illinois is already booked for two big chairmanships will probably operate against Hopkins. A big shake-up is likely in the membership of the committee on Banking and Currency, which was packed by Reed for the especial purpose of preventing its reporting a financial bill. In this House it is to be packed for the purpose of reporting a financial bill, the one declaring for the single gold standard, to which Mr. Henderson is thoroughly committed. The job of reorganizing the Committee was made easy for Mr. Henderson by the failure of some of its most prominent members, including its chairman, "Joe" Walker, of Mass., to return to the House. The old Reed officers of the House are all fighting for re-election.

The latest imperialistic dream includes a combination between this government, Great Britain, and Germany, for the purpose of dominating the commerce and preserving the peace of the world. Some believe that this combination has already been partially made.

The Cruiser Charleston, wrecked off the coast of the island of Luzon, although one of the oldest ships of our new navy, was worth more than half a million dollars, and that sum may now be added to the large and rapidly growing amount that this country is paying for imperialism.

What readers of this paper have known for sometime-that Boss Platt was scheming to get Gov. "Teddy" Roosevelt on the ticket with Mr. McKinley next year-is beginning to be fully understood by friends of other would-be running mates of Mr. McKinley. That Platt was working with the knowledge and consent of Roosevelt has been suspected from the first and now it is practically certain. Roosevelt told a prominent New York republican the other day that if the party managers wished him to run for the Vice Presidency he would accept. Humph! of course he would accept, and be almighty glad of the opportunity, too.

According to what seems to be trustworthy information, the administration is secretly dickering with Aguinaldo. It is said that Gen. Otis was instructed to open communication with Aguinaldo and submit certain propositions from this government to him, and that Otis replied that he had forwarded the dispatches to Gen. Mac Arthur, with instructions to get them to Aguinaldo, if he could find him. Not a word of information as to the nature of the propositions submitted to Aguinaldo, or rather which this government is trying to submit to him, can be had in official circles, further than a statement that they relate to Spanish prisoners.

Why the preliminary report of the Philippine Commission, which was forced by Mr. McKinley for use in Ohio, did not throw any boquets at Gen. Otis has been ascertained. Admiral Dewey put his foot down on the report containing a single sentence of praise for Otis. And that isn't all that has become known. Admiral Dewey, while declining to criticise Otis, told Mr. McKinley that if the American army had been commanded by the right sort of an officer there would have been no war with the Filipinos. That is said to have been the principal reason for curtailing the authority of Otis, by fixing it so that Gens. MacArthur, Lawton, and Wheaton, would be left free to fight the troops under them in their own way during the present campaign against Aguinaldo.

Very few democratic Senators and Representatives have yet reached Washington, for the session of Congress shortly to open. But those who have been in Washington since the State elections have all been disposed to regard the outlook for democratic success next year as decidedly favorabe. With a majority of votes in the President's own state, where vast sums of money were used, against his party's candidate, they do not even regard that state as sure to go for McKinley. It is, they believe, merely a question of uniting the anti-republican vote to elect the next President, and the republican Congress may assist materially in doing that.

New York Color Line.

New York, Nov. 22.—The appelate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn has denied the appeal of Elizabeth Cisco, colored, from the decision of the special term refusing a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the school board of Queensborough to admit her children to the public school on Benton avenue, Jamaica, and make no distinction on account of color. Mrs. Cisco claimed the right to have her children accepted as pupils in the school in question, but was told that they must go to a separate school for colored children.

Justice Goodrich, writing the opinion for the appelate division, says that the provision of the constitution which provides that equal school facilities shall be furnished to all children cannot be held to mean that the white children and the black children must be permitted to attend the same school. As to the question of excellence of instruction in the school for colored children, in comparison with the schools for white children, Justice Goodrich does not find that there is any difference.—Dispatch.

The Losing of Betty

By Clara Sherman.

DORA did not like usually to go downtown shopping with her mother, but Betty adored it, as she used to say in curious imitation of the talk of older girls. Dora was 12 years old and had been downtown so many times that there was no longer any novelty in it; while Betty was only five, and had hardly ever been at all. Nevertheless, when mother proposed the trip one fine October morning, both little girls were pleased, Betty on general principles and Dora because she liked to select her own ribbons, and also because she wanted to see the display window at Lawson's store.

"The girls were talking about it at school," she said. "Harriet Graham said I just must go down. Each day they fit up the window differently. Yesterday it was a kitchen, and Harriet said there was a little girl in it who played cook. She swept the room, and she cooked things on the stove, and she scrubbed the kitchen table, and she washed the dishes in the dearest dish pan and dried them on pink-and-white glass towels. Day before yesterday, when Lillian saw it, it was a parlor, and the little girl played she was a lady and wore a long dress and did all sorts of things."

That was very exciting for Betty, and it was a contented party that took the electric car, rode through the subway, which still seemed to Betty like some mysterious, enchanted cave, and started on the brief tour of inspection and shopping which Mrs. Warren had planned. They bought Betty's shoes and hat and Dora's ribbons and gloves before it became convenient to pass by the wonderful window, which, in the minds of the children, was their chief goal. It equaled and even surpassed their hopes.

"There, now, Betty Warren!" said Dora. "Did you ever in your life see anything sweeter than that little girl in the nursery? See, she is dressed like a nursemaid to-day, taking care of the children! Look at the twin brass beds, and that precious cradle with the fluffy pillows and the silk coverlet! Don't you wish you could be an advertisement little girl, and do nothing but play with such lovely things?"

Betty said nothing. She was taking in all the delights of the nursery, and had no words of comment ready yet. The wide window was furnished like a small room, and the little girl, who was just then making up a bed, was just about Betty's size. Very cunning she looked in her nursemaid's cap and apron, with a soft frill of muslin about her neck and the quaint arrangement of her hair. All the furniture of the room was fascinating; but the crowning charm here, as in every real nursery, was the children it contained—the doll figures which seemed to give the tiny nursemaid so much care. She rocked the baby in its cradle—indifferent to the wise instructions given by those who knew better—dressed and undressed the dolls that took the place of older children, showed a black Dinah how to put a log properly on the grate fire, and once she even found it necessary to make the little boy doll stand in the corner for being naughty to his sister.

Mrs. Warren and Dora both gazed with great interest, and Betty was wholly absorbed. "Oh, what a happy little girl she must be!" she murmured, softly.

"I don't know about that," said her mother. "It must be hard to turn play into work. She looks as earnest over it as Dora does over her arithmetic problems. I should think this crowd of persons looking at her would make her nervous. I feel sorry for the little thing."

"Well, anyway, mamma, they draw the curtains every little while to give her a rest," said Dora, comfortingly, as they turned reluctantly away.

They stopped for an ice cream soda before taking the car for home, and it was here that Mrs. Warren met an old friend of hers with her daughter Lillian.

"It is the greatest piece of good fortune that I have met you," said Mrs. Hathaway. "I have just been trying to reach you with the telephone. Our old friend and schoolmate, Susan Haskell, is coming to luncheon with me, and I want you to come right home with me now, for she is to be in the city only about four hours, on her way southward."

Mrs. Warren was pleased with the thought of seeing her old friend, but hesitated a little about the children. "Of course, Dora can go home alone all right," she said. "But I wish Betty were not here. She is such a little flyaway you must keep right hold of her."

"Oh, Mrs. Hathaway, mayn't Lillian come home to luncheon with me if mamma is going with you?" said Dora, eagerly. Mrs. Warren seconded the invitation, and the three children were finally left to go home by themselves. After that Lillian had one or two errands to do in the neighborhood, and then the girls went the the florist's to leave an order from Mrs. Hathaway. But at last they were fairly started toward the subway entrance, where they meant to take the cars.

Suddenly, at the same minute, both girls missed Betty. Neither could tell how it happened. She had been skipping from one to the other, holding now Lillian's hand, now Dora's, saying little, but making her presence constantly evident. And now she was gone.

"Why, she had hold of my hand when I was at the florist's!"

"Yes, and she went out to the front of the store to see those Japanese flowers."

"Was it before then that we met the man with the balloons, and she wanted one?"

"Oh, dear, I don't know," said Dora, almost crying. "We must go back and look for her."

Then a happy thought occurred to Lillian.

"Perhaps she went back to Lawson's to look in the window again. Don't you remember how she wanted us to go back for one more look?"

So the girls hastened to Lawson's, finding the usual crowd before the window, but no sign of Betty. Then they went straight to a policeman and told the whole story, and then there was telegraphing to the central station, and the policemen were notified to be on the lookout for a little girl, five years old, yellow hair, blue dress and a black silk bag in her hand. It was Dora's first impulse to start for her mother. But Lillian and the policeman advised her to wait a little longer, and the policeman, sure that the little one could not have strayed far, began a systematic walk up one street and down the next, the girls following and looking into all the stores.

"Somehow I cannot help thinking all the time of Lawson's," said Dora, finally. "Let's go back there once more, and then if we do not see her I will go straight to mother, though I know I shall die if I have to tell her Betty is lost—poor, little frightened thing, as I know she is this minute!"

So to Lawson's they went again, and mingled with the crowd in front of the window, but no Betty was there. They were too disconsolate to look inside, and the crowd, which seemed bigger and more amused than ever hustled them along. They had almost passed when suddenly there was a little stir and a sharp rap on the glass made them turn their bewildered eyes and there, with a doll in each arm, the rocking chair from which she had risen still swaying back and forth, with shining eyes brimming over with fun and excitement, her yellow hair tossed back and her cheeks aglow with delight, was Betty, not frightened, not troubled, but supremely, radiantly happy.

Dora and Lillian stood motionless with amazement, and if Lillian at least felt that she would like to shake the unrepentant cause of all their suffering, perhaps she is hardly to be blamed. But in Dora's mind the joy of beholding again her little sister, alive and uninjured, banished everything else. An attendant who was watching from the inside then beckoned the girls in, and they heard the whole story. Betty had walked in all alone, and going to a clerk, announced unhesitatingly her desire "to be an advertisement." He was surprised to see so small a child alone, and asked her if she were lost. "Yes, I suppose I'm lost, but they'll find me pretty quick, and I want to be an advertisement while they are hustling." The clerk laughed and called to a gentleman who was just passing in the aisle of the store.

"I WANT TO BE AN ADVERTISEMENT."

"Mr. Harris, here's an applicant for the position of window girl, and I think she'll make a good one."

When Betty had repeated her story and told her name, the gentleman had her take off her jacket and hat and lifted her carefully to the big window seat. "They'll find her quicker there than anywhere else," he said. "Besides, it will please her, and her mother is one of our best customers. It isn't a bad advertisement, indeed, to have the daughter of Hon. Hamilton Warren as one of our employes." And he laughed as if he enjoyed the joke. The girls must have passed the first time before these preliminaries were settled.

"I hope you'll like it," said the child, who yielded her undesirable place to Betty. To Betty it was anything but undesirable, however. She felt that her time was short and simply set to playing with all the single-mindedness and apparently all the unconsciousness with which she would have played in her own room at home.

"Well, I knew she was never shy in her life," gasped poor Dora, divided between joy at the recovery and shame for Betty's shortcomings. "But I never dreamed of her doing a thing like that! How could you run away from us, Betty!" she said, reprovingly, as the child's jacket and hat were being restored. "We were dreadfully frightened."

"Didn't run away," was the coaxing answer. "Didn't run away at all! I took hold of a lady's dress, and I thought it was you, and I was turning my head to look at the balloons. And when I looked round, it wasn't you, and the lady looked cross at me; and this was just next door. And I couldn't see you, and I had to come in."

Just as they were leaving the store, accompanied to the door by several admiring clerks, the gentleman who had given the desired permission to Betty came up.

"But we always pay for our advertisements, my dear," he said. And he handed Betty a generous box of chocolate peppermints and a bright, new, shiny ten-cent piece, and Betty went home happy as a queen.—Christian Register.

The Finest Limited Train.

From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago is the Burlington electric lighted and steam heated. Every comfort that other trains have and some that no others have. Remember this when buying railroad tickets.

C. A. Snow & Co, Patent Lawyers, opposite the United States Patent Office, Washington, D. C., who have actual clients in every city and town of the United States and Canada, report that never before in their 25 years practice has the work of the Office been so well up to date. They claim that patents can now be procured in less than half the time formerly required.

Burlington Reclining Chair Cars.

Running on two trains a day to and from Chicago, are the largest, roomtest, and in every way best, of any such cars running from St. Paul and Minneapolis. When you buy a ticket over the Burlington you get the best.

A Splendid Chance For You

The Farmers' (Twice-a-Week) Tribune, of Minneapolis, is making an exceptionally liberal offer to young people generally, particularly persons who have never tried soliciting newspaper subscriptions, to aid them in getting 100,000 subscribers by Jan. 1, 1900. It is probably the most liberal proposition ever made by any newspaper in America, and it will interest many who do not ordinarily care to engage in getting subscription.

The Farmers' Tribune is the daily Minneapolis Tribune and the Evening Tribune "boiled down" for the use of people who do not have time to read a daily paper. It comes to the home twice every week, filled with the best news of the world and the Northwest, the best serial and short stories, political gossip and market reports—all the best that money will buy.

Almost everybody can get a few newspaper subscribers from among his friends and acquaintances, and with such a generous offer as made by the Farmer's Tribune it is quite worth one's while to make the effort.

Send a postal card to the Farmers' Tribune for their subscription circular and sample paper.

Especially For Ladies.

Are those splendid compartment cars on the Burlington Limited from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago. All the comforts of home including an elecric heater for your curling-iron. When you send for a railroad ticket, insist on having it over the Burlington.

The agreement reached by Great Britain and Germany is said to prepare the way for the contemplated "Cape to Cairo" railway. This line, if it is ever constructed, will open up "darkest Africa" to travel and trade, and development of the continent is sure to follow.

In Austria publishers of illustrated postal cards have turned the fears of the rustic population as to the prophesied end of the world into a jest by depicting scenes of the last days. The idea of the publishers of the postals as to humor are about as peculiar as those of the rustics as to nearness of doomsday.

Lord Wolseley has been watching the work of the American soldiers in their common sense uniforms, and he is now advocating something of the same sort for the British army. He says that all ranks in the English army "are dressed like monkeys," and are incapable of their best work. Your Uncle Sam is cutting out the patterns for all to follow.

After experimenting with oil as a fuel on the torpedo boat Talbot for three months, the officials at the Norfolk navy yard say that it is the coming fuel for the whole navy. The oil is not burned as oil, but a gas is generated therefrom, and then, combined with a blast of air, is burned in the furnaces, making a heat that is terrific, even, and requires but little attention.

There isn't any room for doubt that the coming winter is to be "awful cold." The prophets all say so, and the man is insane who disputes the prophets. They have found more moss growing thick on the trees, frogs standing on their heads, sunflowers pointing towards the north pole, grape vines running around the poles instead of up them, and a thousand other signs to prove that every human being will be frozen as stiff as a chip before January.

There is talk of an automobile trust. The man with an income of $20 per week or less and who has a family to support on that income will worry very little over this startling information. Such persons have not as yet come to look upon the automobile either as a necessity or a means of grace, and they confidently believe that by the time they are ready to purchase such a machine for cash even the automobile trust will be dead and the horseless wagons a drug on the market.

The navy department has issued orders that all new furniture bought for the warships of the navy shall be of metal, and the cruiser Atlanta, which is now being refitted, will be the first to try the new idea. It was found during the Spanish-American war that the presence of wooden furniture on the warships was a serious menace to the men, because of flying splinters, and this brought out the new order. On Uncle Sam's new warships there will not be enough wood to start a bonfire.

It is stated in a dispatch from Berlin that the dirigible airship, which Gen. Count Zeppelin has been building on the shore of Lake Constance near Meersburg, Baden, is nearly completed, and that its designer and those who furnished thousands of dollars for the carrying out of the plans are confident that the ship will soon be plowing the air. This great monster of the air, several hundred feet long, has already cost $200,000. Evidently there are capitalists in Germany who believe in every detail of Mother Shipton's prophecy.

The village of North Perry, Me., has, through no fault of its own, been awarded a handsome monument by the national government. "This monument marks latitude 45 degrees north, half way from the equator to the pole," is the inscription on the stone.

Marconi says people do not half appreciate what wireless telegraphy means to the world. It means, he says, that ships in distress at sea will be able to send a call for help for 100 miles in all directions; that ships will be warned of all dangerous shoals when within 100 miles; that ships cannot collide with each other; that the first step has been made toward perfecting a system of communication that will draw the nations of the world closer together. Wonders have been accomplished by Marconi during the past year or two, and there are more to follow.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

A Manila dispatch says Maj. Gen. Otis believes that Gen. Young has made connection with Gen. Wheaton, or at least has communicated with him. He estimates the number of insurgents now within the American cordon at 3,000. Aguinaldo and his government are said to be making desperate efforts to escape to Bayombong. All information received is that he is still in the low country.

The British forces in South Africa are being strengthened by almost daily arrivals of troopships, and more than 7,000 men are hurrying into the interior from Durban. At the same time the army under Gen. White is believed to be in danger of destruction if the Boers continue their aggressive methods.

At Port Said the khedive unveiled a statue of Count de Lesseps at the entrance to the harbor.

Manila advices say that Col. Swigert, of the Third cavalry, was moving against a force of insurgents which were intrenched at Pozorrubio, which is outside the lines of the Americans. It was believed that Aguinaldo was there. Gen. MacArthur had begun his northward advance from Tarlac, which would be continued to Bayambong, province of Vizcaya.

Gen. Buller's official dispatches throw little light on the situation in South Africa. Reports from various sources as to the movements on either side are very conflicting. It is apparent the British advance is attended with great danger, but at the same time it is rumored the Boers may draw back into the more mountainous country, where the British will find it more difficult to follow.

DEATH SETS HIM FREE.

Vice President Hobart Passes Away at Carroll Hall After a Long and Distressing Illness.

SAD EVENT BRINGS SORROW TO MANY.

Funeral Will Occur Saturday at Two O'clock at Paterson — Flags Are Half-Masted, and Bells Tolled—President Issues a Proclamation Expressive of Nation's Loss.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 22.—Vice President Hobart died at 8:30 a. m. The family and physician were at Mr. Hobart's bedside when he expired.

The vice president had been failing since late Monday afternoon, although the reports given out at the house were that he was holding his own.

At midnight he became unconscious and at seven o'clock in the morning he had an attack of angina pectoris from which he never rallied. His death followed at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Hobart, Dr. Newton and Mrs. Newton, who is a cousin of Mrs. Hobart, and Miss Alice Waddell, the nurse, were at the patient's bedside constantly from the time he became unconscious.

Garret A. Hobart, Jr., was also at his father's bedside. Mrs. Hobart bears up well under her great bereavement.

Flags Half-Masted.

The flags of the city and other public buildings were half-masted when the news of the vice president's death became known. Flags on many private buildings and dwellings were also hung at half-mast.

The bell on the city hall was tolled at intervals during the forenoon.

The Passaic county court adjourned in token of respect to the dead vice president.

Soon after the news of Mr. Hobart's death was sent over the wires, telegrams of condolence began to arrive at Carroll hall. Among the first to send words of sympathy and condolence to Mrs. Hobart were President and Mrs. McKinley.

Funeral Will Be Saturday.

Mr. Hobart's funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the Church of the Redeemer (Presbyterian).

Mayor Hinchelieffe has issued a proclamation recommending that "upon the day of the funeral obsequies of our late vice president, the public schools, offices and all places of business be closed throughout the day; that business houses and private residences of our city be suitably draped; that the people refrain from their usual avocations and assemble in their accustomed places of worship, there to engage in ceremonies befitting the solemn occasion, and that all bells of the city be tolled between the hours of 9 and 11 a. m. and 1 and 2 p. m. on that day."

Body to Lie in State.

The city council at a special meeting adopted resolutions expressing sorrow for the death of the vice president, extending sympathy to Mrs. Hobart and the vice president's family, offering the use of the city hall in order to permit Mr. Hobart's body to lie in state, so that it may be viewed by the residents of Paterson, directing that the city hall be draped in mourning for 30 days out of respect to the memory of the vice president and recommending that all church bells in the city be tolled one hour in the morning and one in the afternoon of the day of the funeral, and requesting that all places of business be closed on that day.

Mourning at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 22.—All the flags in Washington are half-masted out of respect to the memory of Vice President Hobart. The announcement of the vice president's death, while not unexpected, came as a distinct shock and cast a deep gloom over the city where he was loved and honored. The news was first received at the white house ten minutes before nine o'clock in a private message from Paterson. The flag over the executive mansion was immediately hauled down to half-mast and the doors of the mansion closed to the public.

The president was deeply affected by the telegram announcing his colleague's death and at once dispatched a telegram conveying the sympathy and consolation of himself and Mrs. McKinley to Mrs. Hobart. Meantime the sad intelligence had been bulletined by all the newspaper offices and the whole city was soon mourning the loss of the vice president.

President McKinley was deeply moved and when Senator Fairbanks had left he joined Mrs. McKinley in his private apartments. His close and intimate relations with his colleague made him feel the vice president's death as a great personal bereavement. Mrs. McKinley was greatly affected. She gave way completely to her grief and sobbed convulsively. Mrs. McKinley has but few intimates here and among her most cherished friends were the vice president and Mrs. Hobart. President McKinley did all he could to comfort his wife and did not return to his office until the members of the cabinet began to arrive.

Proclamation by the President.

After the cabinet meeting the president issued the following proclamation:

"By the President of the United States—A Proclamation to the People of the United States: Garret Augustus Hobart, vice president of the United States, died at his home in Paterson, N. J., at 8:30 o'clock this morning. In him the nation has lost one of its most illustrious citizens and one of its most faithful servants. His participation in the business life and the lawmaking body of his native state was marked by unswerving fidelity and by a high order of talents and attainments, and his too brief career as vice president of the United States and president of the senate exhibited the loftiest qualities of upright and sagacious statesmanship. In the world of affairs he has few equals among his contemporaries. His private character was gentle and noble. He will long be mourned by his friends as a man of singular purity and attractiveness, whose sweetness of disposition won all hearts, while his elevated purposes, his unbending integrity and whole-hearted devotion to the public good deserved and acquired universal respect and esteem.

"In sorrowing testimony of the loss which has fallen upon the country, I direct that on the day of the funeral the executive offices of the United States shall be closed and all stations of the army and navy shall display the national flag at half mast, and that the representatives of the United States in foreign countries shall pay appropriate tribute to the illustrious dead for a period of 30 days.

"In witness whereof, I have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

(Seal) "Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eighteen hundred and ninety-nine and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-fourth.

(Signed) "WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"By the President, John Hay, Secretary of State."

Arranging for the Funeral.

Sergeant-at-Arms Bright has been in communication with the vice president's private secretary during the greater part of the day, but at noon the hour for the funeral had not been definitely fixed. It was stated, however, that the interment would certainly take place at Paterson and it was believed that it would occur Saturday afternoon. When the time is definitely fixed arrangements will be made for the proper representation of the senate at the ceremony.

All the executive departments will be closed on the day of the funeral. Attorney General Griggs left in the afternoon for Paterson. He goes as the personal representative of the president and cabinet and will arrange with the family of Mr. Hobart for the funeral. The entire matter is left in his hands so far as the official features of the ceremony are concerned.

Office Will Remain Vacant.

By the death of Mr. Hobart the office of vice president of the United States becomes vacant for the rest of President McKinley's term, as the law provides no succession. A president pro tempore of the senate will be elected by that body when congress assembles, who will hold the office until March, 1901. By law the succession to the presidency of the United States in the event of vacancy falls upon the vice president and, in the event of the latter's death, to the secretary of state, the next in line being the secretary of the treasury, then the secretary of war, and down through the list of cabinet officers in order of precedence fixed by act of congress when the death of Vice President Hendricks disclosed the necessity of such a provision.

Senator William P. Frye, of Maine, is now president pro tempore of the senate. He will call that body to order when it assembles on December 4 and preside until a successor is chosen. That he will succeed himself is generally conceded.

The News at New York.

New York, Nov. 22.—Flags on the custom house, subtreasury and assay office are flying at half mast and the vice president's death is being similarly observed throughout the financial districts in this city, where he was well known by reason of his long and active connection with many large enterprises.

Sketch of Hobart's Life.

Garret A. Hobart was eminently successful, both in business and politics. His reputation as a man of affairs and as one of the shrewdest business men in the country was, perhaps, greater than his reputation as a political leader and as a statesman until his election to the vice presidency three years ago. Mr. Hobart was born in 1844 at Long Branch, N. J. His ancestors on his father's side were English and on his mother's side Dutch.

Thirty-three years ago he was graduated from Rutger's college and began teaching school. Three months later he entered upon the study of law with Socrates Tuttle, a prominent lawyer in Passaic county, N. J., and who was at that time mayor of Paterson. Young Hobart is said to have arrived at Paterson with but $150 in his pocket, and from this small beginning he made his way unaided to wealth and prominence.

Admitted to Practice Law.

In 1869 he was admitted to the bar, and the same year he married the daughter of Mr. Tuttle. Mr. Hobart made his way rapidly at the bar of his native state, and his bent led him early into politics. In 1871 he was made city attorney of Paterson and in 1872 was elected to the state assembly, of which body he was chosen speaker in the following year.

From 1884 to 1896 he was a member of the national republican executive committee, and had much to do with the management of the national campaigns during those 12 years. During all these years his business connections became broader and broader. His keen insight into affairs made his advice and counsel of such value that he was sought after by some of the largest corporations in the country and at the time of his election as vice president he was a director in no less than 60 different companies.

The Hobart residence during the last two years has been the scene of many delightful social affairs. Socially the vice president and his charming wife divided the honors with the president and Mrs. McKinley. Vice President Hobart's genial temperament and charming personality made him very popular not only in the senate, over which he presided with dignity and ability, but with all who came in contact with him.

Mr. Hobart left but one child, Garret A. Hobart, Jr., a boy of 14. Fanny, a girl of 22, died in 1895, in Italy, while there with her parents.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

LIEUT. CHURCHILL ALIVE.

Was Merely Wounded and Is a Prisoner at Pretoria—Story of the Battle at Ladysmith.

London, Nov. 20.—The first definite news regarding the fate of Winston Churchill was conveyed to his mother Sunday evening by a representative of the press. Lady Randolph had just returned from a quiet dinner with a few friends when the gratifying intelligence that her son is living was conveyed to her. The fact that his wound is not necessarily dangerous and that he is alive in Pretoria caused her the greatest gratification, as she had been hitherto without the least intimation of his whereabouts.

London, Nov. 20.—Saturday morning the Boers attempted to rush Estcourt from the northwest, but a shot from a naval gun and several long range volleys fired by the Dublin fusileers, however, caused them to retire hurriedly and withdraw their guns from the surrounding ridges.

Durban, Natal, Nov. 20.—The Times, of Natal, publishes the following, dated Wednesday, November 15, from its special correspondent at Ladysmith:

"The enemy made a determined attack on Thursday, November 9. Apparently all the Boer forces participated. Their artillery opened at four a. m., pouring in shells thick and fast upon the British positions, although with no great effect. They adopted the unusual tactics of advancing under cover of their guns to positions on the ridges and kopjes adjacent to those occupied by the British troops, on the left of our camp. Continuing their advance, the Boers crept up, using every available bit of cover. Our infantry opened with a steady, warm and accurate fire, which beat back the enemy, notwithstanding a display of tenacity of purpose equal to their desperate stands on previous occasions. The Boer attack was most elaborate on all sides of the town. The main attack, however, was made between the Free State and Newcastle railway lines by a column composed chiefly of Johannesburg volunteers. A brigade of King's royal rifles corps made a splendid defense. The Boers were repulsed, but soon rallied and returned to the attack. Again the British fire, which was very hot, forced them to retire. They had made a deep trench in front of the British lines, and, while withdrawing for their horses, they left this unguarded, whereupon the King's rifles, advancing at double quick, occupied the trench.

"This smart movement was not seen by the enemy, who soon returned with the horses. Carefully reserving their fire, the King's rifles allowed the Boers to advance almost to the edge of the trench, and then poured volley after volley into the astounded Boers, who turned and fled from an awful hail of bullets, bolting across the open, where the artillery of the British poured in a terrible and effective shell fire. The enemy lost heavily.

"Meanwhile, another section of the Boers had brought a mortar into action, firing heavy shells. Our guns, concentrating upon it, soon silenced this weapon, the enemy's artillerymen fleeing headlong. The Boers then advanced in force, with a view of repairing the mortar, but our artillery shelled and scattered them right and left. The fighting was all over at 11 o'clock.

"Promptly at noon General White ordered a salute of 21 guns in honor of the birthday of the prince of Wales. As the cannon boomed, cheer after cheer rang out from the troops, and a scene of enthusiasm probably without parallel in history followed.

"At Caesar's camp, which protects the town on the southwest, the Manchester regiment held the position. Descending under cover of the British guns for some distance on the further side of the hill, they detected several hundred Boers hiding in the ditch, out of the way of the British shells. They poured volley after volley into the enemy, scattering them and inflicting heavy loss.

"The Boers were driven back at every point, with a loss estimated at 800 men.

"Nothing important occurred until Tuesday, November 14, when a strong force, chiefly cavalry and artillery, reconnoitering, came upon the enemy near the Colenso road, and drove them back to their main positions. Our shell fire was most effective, and is believed to have inflicted considerable damage. Our own loss was one man.

"That same day a Boer shell killed a trooper of the Natal mounted rifles, who was sleeping in his tent. All our men are fit, well and in good spirits. It is reported that the lyddite is terrifying the Boers, who have to be driven to their gun positions by revolvers pointed at their heads. Ladysmith is able to hold out for months. On the other hand, it is reported that dysentery is working havoc in the enemy's camp."

MRS. DEWEY GETS THE HOME.

The Washington Home Presented to the Admiral Is Deeded Over to His Wife.

Washington, Nov. 21.—A formal deed of conveyance was placed on file, transferring from Admiral George Dewey to Mrs. Mildred Dewey, his wife, the property, No. 1747 Rhode Island avenue, in this city, which was presented to the admiral by popular subscription. A nominal consideration is named in the instrument.

The transfer was made through John W. Crawford, the admiral's secretary, to whom the property was first deeded, and then by Crawford to Mrs. Dewey.

Mrs. Dewey thus becomes the undisputed owner of the house for which the people subscribed $50,000. She can sell or convey it to anyone in her own right. The house was purchased by a committee of officials with the money subscribed by about 45,000 citizens of the United States for the express purpose of honoring the admiral, and before it was known he even contemplated a marriage.

National Municipal League.

Columbus, O., Nov. 18.—The fifth annual convention of the National Municipal league, after indorsing the municipal programme offered by the committee, adjourned to meet in Milwaukee in November of next year. Boston made a strenuous effort to secure the convention, one plea being that for the last three years the league had not met in cities west of the Alleghanies. One of the beneficent results of the meetings may be the formation of state leagues of reform associations.

Death of a Veteran.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 17.—Col. Henry P. Dean died in Lincoln after a brief illness of typhoid fever, aged 62. Col. Dean was prominent in Illinois during the war of the rebellion, commanding the Eighteenth regiment. He was with the regiment at Springfield, Ill., at the time of President Lincoln's assassination and commanded the military force that received the remains of the president. He had charge of the arrangements for the funeral at Springfield.

Emil Rollinger Hanged.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Emil Rollinger, the wife murderer, declared on the gallows with his last breath that he was an innocent man and that if a lawyer, whom he would not name, had not robbed him of his money he would be walking the streets a free man. The drop fell at 12:08 o'clock, breaking his neck instantly, and nine minutes later the jury of physicians pronounced him dead.

DRAMATIC CRITICISM.

"East Lynne" as Reviewed by a Wild and Woolly Topeka Reporter.

The reports from those who attended the production of "East Lynne" in all its gorgeous misconception the other night unite in pronouncing it a little the worst show that has ever cracked 14 square yards of plastering off the ceiling of the opera house in this city. Lady Isabel was about as bewitching as a sun-kissed maiden of Senegambia, and a man who would fall in love with her would fall into a coal pit through a two-inch guard rail. When she returned from the mountains of Germany as Miss Vane to play the nursery maid to her son she looked as though she had played hookey from a smallpox graveyard. The special scenery where she met Sir Francis Levison and made a post-mortem contract to run away with him looked like a cross between the malaria-smeared hills of Arkansas and a diseased vermiform appendix.

Mr. Carlyle had a voice which had to be raised with a derrick in order for the people in the back part of the audience to hear it, and then when it was at its highest pitch the tackle would break or some one would knock the blocking from under it and it would fall like the price of steers during a democratic administration. Barbara Hare looked as though she had been left over from a bargain sale and didn't care much whether her insurance ran out or not. Aunt Cornelia had a voice that sounded like a cross between an army mule with a ringworm and a cross-cut saw, and was built a good deal like an Oklahoma cyclone on stilts. The only good thing about the entire show that a good deal of it was left out and it could have been improved upon by taking a meat ax and cutting out the rest of it and turning the actors into the cornfields and kitchens where they belong.—Topeka Journal.

A Most Extraordinary Club.

Mrs. Ada Brown Talbot, of New York, editor of the Clubwoman, says that the most extraordinary club she ever ran across is conducted by a demure and dignified little woman of seven, the daughter of a club president. The editor called one day, and was received by her little friend with open arms.

"At last I've got a chair," she said.

"I am very glad," my dear," said the editor. "I hope it is comfortable and pretty."

"Oh, it is not for me; it is for my club."

"I didn't know you had a club."

"Of course I have—just like mamma. My dolly is president, and I got the chair for her. You see," she explained, in a whisper, "there's only dollies in it, and the dolly that makes the most noise is president, just like mamma's club. That's my dolly. She talks when you push her back. I broked the spring, and now she talks till she is runned down. So she's president. Don't you think that's nice?"

And Mrs. Talbot said she did.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A Little Too Soon.

A professor was going to experiment with laughing gas when he overheard a student say that if he were selected for a subject he would take advantage of his supposed coma to tell the professor what he thought of him.

When the class met the professor announced that he would like, for the purposes of illustration, to administer the gas to some member of the class. Forthwith this student volunteered.

The gas bulb was connected with his mouth. He pretended to be very much excited and began to abuse the professor roundly. The old man let him go on for awhile; but the class roared when the professor said he needn't be so irresponsible—the gas had not been turned on yet.—Collier's Weekly.

In Greenland.

"No," continued the Eskimo, sadly; "there isn't so much money in the hotel business in Greenland as the volume of travel would indicate. The average Arctic explorer is so particular these days! He has to have boot for dinner every day, and fresh boot at that! Canned boot won't answer at all! No, I don't know as I blame the explorers so much. They've got to have such experiences as the public taste demands, if they are to do any lecturing, I suppose. Yes."—Puck.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING DAY.

IN PURITAN New England a year had passed away.
Since first beside the Plymouth coast the English Mayflower lay,
When Bradford, the good governor, sent fowlers forth to snare
The turkey and the wild fowl, to increase the scanty fare.*

"Our husbandry hath prospered, there is corn enough for food,
Though 'the pease be parched in blossom, and the grain indifferent good.'
Who blessed the loaves and fishes for the feast miraculous,
And filled with oil the widow's cruse, He hath remembered us!

"Give thanks unto the Lord of Hosts, by whom we all are fed,
Who granted us our daily prayer: 'Give us our daily bread!'
By us and by our children let this day be kept for aye,
In memory of His bounty, as the land's Thanksgiving day."

Each brought his share of Indian meal the joyous feast to make,
With the fat deer from the forest and the wild-fowl from the brake.
And chanted hymn and prayer were raised —though eyes with tears were dim—
"The Lord He hath remembered us, let us remember Him!"

Then Bradford stood up at their head and lifted up his voice:
"The corn is gathered from the field, I call you to rejoice;
Thank God for all His mercies, from the greatest to the least;
Together have we fasted, friends, together let us feast.

"The Lord who led forth Israel was with us in the waste;
Sometime in light, sometime in cloud, before us He hath paced;
Now give Him thanks, and pray to Him who holds us in His hand
To prosper us and make of this a strong and mighty land!"

From Plymouth to the Golden Gate, to-day their children tread,
The mercies of that bounteous Hand upon the land are shed;
The "flocks are on a thousand hills," the prairies wave with grain,
The cities spring like mushrooms now where once was desert-plain.

Heap high the board with plenteous cheer and gather to the feast,
And toast that sturdy Pilgrim band whose courage never ceased.
Give praise to that All-Gracious One by whom their steps were led,
And thanks unto the harvest's Lord who sends our "daily bread."

—Alice Williams Brotherton, in Home Queen.

AUNT SARAH'S THANKSGIVING DINNER.

"AUNT SARIE! Aunt Sarie! do come quick, the mince pies are burning!" And a small head with two tight flaxen braids was thrust hastily out of the kitchen window and as precipitately withdrawn.

Aunt Sarah, who was evidently lost in deep thought, gave such a sudden start that the great yellow pumpkin she was lovingly caressing fell from her arm.

"Well, I do declare!" she exclaimed reproachfully, as she hastened to recover her treasure and turn her steps towards the farm house. "If things haven't come to a pretty pass, Sarah Jane Smithers. You a woman of 60, and standing out here dreaming like some young girl, and leaving your mince pies to the mercy of a child. But I guess I ought to be excused this once, things have come so terrible sudden like. This time yesterday I was living my old humdrum life, and not thinking about making a Thanksgiving dinner. I always said I'd have a big one when I got the mortgage paid and not before. But I haven't seen one of my own flesh and blood for 20 years. And to think that Cousin Jim is coming and bringing his wife and children."

By this time she had reached the kitchen; and breathlessly depositing her burden upon the spotless table she proceeded to open the oven door, whence issued a savory odor.

"Just one minute more, Susie Belle, and these mince pies would have been burnt to a crisp."

"Yes'm," replied Susie Belle, respectfully, and with a shade of awe in her tone. "That was the reason why I called you. I thought you had forgotten."

It was such an uncommon event for thorough-going Aunt Sarah to forget anything that the rather timid child felt some hesitancy in alluding to so flagrant a breach of the good woman's strong point. Aunt Sarah colored slightly, but made no reply.

"Now, child, you fall to work on this pumpkin while I dress the turkey. I want to get everything pretty well done up to-morrow so there won't be much on hand when Jim's folks get here."

Aunt Sarah was the last surviving member of a large and prosperous family. She lived alone with the exception of an orphan child of 12 years. As one by one those whom she loved, and for whom she had cheerfully sacrificed her life, passed away, and she had no animate object upon which to lavish her affection, she turned it all to the old house where her family had lived for two generations. Cousin Jim had spent many years in Missouri, and his wife and children she had never seen.

The one great shadow that darkened Aunt Sarah's life was a mortgage for $1,000 upon the place, the time for the payment of which was rapidly approaching. Her usually cheerful disposition was so clouded by this trial that for several years she had not been able to find heart for the celebration of any festivities. However, since "Jim's folks," those that really cared for her and were her own, were coming, she must make suitable preparations for their entertainment.

So the morning before Thanksgiving found her up by four o'clock, and bustling about with a brighter face and a brighter step than she had known in years. All day she mixed and stirred and baked and tasted, regardless of the lowering clouds and steady rain without. By three o'clock in the afternoon the last pie, steaming hot, was placed beside many others in neat rows on the pantry shelves, the enormous turkey, brown and crisp, lay in regal state beside a spiced ham. Cakes, snowy loaves of home made bread, jars of preserved fruits, jellies and marmalades and pats of golden butter were arranged in tempting array. Aunt Sarah gave a sigh of satisfaction as she surveyed the goodly store.

"Here, Susie Belle," she said, filling the child's hands with some of the choicest cookies. "Take these and eat them. We've got enough for to-morrow. Let me see, Jim has five children. Well, I want those little ones to have a real, old-fashioned dinner for once in their lives. I don't believe they ever had one out there in Missouri. Dear me! how it does rain!" she ejaculated; "but I'm not a mite afraid of its keeping Jim's folks at home. Once Jim sets his head to do a thing, he always would have his way or die."

And she settled back in her armchair

"DO COME QUICK, THE MINCE PIES ARE BURNING."

by the cozy sittingroom fire "to rest a bit" after her hard day's work.

Just as she was dreaming of a Thanksgiving long ago when she and Jim and her brothers and sisters popped corn and roasted apples before the great open fire, a loud knock caused her to jump to her feet in alarm.

"Who on earth can be coming on such an evening?" she muttered drowsily, as she groped her way through the hall to the door.

"Why, Mr. Stanton! what has brought you up here in such a rain as this!" she exclaimed in surprise. "Come right in."

The cashier of the Newton bank glanced down at his dripping mackintosh and muddy boots, then at the immaculate oilcloth on the hall floor.

"No, thank you, Miss Sarah," he answered. "I am in a great hurry. Haven't you heard the news? The dam at Watertown has broken; nearly all the place is submerged, especially the poorest quarters near the factories. The people are flocking to Newton in droves. Every hotel, private house and public building is full and yet more are coming. It is pitiable to see them drenched and shivering after walking four miles in this dreadful rain. Many of them have had nothing to eat since early morning. We are trying to find shelter for them in the nearest farm houses, and thought, as you haven't much family and considerable room, you might accommodate a good number."

Aunt Sarah's eyes grew round and her jaw dropped in dismay. At any other time she would have made the poor wanderers welcome enough. But now—and, in imagination, she beheld the groaning pantry shelves, the shining floors and the beds with their fresh lavender-scented sheets.

"Mr. Stanton," she began, faintly, "I never hated so much to refuse anything in all my life. It doesn't hardly look Christian, and under ordinary circumstances I wouldn't think of refusing; but my cousin, that I haven't seen for years, is coming to-morrow. His children never have had a real good Thanksgiving, and I can't think of having everything torn up before they get here. I am dreadful sorry."

Mr. Stanton was disappointed, yet he went away glad that such an unexpected pleasure was coming into Aunt Sarah's life. He quite understood her feelings, though when he thought of the miserable unsheltered creatures in the town, he wished it might have been otherwise.

Aunt Sarah turned from the door with a heavy heart. The brightness and warmth of the sitting-room smote her with a deep sense of guilt. She tried to put the matter from her mind; but every time she looked into the glowing flames she saw a host of cold, haggard faces. Unable to bear it longer, she left the room on the pretext of seeing that all was well upstairs. She passed from one to another of the neat bedrooms. Never before had the old-fashioned, high-posted beds looked so inviting. She paused in deep thought. Suddenly her eyes rested upon a faded sampler she had worked when a child. The long, uneven letters in red, green and purple silk danced before her eyes. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

"Done it unto Me," the words echoed in her ears. What if He were out in the rain hungry and cold, would she have treated Him thus?

She sank beside the bed and buried her face in her hands.

"Dear Lord," she sobbed, "it is so hard, when it is the only pleasure I've had since mother died, five long years ago. I wasn't expecting it, and it all came so sudden like, and now to have it spoiled. But for Thy sake, Lord, accept the sacrifice!"

"Susie Belle," said Aunt Sarah a few minutes later as she appeared muffled from head to foot, "I'm going down to the village. I hate to leave you, though there isn't anything to hurt you. I will hurry back as quick as I can, and you kindle a fire in the kitchen stove."

The child, dumb with astonishment, could only gasp: "Yes'm." She stood watching the resolute figure until it was lost to view, and turned away with a shiver as she thought of the distance to the village. She knew nothing of the interview with Mr. Stanton. She understood, however, that only some stern duty or pressing necessity could take Aunt Sarah from home so late and on such a stormy evening.

Notwithstanding her promise to return promptly, it was nearly two hours before Aunt Sarah threw the doors of her sitting-room invitingly open.

"Come right in," she said, cheerily, "every one of you, just as fast as you can."

Susie Belle, who had fallen asleep after a weary watch, started at the sound of Aunt Sarah's voice. She fell back a few steps and began to rub her eyes. What could it mean? She was surely dreaming. Pouring into the room were rough men and miserable, drenched women, many of whom were carrying small children.

"Here, child! These poor people have had their homes washed away. Show the men into the kitchen while I get dry clothes for the women and children."

And Aunt Sarah fell to emptying chests, drawers and wardrobes, utterly regardless of her usually orderly habits. By ten o'clock that night, 20 men, women and children had been warmed, bountifully fed and comfortably bedded.

Aunt Sarah felt a strange lightness of heart as she and Susie Belle sought a hard bed in the attic. True, she was at first unmindful of His command; but had she not made generous atonement? Even the garments of her beloved dead, which she had aired and treasured year after year, were put into use that night. A dry sob arose in her throat as she thought of "Jim's folks. "Never mind," she said to herself. "Perhaps they will stay over Sunday, and I can cook them another Thanksgiving dinner."

Morning dawned clear. Aunt Sarah and her willing little helper were up betimes preparing breakfast for their numerous visitors, and a right comfortable one it was. Many of the wayfarers set out early to return to the doomed town or to seek friends or relatives in the country. Others lingered as though they were too weary and frightened from that terrible day's experience to think of aught else. Most of them were of the poorer class. One among them, however, was a man of kind and gentle manners, who somehow won Aunt Sarah's confidence at once. He did not ask many questions; but before she realized what she was doing, she had told him of the expected guests, the disappointment and even the mortgage.

A little later Aunt Sarah was hovering about her relatives, explaining and apologizing with tears in her eyes.

"Wasn't it grand of her to do that?" said Jim's wife, who proved to be a plump, kind little woman. "Don't you mind a bit, lear Aunt Sarah. Of course we'll stay over Sunday, and I will help you cook to-morrow; and Saturday we'll have a big dinner. I am not at all afraid of starving in the meantime."

Although the dinner was two days late, never was a more tempting one placed upon a board nor ever did happier people gather around it. Just as Cousin Jim had finished asking a blessing, his eldest son returned from the village, where he had gone upon an errand.

"Here is a letter for you, Cousin Sarah," he said, handing her a large envelope.

"A letter?" she echoed. "Who can be writing to me?"

She broke the seal and a crisp banknote fell upon her plate.

She read aloud:

"Dear Madam:

"I beg that you will pardon the liberty I take in sending this amount. I shall never miss it, as I am a wealthy man and have no family. One who knows how to make much good use of a home should certainly not lose it. Yours truly,

"ROBERT UPTON."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A LYNCHING BEE.

There was a hot time in the Polander settlement at Duluth. Two Poles, Albert Krause and Miles Kursch, fell in with a man named Arnold Manthey, and they spent the day drinking and finally went to bed together. When the two woke up in the morning Manthey was gone, and also their money, amounting to $62. They told their friends about it, and after church it was decided to take the law in their own hands.

After a search Manthey was found, but he denied all knowledge of the theft. They imprisoned him in a barn and after several attempts to force a confession decided to lynch him. They tied a rope around his neck and dragged him around the street, and finally hung him to a tree. He was cut down by some people who were attracted by the commotion, and none too soon, for he was partially unconscious. He then confessed and told where he had hid the money. There was only $50 at the place, and the Poles were going to hang him again for the other $12, when a policeman happened along and took him into custody.

The day's festivities wound up with a dance and a fight, in which Frank Parscevisch cut another fellow pretty badly.

ENGLISH LIKE OUR BUTTER.

The following from the London Grocer will be of interest to Minnesota creamery men and produce merchants:

"An interesting trial shipment of American butter arrived on the London market this week per the "St Paul," and was on view in Tooley street. It represented variously treated butters from four different dairy states, namely, Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa. All the butters were made from separated creams, excepting two from gathered cream, and it is curious that the latter turned out the worst of the whole parcel.

"The consignment from Minnesota, and the unbranded butter from Nebraska, made a particularly good impression, and, although not quite equal to the best colonial, show a marked improvement on the states' butter hitherto received; and no doubt careful study of the market requirements will enable these shippers so to improve their quality as to compete successfully against the highest grades now reaching this country from Canada."

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The state insane hospital board held a special meeting at the Ryan Hotel, St. Paul, and elected the following staff for the Anoka asylum: President, John Coleman, Anoka; matron, Mrs. Coleman; resident physician, Dr. Frank; engineer, Frank McCoslin.

In selecting Mr. Coleman as superintendent the board believes it has been fortunate. He has personally supervised the construction of the institution. He is president of the Anoka National Bank and prominent in the business life of that town.

The position of president joins with it that of steward. The salary was fixed recently at $1,200. Mrs. Coleman will receive $400 per year. The salary of the resident physician is $300, and that of the engineer $55 per month. The board also selected a baker and a cook. The remaining offices on the staff will be filled by the superintendent.

SEPARATOR BLOWN APART.

An almost new threshing separator belonging to Armstrong Bros., was blown apart when in operation on the farm of Mr. Heise, north of Easton. The cylinder and self-feeder were totally destroyed and in all about $300 worth of damage was done. It gave a tremendous report, and parts of the separator were blown four yards. It is thought to have been the result of dynamite placed in one of the stacks. No one was injured, although several men were around the machine at the time.

EFFORT WAS WASTED.

Pa Told His Son a Nice Little Story with a Moral, But It Was Unavailing.

I overheard a couple of well-known gentlemen relating their experience in domestic affairs a few days ago. One of them said his boy was inclined to devote too much of his time to athletic sports and neglect his studies, while the other found his boy devoting his energies to master half a dozen different musical instruments, which was the cause of his neglecting duties assigned him to perform.

"I took the boy aside," said the parent, "and told him the following story: A grasshopper wasted all the cheerful days of summer skipping gayly about in the fields and enjoying himself, while the prudent ant improved each hour by gathering food and storing it away. When winter came, and the thermometer registered in the vicinity of zero, the grasshopper approached the ant for the loan of provisions.

"But the ant said: 'What were you doing all summer?' 'Oh, singing and dancing,' said the grasshopper. 'Oh, well, chop ice now,' said the ant, so the hungry grasshopper went away and dropped dead from cold and hunger. I thought the moral of the story was too plain for me to make further comment, and as I was about to leave it with him to think it over the little fellow looked up and said: 'That's all right, pa, but there seems to be just as many grasshoppers.'

"There was nothing more to say."—Waterville (Me.) Mail.

is a somewhat hackneyed term as applied to railroad trains, but it accurately describes the Alton Limited, the newly equipped day trains of the Chicago & Alton R. R. Co. which were placed in daily service between Chicago and St. Louis, November 16, 1899. The equipment consists of standard Chicago & Alton passenger locomotive; United States postal car, sixty-six feet in length; combination passenger and baggage car, combination parlor chair car and coach, Chicago & Alton parlor chair car; cafe and buffet smoking car and Pullman parlor observation car, each of which is seventy-two feet six inches in length. The framing of all these cars is Pullman standard with Empire decks, wide vestibules, standard steel platforms and anti-telescoping device. All of the cars are lighted with electric lights except the mail car and combination passenger coach and baggage car, which are lighted with Pintsch gas. The windows throughout the entire train are of uniform width, the Gothic lights above being of the new Pullman standard. The ornamentation is of special design, the color scheme being maroon. Great care has been used in the selection of plushes and woods for the interior, and the lamps, metal furnishings, etc., are of special design. It is claimed that there has never been built in America a train which has received as much attention as to constructive details as has The Alton Limited. An examination of this superb train certainly bears out this claim.

Mrs. Pinkham's Medicine Made a New Woman of Mrs. Kuhn.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 64,492]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I think it is my duty to write to you expressing my sincere gratitude for the wonderful relief I have experienced by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried different doctors, also different kinds of medicine. I would feel better at times, then would be as bad as ever.

"For eight years I was a great sufferer. I had falling of the womb and was in such misery at my monthly periods I could not work but a little before I would have to lie down. Your medicine has made a new woman of me. I can now work all day and not get tired. I thank you for what you have done for me. I shall always praise your medicine to all suffering women."—MRS. E. E. KUHN, GERMANO, OHIO.

"I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used two packages of your Sanative Wash, also some of the Liver Pills, and I can say that your remedies will do all that you claim for them. Before taking your remedies I was very bad with womb trouble, was nervous, had no ambition, could not sleep, and my food seemed to do me no good. Now I am well, and your medicine has cured me. I will gladly recommend your medicine to every one wherever I go."—MRS. M. L. SHEARS, GUN MARSH, MICH.

This Guitar is made of the finest imitation mahogany with either solid rosewood or walnut fingerboard, pearl inlaid position dots and German silver raised frets; it has fancy inlay around sound hole and best quality American patent heads; the top of Guitar is beautifully bound with celluloid; it is strung with a full set of best quality steel springs and is ready to play upon.

THIS ELEGANT GUITAR FOR $2.65

No more, no less, than 5,000 of them, probably the largest contract in guitars ever made—an instrument that positively sells from $3.50 to $4.00. When this lot is exhausted we cannot duplicate this offer. Quantity talks. Only by operating on such a big scale, together with our well-known small profit policy, could such an offering be possible. Another reason for dispensing such a bargain broadcast is the confidence we feel that every guitar sold will win for us a permanent patron and a friend whose recommendation we can count upon. We will forward the guitar to any address C. O. D., subject to examination, upon receipt of 50c. We, however, advise that cash in full be sent, as that saves return charges for money and we stand perfectly ready to refund money if the guitar is not all and more than we claim for it. Remember our special price on 5,000 of them only is..... $2.65

OUR MAMMOTH CATALOGUE In which is listed at lowest wholesale prices everything to eat, wear and use, is furnished on receipt of only 10¢ to partly pay postage or expressage and as evidence of good faith the 10¢ is allowed on first purchase amounting to $1.00 or above.

FREE GOVERNMENT LANDS.

There are still thousands of acres of government lands in the states of Washington and Oregon, also prairie and timber lands near railroad and water communication that can be bought for $3.00 per acre; and there are no cyclones, blizzards, long winters or real hot summers, no failure of crops, but always good markets. If you wish to raise grain, principally, or fruit, or the finest stock on earth, you can find locations in these two states where you can do this to perfection. If you are looking for employment and wish to secure steady work at good wages, I can help you to do this. I have no land for sale, but if you want information about this write me at 199 E. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Nov. 24, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Joe Neison has rented his farm to Joe Deems and expects to move to Hopkins in the spring.

—C. D. Older has moved from the Grafft house into the house recently vacated by M. J. Stone.

—The Delano roller mill shipped a carload of flour to St. Paul this week. They make A 1 flour.

—Rev. Thompson, of Macalister, made the rounds of this circuit for the Presbyterians last Sunday.

—Joe Brenner answers very promptly to all who ask him if he wants to buy some fruit trees, "No Sir!"

—The pound party at the M. E. manse on Saturday evening was a great surprise, and well attended.

—Ferdinand Japs has purchased a part of the old power house at the round elevator and assisted in demolishing it.

—Dr. Frank, formerly of Watertown now of Anoka, has been chosen resident physician to the Hospital for Insane at that place.

—Flags were floated at half mast on Wednesday on receipt of the news of the death of Vice President Hobart on Tuesday, at his home in New Jersey.

—Thanksgiving exercises are being prepared for Wednesday afternoon for the different rooms in the Public Schools. Thursday will be a holiday. School on Friday.

—William Basa moved a building about a mile from North to South Third street last week without horses. He placed the building on skids and hitched two thresher engines to it and walked right along.

—Rev. Thompson held communion service at the M. E. church on Sunday morning, and went to Montrose for evening. Mrs. T. held a song service here in the evening. It was something new and well received.

—Some more of the Eagle's financial generosity has been displayed in soliciting penny subscription for a Dewey watch, when Dewey had already been supplied, and was abundantly able to buy more watches if he wanted them.

—We undrstand that the attendance in the Delano High School is very regular this winter, but that in some of the other departments irregularity and tardiness in attendance are altogether too frequent for the good of several pupils.

—William Basa has purchased the property on South Third street, of Miss Anna Quinn and moved into the house. He also bought the slaughter house formerly owned by L Bartlett, and has moved it onto the lots and is making a nice barn of it.

—If you have boys or girls or other relatives at a distance, remember they would be glad to read about home more often than you can write them, and subscribe for the GAZETTE for them, for 3 months 25 cents, 6 mo. 50 cts, or $1 per year. Some have done so.

—Word comes from Fergus Falls that Peter Borke has so far recovered as to be able to go to Hutchinson to live with his son Seth. John Stein is now considered to be in his normal condition and to be home soon. Both of these were sent to Fergus but a short time ago.

—Our village shoemaker, Olaf Peterson has just completed one of the largest contracts of the kind he has had for years. And though contrary to orders from Dr. Sturman, Chairman of Supervisors, John Turngren, has a new pair of No. 14s. These ought to keep John in the middle of the road when he runs for County Commissioner next fall.

—Attorney William Kennedy, of Minneapolis, formerly Prof. Kennedy, of Maple Plain school, was in town Tuesday, renewing old acquaintance. He took occasion to visit the High school, and was well pleased with the rooms visited. He says though that he can't reconcile himself to the claim that our new schoolhouse is not a dangerous fire trap. The Prof. is authority on this subject and speaks from experience.

—Rev. Mitchell, D. D., of Minneapolis, is one of the finest lecturers in the Minnesota field, and "My Ideal Boy" one of his best lectures. Be out Tuesday evening, Dec. 4, and hear him. A good instructive lecture is always worth hearing. Those who enjoy such things, even though living at a distance, should be out and encourage the move, and contribute their 25 cts to the M. E. parsonage fund. Children 15 cts.

—Charley Conzet's Methodistic advertisement calendars have been finding ready sale. Ten of the Sabbath school scholars volunteered to dispose of five apiece. It was not intended they should do so until Monday but they went right at it; one little fellow on the way home from S. S. is said to have sold two; another before night, brought his 25cts to his teacher. At this rate the parsonage debt is bound to succumb soon, of course aided by children of larger growth.

—River street people complain that a trio of young men, who ought to have been at home in bed made Wednesday night hideous for them, by their noisy demonstrations, knocking glass out of the Bruggeman building and such other things against the peace and dignity of the State of Minnesota. Where did they get their liquor against the law, and the contract made with the village by the saloon keeper? And why are not the bondsmen held responsible for damages? What are bondsmen for?

—A man who will get drunk and put the whip to his team and drive through town and start for home as fast as he can make his horses go, is called foolish. What are men who sell such a man drinks until he is in that condition? What are men who go on the bonds of men who sell to such a man? What are village officers who, contrary to their oaths of office, allow such a thing to occur? What are voters who continually vote such a condition of affairs? And yet Monday afternoon a poor drunken man, whooping and halloing and pounding his poor horses went out of town. Isn't that about as good a temperance lecture as could well be gotten up?

Children's Contribution's.

Some of the young people desiring to contribute to the M. E. Church debts we have been asked to publish names of donors who leave their money at the GAZETTE office. Any amount will be given credit. First contributor Guy Jones, Blaine Wright.

County Cullings.

Joe Boxell has brought suit against Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, his wife's parents, for $10,000 damages for alienating his wife's affections.

Among Our Exchanges.

BROAD AXE: Thomas Jefferson was dead years before railroads were heard of, but Chauncey Depew says Jefferson was against government control of them.

Prison Mirror: While Otis was walking along the beach at Manila the other day, he says he saw a sea serpent. If he should happen to go to the front, he is liable to see the devil.

Oregon Agriculturist: A squash which weighed 345 pounds was exhibited this fall at the National Export Exposition. The squash was grown by C. D. Riker, of Newburgh, N. Y. The exposition management paid him $500 for it.

Our Latest Music Offer.

Please send us the names and addresses of three music teachers or performers on the piano or organ and twentyfive cents in silver or postage and we will send you all of the following new and most popular pieces full sheet music arranged for piano or organ: "The Flower that won my Heart" now being sung by the best known singers in the country, "Mamie O'Rourke" the latest popular waltz song, "March Manila, Dewey's March Two Step" as played by the famous U. S. Marine Band of Washington D. C. and five other pages of popular music.

Georgia Prohibition.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—The Willingham bill, providing for state prohibition, was passed by the house of representatives of the general assembly of this state after the most exciting debate the house has known in years. If the bill passes the senate and becomes a law, it means the annihilation of the saloons. Every plant for the brewing of beer or the manufacture of whisky must close down. It does not interfere with banquets or private entertainments, but the law will not allow any club to sell or keep intoxicating liquors, beers or wines.—Dispatch.

Drink and Death.

Special to the Dispatch.

LEAD, S. D., Nov. 22.—Within the past ten days there have been four violent deaths in the Northern Hills as a result of drinking too much intoxicating liquor. The temperance people have a lesson which they are not failing to teach. The first two persons to meet death were Welge and Smith, who were thrown out of their wagon in a runaway while going from Deadwood to Spearfish. Hugh McBrtde, of this city, while intoxicated fell off an enbankment and broke his neck. At Sturgis, Dennis Courteny was killed by being dragged along a barbed wire fence, his face being torn off in a horrible manner. All four of these men were old timers in the Black Hills, and they came to their death in a state of intoxication.

A Timely Publication on South Africa.

A South African War Supplement, just from the press, and a revised to date two colored map of the South African seat of war, is announced by the New York World Almanac. The large demand for the 1898 World Almanac Spanish American War Supplement has prompted the present enterprise.

The supplement is a veritable compendium of information about South African affairs. It contains a complete resume of important events leading up to the war between England and the Boers, with a description of Cape Colony, Natal and the Orange Free State and South African Republic, showing area, population, production, railways, telegraphs, transportation routes, foreign commerce, religion and climate; also the fighting strength and resources of the combatants in the struggle for supremacy in the greatest gold producing country in the world.

The 1899 World Almanac, a substantially bound book of over 500 pages, the South African War Supplement and the War Map will be sent by the New York World, postage paid, on receipt of 25 cents in silver or stamps.

A Voice From the Soil.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., Nov. 20th '99.

The GAZETTE,

Mr. Editor: This is the second or third time I have pulled myself together to write up a few briefs for your paper. Business and prosperity has kept me back. It is no use to say anything about the weather; it speaks for itself. We do not need to go to the Philippine islands, Alaska, or Haydes to find any better.

Farmers have been very busy with their fall's work. Are anxious to get everything done before Congress meets and cold weather sets in. Most all the plowing is done and about all the corn is husked.

The Odd Fellows of Maple Plain have in the foundation for their new hall. The building will be 28 x 60 ft, six feet longer than the old one. I guess most of them favor expansion.

You can say in your paper that I have moved just 200 feet from the old house I lived in, into a new one across the road. I am no expansionist but believe in occupying all the territory we have before going beyond the seas in search of new territory acquired by conquest.

The Maple Plain creamery is making butter now. Mr. Moore expects to make a success of it this time.

The prospect is we will have a hot Congress the coming winter. The money power intends to have things go about their own way. Mark Hanna will join in the torch light procession and head the jackass parade. He would freeze the poor in order to sell coal at $10 a ton and many other things he would do in order to get gain.

Many of the daily dismire papers tell the people what they know about a single gold standard, expansion, tariff, prosperity, etc. Most of them have but little conception of what it all means. In my opinion the intention of the coming Congress (or designing men intend Congress will do it) is to make stringent laws against the producer and the laboring man.

Here is the way the New York Board of Trade puts itself on record at one of their meetings held Nov. 8th, 1899:

"Resolved that we ask the Congress of the United States to enact a law establishing the gold dollar as a standard and measure of value, and provide that the bonds and notes of the United States and all paper money, including National Bank notes, shall be redeemable in gold.

And further resolved by the New York Board of Trade and Transportation that the business interest of the United States demand a creation of a separate government, whose head shall be a cabinet officer, to be known as the department of commerce and manufactures, and the president of the United States is respectively urged to recommend to Congress early action to this end."

Mr. Editor, is not this strong language? But such is the language of Wall street and the money power. Now, Mr. Editor if those men get what they ask for, and I believe they will, what will the country and the rest of the people get? To use mild language they will get HELL. It will not be the first stepping stone to serfdom and involuntary servitude, but will be the stone that will cap the climax. Mr. Editor, if this awaits us, where is our hope? If there is no hope in ourselves to whom shall we look? Must we go beyond the seas to find relief for our grievance, or must we rally to the front and right things at home?

The Bulls and Boers are fighting over in the Transvaal and our armies are fighting the Filipinos 10,000 miles from home, to a great disadvantage, for what? Our imperialist friends say for love of country, but that is a mistranslation of the meaning. There was no love in it. Our country had not been invaded. No one had encroached upon our rights. The poor Filipinos hardly knew there was such a country as the United States before this war. The man who can not see through the whole matter is very short sighted and has but little conception. Mr. Editor, I am no Henry Clay, nor George Washington, nor a Mark Hanna. (If I was a Mark Hanna I would petition to the legislature to have my name changed) But I can see as far into a millstone as the man that picks it. And this whole thing about war was not for love of country as they pretend but love of money, and I would wager my life against a penny that some day the people will find it out. Our president in his Thanksgiving proclamation, tells about us being at peace with all mankind, while our armies are fighting the dusky Filipinos way over in the east of Asia.

John A. Logan Jr. a few days ago was killed in battle on the Philippine islands and President McKinley sends a telegram of sympathy and condolence to his bereaved widow. In part he says, "His splendid qualities as a soldier and high courage on the fighting line have given him place among the heroic men of the war, and it will be some consolation to you to know that he died for his country on the field of Honor". No doubt the president meant all right in this telegram, but I can't see where comes in the consolation to a bereaved widow and three children deprived of husband and father by the cruel hand of war.

Major Logan is worth more to his family and friends than the whole group of Philippine islands is to the United States.

Few are the words of grief; low is the voice of sorrow that comes from the people for the soldiers that have perished in the Philippine islands.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Cudmore on Kipling.

P. Cudmore, Esq., B. H., of Faribault, in his political "Prophecy of the Twentieth Century," goes for Kipling as follows:

"Tory Kipling, Mammon's servile slave,
'Gainst th' Boers and all republics rave.
He is Mammon's hireling—a great dastard:
A selfish scribbler and rootaster.
Rudyard Kipling, so goes the story,
A poetaster and a British Tory.
His soul is black, his mind is gory:
He want's Boer's blood and calls it glory.
Tory Kipling will soon be forgot,
And his mere dribbling and Tory rot.
The Tory Press of the Yankee nation
Quote Kipling's twaddle with approbation:
But a poet of everlasting fame
Will write for liberty and not for gain,
He will not be Kipling,—the man of shame:
He'll write for freedom—universal fame.
—Waseca Herald.

Aguinaldo is a fighter of the Charlie Mitchell variety.—Duluth News Tribune.

In what respect is the Filipino and the Alexandrian editor alike, pray?

THE G. O. P has decided to support the gold-bug National Democratic idea of a single gold standard. This of course is given out as being done kind of incidently and not for the purpose of forcing the money question into the campaign of 1900.

FREE SILVER REPUBLICANS have already declared Bryan their choice for President in 1900 That suits Democrats and everybody else but goldbugs It looks as if the advocates of trusts, imperialism, and gold standard would have to flock by themselves.

THE Star News, of Elk River, extends the right hand of fellowship to Hon. P. B. Winston, for his recent announcements of faith in the President's expansion policy. That is not the first time the Hon. P. B. has had faith in politics that didn't succeed: likewise Mr. Dare.

THE Delano Eagle now, according to her own claims, should take her place in the column of kickers, calamity howlers, copperheads, traitors, and giggers back on the American flag. Hon. John Lind, as Governor, can't suit her. Would he have him haul down the flag of our country from the capitol at St. Paul?

THE Boer war seems at present, more popular in America than "Uncle Sam's" war against the Philipinos. From newspaper reports more enlistments are being made in this country to aid the Boers to secure independence than there are to aid in keeping the Philipinos from securing independence. The American spirit is for free and equal rights to all men, and special privileges to none.

REPORTS from Otis that the war is just over in the Philipines comes very opportunely, as Congressman Joseph Wheeler, doesn't see it that way, and he has a reputation for seeing the situation. He recommends Congress to pass the resolution that United States sovereignty be maintained in Philipines and predicts great expense in men and money in case of failure to do so. Where does he expect the expense to come in if Otis is telling the truth that the war is over.

PEOPLE must be hard up for war when they will pick quarrels and make bargains how the war shall be carried on, what kind of ammunition used, and induce all the young men they can to "go to war" to kill off those from other lands. If the men that make the quarrels that set war going were obliged along with the suckers, who usually accumulate wealth by furnishing "supplies" solids, semi solid and liquids to the army, had to do the fighting themselves, there would be fewer wars.

REPUBLICANS seem to have made a choice for their nominee for Governor next time. Bob Evans, of Minneapolis is the man. He stands about as good a chance as did William Henry Eustis, last fall. There was talk of putting up a Scandinavian against John Lind but that would be a good deal like making a nationality boom of it, with the Swedes bound to get the office whichever way it went. And in order to give the rockribbed who don't want a Swede, a chance to choose, they put up Bob. That's about how it was with Eustis and he got beat.

ONE of the most effective means of securing peace to the world would be for those making the code of rules for international war according to civiliz nations; to not fire dum dum bullets, and so on, to insist that when a couple of so called leaders, in different countries feel like declaring war that they, instead of calling out the young men of their respective countries, proceed at once to individually settle their own disputes. This would be about as effective as the plan of the Chinese, whom we are now after, in cutting off the head of the band president whenever the bank brakes.

It Seems to Make a Difference.

Most every man one meets in this part of the country openly declares that he wishes the Boers success in their war against England. The patriotism in the American breast bubbles for freedom.

A couple of years ago Americans all over this country were wishing the Cubans and the Filipinos success in their efforts to gain their freedom from Spanish tyranny. So much in earnest did they become that many of them enlisted to aid in securing this blessing for them. They were successful. And now some of those in power backed up by a few office holders and others are for whipping these same people until they surrender unconditionally. This is wrong. It is against the teachings of a century in this country, where people have been taught from the cradle up that all men are created equal and endowed with certain unalienable rights. The true American would much rather qualify as citizens of this country, men who love their heaven born rights and who fight for them to the death than those who would ignominiously surrender them without a struggle, or for sordid wealth sell out their birth right. And the sympathy of every lover of the stars and stripes and what they represented when made the emblem of this free country goes out to those struggling for the same cause wherever and whoever they may be.

Enter the Filippino Army.

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 22.—Edward S. Chester of this city, formerly a private in Company M, Seventeenth United States infantry, and who has just returned from the Philippines, where he was two months on the firing line, said that the American soldiers who for one crime or another have been dishonorably discharged from the army, officer many of the Filipino commands. The rebel commanders offer large inducements in the way of salary and position to any who will forsake the American army. Chester says these Americans are a reckless class and in a great part to their energy is due the tenacity of the rebellion. He said these American soldiers led the Filipinos in several of the fiercest engagements and play an important part in keeping alive the spirit of rebellion among the fragments of Aguinaldo's command. -Pioneer Press.

Even Up.

It is not believed that Aguinaldo would know a firing line if he saw one. —Duluth News Tribune

Returned members of the 13th are of about that opinion of Gen. Otis.

It is admitting considerable for the News Tribune to say that anybody believes Aguinaldo wouldn't know a firing line if he seen it after Otis having the "situation well in hand" trying all summer to show him one.

Would Hogg all Hope.

The Aitkin Republican quotes Congressman Page Morris as saying:

"It is to be regretted that the elections did not produce more sweeping republican victories in order to prevent rainbow chasing democrats from finding any hope in it. With such results, in my judgment, the insurrection in the Philippines would have been ended almost immediately and many American lives would have been saved. As it is the returns will have a good effect."

A Splendid Chance For You

The Farmers' (Twice-a-Week) Tribune, of Minneapolis, is making an exceptionally liberal offer to young people generally, particularly persons who have never tried soliciting newspaper subscriptions, to aid them in getting 100,000 subscribers by Jan. 1, 1900. It is probably the most liberal proposition ever made by any newspaper in America, and it will interest many who do not ordinarily care to engage in getting subscription.

The Farmers' Tribune is the daily Minneapolis Tribune and the Evening Tribune "boiled down" for the use of people who do not have time to read a daily paper. It comes to the home twice every week, filled with the best news of the world and the Northwest, the best serial and short stories, political gossip and market reports—all the best that money will buy.

Almost everybody can get a few newspaper subscribers from among his friends and acquaintances, and with such a generous offer as made by the Farmer's Tribune it is quite worth one's while to make the effort.

Send a postal card to the Farmers' Tribune for their subscription circular and sample paper.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25, 1899.

Senator Jones, of Ark., Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has returned to Washington for the session of Congress. He has entirely recovered his health; says he never felt better, and that, like the democratic party, he is full of fight. He believes, and with good reasons for his belief, that the democratic party is today in better condition for the Presidential campaign than the republican party is, and that its condition is more likely to improve between now and the opening of the campaign than is that of the republican party: and he says further that his belief is fully shared by every man who attended the recent democratic conference at Chicago. He looks confidently for democratic assistance from the legislation of this Congress, republican in both branches; the Shylocks of the last presidential campaign are already demanding their pound of flesh, with no shrewd Portia in sight to show Mr. McKinley how to meet the demand in such a way that they will be obliged to follow the example of Shakespeare's Shylock. It looks now as though they would get the pound of flesh and with it the life of the republican party.

There is reason to believe that Senator Deboe, of Ky., was in Washington this week for the purpose of enlisting administration support for a scheme by which a combination of republicans and gold democrats in the Kentucky legislature hope to confirm Taylor's election to be governor and to re-elect Senator Lindsay, and that he succeeded in getting Mr. McKinley to promise to use the whole influence of the Federal administration to help along the scheme.

Vice President Hobart was one of the rare men who could be a strong partisan in politics without forfeiting the personal esteem of his opponents. That is why democratic Senators sorrow quite as deeply over his death as do their republican colleagues or the members of the administration of which Mr. Hobart was as important part- a much more impoftant part that is generally known-and why many democrats will go with the large party of officials from Washington to Paterson, N. J., to attend the funeral, Saturday. Senator Frye, of Me., who was elected president pro tempore of the Senate, early in the last Congress will preside over the Senate at the coming session, the only difference made by the death of Mr. Hobart being that Senator Frye will draw $8,000 a year more salary and will have the use of the Vice President's room in the capitol. It will not change his title, and the Vice Presidency will remain vacant until after the next national election, there being no law providing for filling a vacancy in that office.

Mr. Henderson says he will announce the House committees before the holiday recess. If he does, and there is no good reason why he shouldn't, since he has known for months that he would be Speaker, and knows all of the old members personally, the House should get down to business much earlier than it usually does at the opening of a new Congress. There is some talk among republicans of making the chairman of the House committee on Banking and Currency their floor leader, instead of the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Ex-Speaker Reed's reference to the vote in Ohio, in a speech made at the annual banquet of the New York Chamber of Commerce, has been much talked about in Washington, and is calculated to make those republicans who have been disposed to regard Mr. McKinley's re-election as a matter of course, do some hard thinking. Mr. Reed said: "The republican candidate had but 49,000 plurality (McKinley's majority in the state in '96 was 40,000) while a third candidate had 105,000 votes. In the old days when a majority over all was required, there would have been no election".

Mr. John R. McLean, who was democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, and who is Admiral Dewey's brother-in-law, believes that the fierce adverse criticism of Admiral Dewey, already shown to have been without just cause for deeding the house recently given him, to Mrs. Dewey in order that she might share in the pleasure of giving the house to George Goodwin Dewey, the Admiral's only child,-an act which she has already performed-was the result of concerted action on the part of certain republican politicians, who have determined to take advantage of every opening in their effort to break down Admiral Dewey's popularity so as to remove him from the list of Presidential possibilities. Mr. McLean, who is not given to making assertions without having substantial reasons therefore, said in an authorized interview: "The criticisms against Admiral Dewey have been inspired by certain persons, who for well understood reasons, have little love for the Admiral. It is an insiduous attack upon a representative American by hidden political foes. I believe that the fight which has started so insiduously will soon become open, and I have no doubt that the American people, who always love fairplay, will resent these unjust and injurious attacks upon Admiral Dewey's character in a way that will not be soon forgotten by the men responsible for the criticisms."

A Drinking Methodist.

National Chairman Samuel Dickie and William P. F. Fergenson, of the Voice-Leyer, state that at the great Auditorium banquet in Chicago they saw President Mckinley several times drink from the bottles, which, according to the menu, contained intoxicating liquors. His glasses were several times replenished and several times he touched them to those in the hands of distinguished guests near him.

The charge has made a profound impression. Among the bodies which have considered the matter is the Chicago Methodist Ministers meeting. The subject caused great excitement. It will not down.—Backbone.

He's in the Wrong Pew.

Hon. Arthur Pue Gorman, who was supposed to be dead, is lining up the Maryland Democrats against Bryan. It will be recalled that Mr. Bryan neglected to congratulate Maryland over the elections.—Duluth News Tribune.

Daunt's Wooing

CUPID is a little creature and can hide in a small place—he has even been known to secrete himself in a strawberry box. And that is the story.

Sanderson, of Verbena, had 20 acres out in berries, which was bad sense on his part, considering that small fruits bring next to no profit in these days. But Sanderson liked strawberries and appeared to be willing to raise them for the delectation of the rest of mankind, even though he was not enriched by the labor. So when the June sun turned the fruit juicy and the perfume of the berries hung heavy upon the sweltering air, the field was thronged with pickers, who rode out from the village on great hay racks and back again at night, singing and laughing and scandalizing the neighbors.

Among the noisy pickers there was one fellow who kept to himself and who neither whistled nor sang nor called out to the others. This was Daunt Jewlson, of the Becker road. He walked two miles from the north every morning to meet the hay ricks at the village and no one knew much about him except that he had a small farm laid out in sweet potatoes and peanuts. In a country where every one grew fruit almost exclusively, and where peaches were king, it seemed amusing for a man to raise sweet potatoes and peanuts, and Daunt was usually accosted in the morning with:

"Well, how's the peanut crop?" or:

"The great American luxury gettin' on all right, Daunt?"

Daunt was brief but not taciturn in his responses. He was not a particularly fast picker, and he seemed to dream a good deal. He set the whole company in a roar of laughter one night as he and they stood about the packing sheds looking at the crates of luscious fruit as it was being prepared for shipment.

"I wonder where all them berries are going?" said he, pensively. He looked so absurd with his watery blue eyes and his large ears and mouth that everybody roared.

"Want to go along, Daunt?" cried they. Daunt nodded.

"You bet I'd like to go along," he murmured, wistfully. And that evening he did not ride home on the rick with the rest, but walked along the lake shore three miles to town and two miles beyond to the lonely house among the potatoes and the peanuts. Then he milked his cow and drank milk for supper, sitting out where he could watch the red sunset.

It was the next day that an idea came to him—one of the first of his life. He took his pencil and wrote on the inside of a strawberry box: "I am Daunt Jewlson, of the Becker road, near South Fork. I would like to court up with whoever gits these here berries." Then he piled in the fruit, and the box went away with the rest, none witting, though Daunt had been in a terror lest some accident should occur which would reveal his secret to his jeering friends.

Now, little Lena Nelsen, who had been used all her life to wide, melancholy fields, to a somber fiord, to distant hemlocks, and to a house where logs burned on the hearth, was homesick past words where she worked in the flat on North Erie street. Thirty-two families were crowded together in the big apartment building, and the maids at night ran down to the big telephone room to gossip together. Moreover, they said many things which it offended Lena to hear. So she staid alone in the hot kitchen and puzzled over the English in the newspapers or read her Bible in her own beloved tongue.

The day had been peculiarly trying. The bread had not risen well. The fruit she had selected at the store was overripe, and her mistress had not been well pleased. The ringing of the bells seemed incessant, and the kitchen was horribly hot. Lena shut her eyes once or twice to enable herself to imagine that she was a little girl again back with her mother, walking the quiet fields where the thousand flowers grew—that was what they used to say of the field, that it was the place of a thousand flowers. For generations that had been said of it.

Lena had just set the table for luncheon and made moan over the raised biscuits which were not raised enough, and poured the berries out of the box, when she came upon Daunt's message. She was obliged to read it over three times before she got the full meaning of it, and first she smiled a little contemptuously, and then the tears came into her eyes. No doubt others beside herself were lonesome at times.

She set the box away in her own hot little bedroom off the kitchen, and two or three times during the afternoon she went in and looked at it, and in the evening after the work was done she sat beside the kitchen table and stared hard at it till her eyes seemed to turn their understanding inward. Now Lena came of an old, old family of peasants, who had been famed time in and time out for knowing things in a mysterious way. Lena had never had the least bit of confidence in these traditions, and to tease her mother—ah! would that her dear mother were now alive to tease—she had been used to talk about her grandames, the witches. But now a curious thing happened. In the silence of the sultry night Lena's tired body seemed to become as nothing, and her lonely little mind appeared to be traveling up a sandy beach all in a red, red sunset to a farm, where before a cottage a young man sat staring wistfully off upon the water. And the loneliness in his heart seemed like a piece of the loneliness within hers. Then suddenly the young man and the cottage and the red, red sunset were no more. There was nothing but the hot kitchen and her tired limbs and aching head.

She went to bed and dreamed a dream, and it seemed to her that she rand and laughed upon a shore where the waves rolled in, and that a young man ran and leaped beside her, and that when the stars came out they went together to some quiet fields, planted with goodly things, and to a cottage which was their home. In the early dawn she awoke to know it for a dream, and she wept homesick tears for the home that was not.

That is how it came about that that evening Lena wrote an impossible little letter and directed it to Daunt Jewlson, of the Becker road, near South Fork.

Daunt always went to the post office at least once a week, because he took the county paper. And then, sometimes, at the proper season, he had communication with commission men on South Water street. But he had never had a letter of any other sort since his mother died, till he got Lena's little note, and took it home to read it at his leisure.

"I, Lena Nelson, got the berry box, read it, and I say I will let you court up to me if you are a good man. I am sad, for I have no one of my own any more. Are you sad, too?"

It was quite correctly spelled, and was altogether a better epistle than Daunt, born to the tongue though he was, could have contrived. But, then, Lena had taken the greatest pains in learning her English, and Daunt had always held the matter in more or less contempt. It was an exciting night for him. He was enchanted with the letter. He walked about his little house, holding the note in his hand, and wondering what sort of a girl had written it, and what a woman would think of his home, and how it would seem to be married. Daunt was much in earnest. He was not a man who expressed an idle wish. He had meant what he wrote on the strawberry box.

But through the somewhat dim chambers of his brain there ran the suggestion that marriage with an unknown person might be a dangerous thing. Yet the little missive did not seem dangerous. It seemed sweet. He had a sense that Lena was a dear girl. Folks who live alone sometimes get a sort of instinct, like the animals. They knew things, not knowing why they knew them.

Well, Daunt wrote, and Lena wrote and Daunt wrote, and then one day he took the morning boat over to the city, and, it being Thursday afternoon and Lena's free day, she met him at the pier. They knew each other the first thing, for Daunt wore, as had been arranged, a rose in the band of his hat, and she had blue ribbons and a white dress. She knew where she wanted to go, and led him to the esplanade and they walked there together looking at the lake and the people on wheels, and the grand carriages and all the throng of the city.

"But I like the lake best over on t'other side," said Daunt. "I like to run in the sand."

"I know it," remarked Lena.

"Do you? How do you know it?"

"Oh, I have ways of knowing. I dream sometimes."

Daunt gasped. Then he made a confession.

"So do I," he said. "I guess you ain't much different from what I thought you'd be."

"You're the same," the girl responded. "I'd have known you without the rose."

Then she told him about the fields of her childhood, and he told her about his house and his peanuts and potatoes. She was intensely interested.

"I should laugh all the time if I could live in the country like that," said she.

"Then come and laugh all the time!" cried Daunt, with a wit worthy of a brighter man.

"Some time," said Lena, shyly, "perhaps."

"After harvest?" queried Daunt.

"Maybe," sighed Lena. She thought of the rides down the country road, of a low, red moon, of corn in the stack, or grapes with the early frost upon their swelling sides.

"Say yes!" pleaded Daunt, his loneliness making his pale eyes eloquent.

"Yes," breathed Lena—and the wind of the sweet countryside seemed to blow upon her, so that she forgot the pavement beneath her feet, and the throngs of selfish people, and the beating of the hoofs on the drive.—Chicago Tribune.

Worst Aspect of Hero Worship.

The worst thing about this hero worship is that it gives the young men and the children the wrong idea of life, its objects and hopes. The best life is the life of labor, of production. Worship of war heroes, comments the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen, teaches the young that the ideal life is one of alternate blood and idleness, of tax-eating and brass buttons, of might against right.

Subject to Taxes.

The assessors at Killingworth, Conn., have received the following schedule of property handed in by a poet-farmer of that town:

One wife with red hair, two steers—that's a pair.
One horse (she's a mare), that is all, I swear.

In his letter to the Paris committee which extended the invitation asking him to lead a series of concerts, he expresses regret that "circumstances have so changed of late that I, as an American who loves justice and liberty, am prevented from visiting the metropolis of France next summer."

The wreck of the cruiser Charleston is most unfortunate. But it is rather remarkable that we have escaped with so few disasters. The navy has gone through a war in which our ships have knocked about hostile and dangerous coasts for months at a time, thousands of men have been transported to Cuba and the Philippines, and yet the Charleston is the only vessel of the navy that has been lost. So, while we all regret the loss of the cruiser, we may well be thankful that the navy has come through its dangers so well.

The harbor of Pago-Pago is the best in the Pacific, and this renders the island of Tululla, in which the harbor is situated, and which comes to us as a result of the division of Samoa, a valuable acquisition. The tripartite arrangement entered into between the United States, England and Germany in Samoa a dozen years ago was unsatisfactory, and the treaty which ends it, which has still to go before the senate for action, will be welcomed by Americans. Tululla is a very small island, but it is, on the whole, the most valuable of the group.

For the fortieth time in their history the cable reports that the Christian inhabitants of Armenia have risen in revolt against their Turkish oppressors. Probably no territory in the world of similar size has been the scene of so many and such long-continued wars. Thirty-nine times the Armenians by force of arms have won the independence of their country, only to lose it again. Since the Turks have been in control of the country the sultan has done everything possible to destroy the military spirit of the people and has signally failed.

Additional details of Marconi's recent experiments on the American liner St. Paul, while bound for Southampton, have been published by the London papers. Marconi not only received all of the latest war news by wireless telegraphy 65 miles before the St. Paul was in sight of land, but he published it all in a newspaper called "The Trans-Atlantic Times," copies of which sold for one dollar each. One passenger, when the St. Paul was still 40 miles from shore, arranged for a supper party in London. These are, indeed, days of wonderful progress.

A LEADER IN FLIGHT.

Aguinaldo Is Being Chased by Gen. Young.

Is Thought to Be Headed for Bangued —Rebels Evacuate Mangalaren —Gen. Otis Tells of the Situation.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Gen. Otis reports the situation in the Philippines in the following dispatch to the war department:

"Manila, Nov. 27.—Steamer from San Fabian yesterday brought 115 Spanish prisoners, $75,000 insurgent government money and other property captured by Lawton's troops near Tayug on 25th. Wheaton's troops, Fowler's company, Thirty-third, drove enemy westward from Mangataren a few miles southwest Dagupan, captured five three-inch muzzle-loading guns, 12 rifles, 12,000 rounds Maxim cartridges, 1,000 shrapnel, 800 pounds of powder and other property, also 94 Spanish and seven American prisoners. Bell, with Thirty-sixth infantry in pursuit and will march down western Luzon coast. ndications are two or three bodies insurgent troops numbering probably 500 or more men each in mountains west of railroad, can be readily handled by MacArthur; they have the bulk of the insurgent artillery all of which will be captured unless buried.

Still Pursuing Aguinaldo.

Young still in pursuit of Aguinaldo who is heading for Bangued a few miles east of Vigan; Young with cavalry and scouts is followed by battalion Thirty-third and by balance battalion Twenty-second; two battalions Thirty-third en route for Vigan by military post road. Young's reception by inhabitants enthusiastically; they give all aid possible. Aguinaldo has collected more than 1,000 of his troops at the north, probably most will desert him. Number small detachments insurgent troops throughout country north of Manila have been captured and inhabitants manifest gratitude for deliverance. Indications are that insurgent force south of Manila disintegrating and troops going to their homes. Reports from southern islands favorable.

"Zamboanga insurgents surrendered to our troops and no trouble anticipated there."

Later in the day the following dispatch was received from Gen. Otis:

"Oregon landed marines at Vigan Sunday. Young's column at Nainogpacan, 20 miles north of San Fernando, on the 23d, from which point passed north into the mountains. The troops will relieve the marines at Vigan on the 29th. The bulk of the Spanish and American prisoners are reported at Bangued, 20 miles east of Vigan. Wheaton, San Fabian, just reports the capture of 73 more rifles, $1,100 in money; also that he has been obliged to take the mother and son of Aguinaldo under guard at Fabian to prevent their murder by natives. They will be sent here at first opportunity and delivered to friends. Natives in vicinity of Bayonbong, Nueata Viscaya, are offering services to drive out the insurgents and request arms. Report only 400 insurgents there.

"Report from Zamboanga says the insurgents surrendered the heavy artillery to the navy and since have surrendered to Nichols, commanding the battalion of the Twenty-third infantry, 179 rifles, one Nordenfelt and four breech-loading cannon. Order restored in town and vicinity. About 80 Tagolos scattered in mountains."

Officer Killed.

Gen. Otis also reports that the officer killed in action at Iloilo on the 22d instant was Charles M. Smith, a second lieutenant in the Eighteenth infantry.

Evacuate Maugalaren.

Manila, Nov. 28.—The insurgents have evacuated Mangalaren, province of Pangasanan, leaving seven American and 94 Spanish prisoners, who escaped in the confusion on the Filipino retreat. The Americans are P. J. Green and George Powers, of the battleship Oregon; Thomas Edwards and Charles Bird, of the Sixteenth infantry; Henry W. James, of the Twelfth infantry; John Desmond, of the signal corps, and F. H. Huber, of Lowe's scouts. They report that two Americans, who were unable to escape, are with the insurgents. They are David Scott, of the Twenty-fourth infantry, and William Sherby, of the hospital corps. Four deserters are with the Filipinos, Howard, Martin and Ford, of the Californians, and Watts, whose former regiment is unknown.

Howard is the only one serving with the insurgents. He is a captain of artillery.

Col. Bell, of the Thirty-fourth volunteers, arrived at Mangalaren, after a hard mareh and fording the Agno. He found that Fowler's company of the Thirty-third had occupied the town for two days. The insurgents, Gen. Alejandrino commanding, retreated to the mountains behind the town, short of food and ammunitions. Besides this his men are deserting and six cannon, which the insurgents were dragging, impeded their march. Col. Bell proposes to follow the Filipinos until he can bring about a decisive fight or they are scattered. Mangalaren was strongly fortified with rifle pits commanding the roads, but the insurgents abandoned the place without firing a shot.

Spanish Prisoners Reach Manila.

Manila, Nov. 28.—Three hundred Spanish prisoners who escaped from their captors before the American advance, including civil officials of rank who had been in the hands of the Filipinos for more than a year and many officers, have arrived at Manila during the past week. Francisco Reyes brought 100 of them from Gen. Wheaton. They were a motley-appareled and bearded company. Some were ill and had to be carried from Tayug to San Fabian in army wagons. A delegation of these former prisoners have visited Maj. Gen. Otis in order to thank him for his hospitality, which included the furnishing of food and clothes. Senor Jamarillo, the Spanish commissioner, is making arrangements to send them to Spain on board of Spanish transports.

New York, Nov. 28.—Disbursements for bonds at the subtreasury Monday under the call of Secretary Gage were $556,531; total payments to date, $12,619,388.82. The largest single offering Monday was $150,000.

EAGER FOR NEWS.

Much Anxiety in London Over Meagerness of Information—A British Repulse Reported.

London, Nov. 28.—A fresh interruption in the East African cable service at this interesting moment has caused a cessation of war news. As yet the war office has not received Lord Methuen's detailed list of casualties, nor is any information at hand regarding the whereabouts of the Ninth lancers, who were sent in pursuit of the Boers from Gras Pan.

The Daily Mail says that a private telegram announces that the lancers are still scouting ahead of Methuen's advancing column, but as he announced that he was giving his men a day's rest this is hardly possible.

Indeed, the greatest anxiety is felt, and more especially in view of the fact that a Berlin journal, the Deutschewarte, which regularly prints Boer communications, announced Sunday, before it could have been ascertained from British sources, that the naval brigade lost 100 men at Gras Pan and that the Ninth lancers were captured.

It is understood that the government decided to proceed immediately with the mobilization and embarkation of a sixth division of 10,000 men, under a well known lieutenant general.

Gen. Hildyard's achievement at Beacon Hill is beginning to be recognized as one of the best things the campaign has yet shown, as it has relieved the tension of the situation in Natal and has brought the relief of Ladysmith within measurable distance. Gen. Buller appears to be confident of Lord Methuen's ability and is devoting all his energy to Ladysmith.

An attempt will be made presumably to reach Colenso in time to cut off the retreat of the Boers from Weenen over the Tugela river. It is feared, however, that the enemy will get there first and destroy the bridge. At Frere bridge the British found two massive spans utterly wrecked by dynamite, one piece weighing 224 pounds having been hurled 200 yards.

Sir Alfred Milner has warned the various relief committees in Cape Town to be prepared for the arrival of 10,000 refugees from Kimberley as soon as the siege has been raised.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The New York Journal correspondent cables: Newspapers announce from Boer-European sources that Gen. Lord Methuen advanced beyond Gras Pan and attacked the Boers Monday. They assert that the British were repulsed with great slaughter. The Boers got around in the British rear and shot down over 100 of the naval brigade. The Ninth lancers, who dashed ahead after last Saturday's battle, it is declared, have been captured.

Cape Town, Nov. 28. — It is reported that Gen. Methuen has captured Honey Nest Kroof, ten miles north of Gras Pan, and 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

New York, Nov. 28.—The Evening Post says: Enlistments for the Boer army, it was learned, Monday, are making some progress in this city, though more men are volunteering in Philadelphia and other places. The recruits are found chiefly among the Irish-Americans, although Germans and men of other nationalities are also volunteering to fight under the Boer flag. Some dozens of young Irishmen have already left this city for the Transvaal, but the largest recruiting is done in Chicago and other western cities, San Francisco sending her quota. In the Rand at the beginning of the war there were some thousands of Irishmen who had not been particularly esteemed by the British government before they left Ireland. These have now, with few exceptions, taken the field. These men have always stood high in the friendship of Kruger, and it is said he can have as many men from this country as he wants.

TRAGEDY IN OHIO.

Angry Farmer Kills a Constable and Fatally Wounds Another Official.

Mansfield, O., Nov. 28.—Intense excitement prevails near Chicago Junction, Huron county, over the murder of Constable William Smith and probable fatal shooting of Marshal J. T. Conklin, of Plymouth, by Ezra Moore, a farmer. The officers went to Moore's house to levy an execution and Moore became incensed. Seizing a shotgun, Moore shot Smith in the head and Conklin in the head and shoulder. Smith died in a few minutes. Sheriff Ronk left for the scene of the tragedy with a posse, but on reaching there it was found that Moore had escaped. Bloodhounds were placed on his trail.

DEWEY AGREES TO DATE.

Writes to Chicago Officials That May 1 Next Is Satisfactory as Date of His Visit to City.

Chicago, Nov. 28. — Admiral Dewey has accepted the invitation to visit Chicago May 1 next year, the following letter having been received from him by the committee:

"Office of the Admiral, 1747 Rhode Island Avenue, Washington, Nov. 25, 1899.

"Martin B. Madden, Esq., Vice Chairman of Committee, Chicago, Ill. Dear Sir: Acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 23d inst., asking that the date for my visit to Chicago be fixed for May 1, 1900, I have the honor to state that this date will be agreeable to me. Very truly yours,

(Signed) "GEORGE DEWEY."

GUIDED BY INTUITION.

Woman Jumps at Conclusions Without Resorting to Logic and Wins.

"I begin to think there is no limit to woman's intuition. It frequently enables her to read character on sight, but what gets me and strikes me as uncanny is the fact that this same intuition projects her knowledge into the future and makes her about as conversant with things to come as with things past.

"Let me illustrate. When the copper market was so active I put in hours every day studying quotations, fluctuations, and the outlook. As the result of a conclusion reached by this careful method I invested $200, made good margins, and was finally glad to let go with a loss considerably larger than my original investment.

"During a period of confidence and in the enjoyment of prospective riches I had told my wife of my investment and of the good things she might expect when the deal was closed. It gave her the speculative fever and she was bound to make a plunge. She doesn't know what the word stocks means. A market report is Greek to her. She couldn't figure on the outlook if she had all the data and a slate and pencil. Yet she came to me with $100 she had saved in old teapots and stockings and told me to buy P. Q. M. shares. I sneeringly told her that they were dead and buried; that she might as well invest in a dry oil well or a sunken ship. But her mind was made up. I thought the lesson would be a cheap one for her and I obeyed.

"Those shares took a sudden jump to the surprise of everyone and she cleared $2,000. 'Men don't seem to have any business sense,' she said, when we compared notes. 'P. Q. M. stands for pretty quick money, but a stupid man would never see it.'

Electricity for Brain.

A European scientist claims to have discovered an apparatus which will stimulate the brain. It has been tried on school boys, and consists of an electric band. While scientists have been busy inventing unnatural ways of making the brain work, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has for fifty years been doing it naturally. It cures dyspepsia and all stomach troubles and builds up and invigorates the entire system. There is nothing "just as good."

Protection at Both Ends.

A nervous drummer, who carries with him wherever he travels a coil of rope, was asked by the landlord of a small hotel up in Shasta county what the rope was for. "That's a fire escape," explained the drummer, "and I always have it with me so in case of fire I can let myself down from the window." "Seems like a pretty good idea," said the landlord, "but guests with fire escapes pay in advance at this hotel."—San Francisco Wave.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 94,398]

"I am so grateful to you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me that I feel as though I must tell about it. A year ago I was taken very sick. Doctors could do me no good only to deaden the pain which I had almost constantly. I got some of your Compound and took one bottle and received benefit from it at once. I have taken it ever since and now have no backache, no pain in my side and my stomach and bowels are perfectly well. I can honestly say that there is nothing like it. If I could only tell every woman how much good your medicine has done me, they would surely try it."—MARTHA M. KING, NORTH ATTLEBORO, MASS.

Women Would Surely Try Mrs. Pinkham's Medicine if They Only Knew, Says Mrs. King

The way women trifle with health shows a degree of indifference that is past understanding. Happiness and usefulness depend on physical health; so does a good disposition. Disease makes women nervous, irritable and snappish. The very effort of ailing women to be good-natured makes them nervous. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, she will help you to health and happiness.

It costs nothing to get Mrs. Pinkham's advice. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK

FOR THE REFORM NATIONAL POLITICAL SITUATION.

Gathered From the Democratic Executive Committee Meeting — National Committeeman O'Brien's Conservative View—Maturing Plans—Good News of Senator Jones' Health — Mr. Bryan May Rest Till He Comes Here in January—Farm, Stock and Home on Current Questions — McKinley-Cleveland Financiering All the Same — State Political Points—The Week's Roundup of News and Comment.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Nov. 27, 1899.

All reports from the Chicago meeting of the executive committee of the National Democratic committee, agree that the outlook is encouraging for an efficient national campaign and consequent success next year.

Mr. T. D. O' Brien, the Minnesota member, gave an interesting summary for our daily press. Senator James K. Jones, national chairman, was present at the meeting, and his friends throughout the country rejoice at his recovery. The business in the senator's absence abroad has been in able hands those of Hon. J. G. Johnson of Kansas and Hon. Sam B. Cook of Missouri. These have proceeded on lines agreeable to Senator Jones and the party's other great advisers, and encouraging results are being accomplished, both as to raising means and as to actual work in the field. All factions have, Mr. O'Brien says, disappeared, which is specially pleasing, considering the friction that has existed in Illinois. The party will enter on the campaign of 1900 very much better equipped than it was in 1896. Mr. O'Brien emphasized the attention turned towards the Central, Western and Northwestern states, and that Minnesota is looked to for important results next year. In other words the electoral vote of Minnesota is to be called for for our great leader, W. J. Bryan. There is every reason to feel that our friends will not be disappointed.

From Mr. O'Brien, and from State Chairman Rosing, who accompanied him, every encouragement was received as to the outlook. Our forces of 1896 are practically as solid as they were when lined up at the polls. We have powerful allies for the newer issues, on which the attitude of Democracy will be nothing uncertain. There is nowhere a serious suggestion of any candidate but Bryan, and in all parts of the country, the South especially, the party is unified or fast unifying. This also includes New York, with the assurance that it will be in the Democratic column.

Senator Jones, national chairman, has been in Arkansas since his return from abroad, until the committee meeting, and has now gone to Washington for the session and to give attention to the committee work accumulated there. The principal work, for the time being at least, will be in the hands of Messrs. Johnson and Cook at Chicago.

Speaking of allies, the American Anti-Imperialist league, is progressing well at the Chicago national headquarters, which is in charge of Chairman Edwin Burrett Smith and Secretary M. J. Mize.

From Hon. R. W. Boddinghouse, secretary of the Anti-Trust National League, Chicago, we learn that preliminaries for the coming conference are progressing favorably. The call will soon issue, and is signed by several hundred prominent men of all parts of the country. Minnesota will be represented on the call by several prominent citizens. "Toledo" Jones, Anti-Hanna McKisson of Cleveland, Attorney General Monett of Ohio, Senator Mason of Illinois, Judge Black of Pennsylvania, President Droppers of South Dakota University are among the signers of the call.

"See the goppite papers make another "break" in placing Mr. Bryan in the senate in the place of the dying Republican senator of Nebraska. The senate is too small, at present, for W.J. Bryan. He's too busy. Just now he is resting in the far Southwest, where he may remain until he comes here in January."

Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis, certainly one of the greatest agricultural journals in the whole country, and which ever has in mind the true interests of its agricultural patrons, devotes more than usual space in its current issue to topics of state and national importance, the more important since Farm, Stock and Home has upwards of 50,000 circulation, all in the Northwest, and a large part of it in Minnesota. Mr. Owen, the editor, goes into details, from the records, as to the increase in inspection fees, made so much of by the goppite press. In addition to the well known explanation that it has been necessary in order to meet the increased demands, including increases of expenditures made by Republican legislation, another is found in the increase of the size of cars, the capacity of which has risen from 400 to 600 bushels to 800 to 1,400. For these the 25 cent rate is not more that 12½ cents would have been formerly.

Among most toothsome and effective matter in the same issue, Mr. Owen has skinned "Sound Money" to a finish, on the purchasing power of gold. It is not "stability" that gold standard advocates really want, but "purchasing power." Questions to ask the farmers, says Mr. Owen, are:

Why this insistence upon money with large purchasing power? Why should we object to a dollar that would require only a bushel of wheat to buy, and why is there a class of men who regret to see such a dollar, and will do everything in their power to prevent its coming?

In which connection Farm, Stock and Home has an article showing how cattle, for instance, in both price and quantity, considering population, have gone down. If this is not by the reason of the purchasing power of money, what is it due to?

"Sound Money" fears an avalanche of gold, yet denies the quantitative theory of money. If increasing the quantity of money does not make other things higher priced as measured in money, then where comes in the fear of the gold standardites?

But of prices not trust controlled, what? All farm products tending lower and lower, except in favored localities. Cattle, hogs, grain. Labor and salaried positions, except trust, controlled and specially favored, and except what labor can accomplish by organization and never ending watchfulness. Wheat, our great staple, now ruling at the 50 cent notch again, as last year at this time, in the sections of the state where it is the great product.

The reason why the McKinley purchase of bonds will not help anybody but the speculators, is because only they and the banks have government bonds to self. If others have them they keep them and live on the meagre interest, because there is no line of business in which they can invest the money at profit, because they are not in the trust and combine deals, and can't get in.

McKinley's treasurer is paying 112 and 111 for bonds that were sold for par, and the $25,000,000 to be bought will amount to $28,000,000. Here is $3,000,000 out, and besides that nearly $1,000,000 has been paid in interest on the same bonds since issued.

The McKinley financiering is in some respects worse than Cleveland's, though both are on the same principle of benefitting the speculators on the country's bone and sinew. Cleveland sold the $62,000,000 to his syndicate at 104. If McKinley should now buy back some of these, and he will when Wall street makes the demand, he will, in the light of his recent purchase, have to pay over 130 for them.

Instead of the whole iniquitous bond business, give us money issued by the government, with postal savings banks for the convenience, safety and protection of the people.

Sworn affidavits appear that one Colonel Metcalf, in the McKinley army of conquest in the Philippines, shot an unarmed and supplicating Filipino prisoner. But that does not disturb the slumbers of the occupant of the White House. The murders of prisoners on their knees are fit companion pieces for the burning of villages, looting of churches and assault of defenseless women. They usually attend armies of conquest, like the Hessians, hirelings of the Revolutionary War.

Congressmen are wending their way to Washington, and before another week rolls 'round Hanna's annual message will be before a palpitating world.

Hon. A. W. Thomas of Chicago, so pleasantly representing the Democratic national committee here recently, has been assigned to the same work for New England, with headquarters at Boston, and writes most hopefully of the situation there.

Our best advices from Kentucky are that Goebel will be the next governor, and that the attempt to overawe voters by Republican bayonets, as was done in Louisville, will not be successful. That the legislature will re-elect Blackburn is without question.

Times are so brisk that an army of men are after the places that Census Superintendent Merriam will dispense for the G. O. P. There are 20 to 30 applicants for every place there is.

John R. McLean may have accomplished more in the defeat of the Cox gang, in Hamilton county, than his election as governor without winning Hamilton would gain. Several G. O. P. conceras in and about Cincinnati are out of business, such as Watchen & Skinnem, advisers; Robb & Steele, campaigners, and Holdem & Guttem, financiers. 'Tis very well.

Senator Knute Nelson thinks he fixed matters up in fine shape in Hennepin. Our advices are that Knute deceives himself. There's a boom on for Elevator King Peavy.

And, further of Hennepin politics, it is stated as a fact that William Hennery Eustis, who also ran, will demand a vindication and run again. His explanation of why he was beaten before is said to be pathetic.

Meanwhile how dare the bosses disregard the Hanna orders to get to work for United States Attorney Evans?

Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessey, in his handling of the Insurance Union, has dealt an anti-trust blow that will be appreciated everywhere. This, with the co-operation of Attorney General Douglass, is really the first effective blow dealt the trust in this state. Do it some more.

The state dairy department finds in its experience that the greatest use of oleomargarine and rotten "butter" is in the lumber camps of the Upper Mississippi. This shows the regard the lumber barons have for our producers. Commissioner Bowler thus stated the matter to The Pioneer Press the other day:

"Nothing else but oleomargarine is served in the lumber camps. The lumbermen asked for a duty on lumber and got it. They have raised the price under the protection of the tariff. But when it comes to buying butter from the farmers, they haven't any time to think of that."

"It is everywhere the same under Republican policy. Protection for all the special interests. Ruinous competition for the producing classes. G. S. C.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A New Warden.

Gen. Charles McC. Reeve was selected to serve the state in the capacity of warden of the state prison, to succeed Henry Wolfer, who has resigned to engage in business.

A special meeting of the board of prison managers was held at Stillwater at which Mr. Wolfer's resignation was formally tendered and accepted, and after the claims and qualifications of several candidates for the position had been considered, the choice of the board fell on Gen. Reeve. He will assume his new duties Dec. 1.

Mr. Wolfer will become associated with the Northwestern Grass Twine Company, which is part of the twine trust, and has three plants, of which he will be general manager. The plants are located at St. Paul, West Superior and Oshkosh. The company now employs 1,200 people, is putting up new buildings and will eventually employ 2,000 people in making binding twine, matting, carpets, linings for furniture, bric-a-brac, etc. Mr. Wolfer will make his home in St. Paul. His salary will be about three times as great as that of warden.

The Law Holds.

The commission men have received another set-back in their efforts to have the Grindeland law declared unconstitutional. After the state supreme court had upheld the law an effort was made to get the matter before the federal courts on habeas corpus proceedings. C. C. Emerson, a St. Paul commission man, was arrested for handling a consignment from Wisconsin. He had not complied with the requirements of the law, and as the commission men claim it is in violation of the interstate commerce act, it was decided to make a test case. A writ of habeas corpus was sued out and Emerson was taken before Judge Lochren, of the federal court in St. Paul. T. W. Palmer made his argument for the defendant and without hearing Attorney General Douglas and ex-Attorney General Childs, who appeared for the state, Judge Lochren dismissed the writ and remanded Emerson to the custody of the sheriff.

Looks Like a Trust.

In a decision sent Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessy by Attorney General Douglas, and in reply to inquiries of the former, the latter holds that all insurance companies that are members of the so-called Western Union association and which adopted a resolution purporting to bind them to a certain percentage agreement, savors of the suppression of competition and is unlawful. "You are authorized," continues the communication, "to require such companies to withdraw the circular letter referred to (which relates to the agreement in question), or eliminate therefrom the feature increasing the compensation of their agents only upon condition that such agents will surrender the business of the non-union fire insurance companies and cease thereafter to represent them."

A Shoplifter.

A strange woman, about 50 years old, who would give neither her name nor address, and who possessed nothing by which she could be identified, was arrested at Mankato, on advices from St. Peter that she was wanted there for shop lifting. She had with her two satchels and a shawl strapped up, and these contained numerous pieces of ladies' fine dress goods of a probable value of $200 to $300. She denied that she had stolen these, but would give no account of where she got them.

Chief of Police Davis came from St. Peter and took her back. He was accompanied by a lady clerk, who identified the woman as being one of two who had been in her employer's store together during the morning, and she also recognized two pieces of dress goods stolen from the store.

Discharged.

An oral order was made by Judge Elliott, of Minneapolis, sustaining the demurrer in the case against Albert Meyer and Mary Brookings, Christian Scientists, recently indicted on a charge of having practiced medicine without a license.

In discharging the defendants the court practically held that Christian Science does not come under the head of the practice of medicine. The parties were charged with having attended a little girl who recently died of diphtheria.

Burned to Death.

Lars Johnson, a farmer living near Pelican Rapids, was found dead in a field where he had been burning brush. He had evidently been seized with a fit of apoplexy and had fallen into the fire. He was badly burned but succeeded in crawling some distance before he died. The body was discovered by neighbors, who were crossing the field. Johnson was about 45 years old, and well known in this section.

News in Brief.

Fred Rustad, aged 13, son of A. J. Rustad, of Moorhead, was severely injured in a game of football between the second team of the Moorhead high school and the junior team of the Fargo Y. M. C. A.

Charles Sternborg, a lumberman in the employ of Clough & Hurd, was instantly killed while employed as a loader on a logging train near Nickerson. A log fell from the top of the load and struck a skid, which bounded into the air, and, falling, struck Sternborg on the head, crushing his skull.

Chris Johnson was arrested at Mankato and in the morning was found dead in his cell. He committed suicide by taking poison.

The mangled body of Frank Daily was found in the Union Depot railway yards in Minneapolis. He had fallen over an embankment.

Secretary Randall announces that the State Fair next year will be held Sept. 3 to 8. The national Hereford cattle show will be held in connection with the fair.

The general store of John Beslin at Mora was burned to the ground. Loss $3,000.

Dairy Commissioner Bowler says he has cases against 40 Minneapolis oleomargarine dealers for selling that article without properly advertising the fact. In the whole state but 20 licenses have been taken out for the sale of oleo.

Mrs. Jennie L. Fitkin, of Minneapolis, was shot three times by an unknown man. At first it was thought she was fatally wounded, but she may recover. The indications are that the deed was done by one Herman Lutter, who was infatuated with the woman.

"Very likely," was the cool answer of the farmer; "those are not the only ducks I've had stolen."

OPIUM IN THE ORIENT.

Some Points About "Hitting the Pipe" in the Chinese Empire and in Formosa.

To learn the actual number of opium smokers is impossible, but we know the amount of the foreign import of this drug and the naive confessions of reformed opium smokers tell us precisely the amount of opium required to pass the yin or craving. It is one-fifth of an ounce daily. An ounce of liang is consumed in five days, and a catty suffices for 80 days. Four catties are enough for 320 days, and another half catty will carry the smoker to the end of a year with comfort. A picul is enough, then, for only 22 persons, and 50,000 piculs is sufficient for not more than 1,000,000 persons. The law of compulsion in the smoker is just as imperious for native opium as for foreign. It is a matter of great interest to know the extent of the evil.

In regard to Szechuen, that very populous and wealthy province, Mr. Schjoth, in the Trade Report for 1898, informs us that Szechuen produces 100,000 piculs of opium, and the cultivation is always increasing. At Crungching, where he is commissioner, he is told that 30,000 piculs suffice for consumption in the province, and that 65,000 piculs are exported. We may conclude that the smokers of that province cannot be less than 660,000. Since the population is 67,000,000, the number of smokers is one in a hundred. In Shensi one in one hundred and forty smoke; in Szechuen one in a hundred. In Formosa one in fifteen is the proportion in cities where the people are sunk to the lowest point of degradation, and this is the largest proportion yet known of opium smokers as compared with the general population.—Shanghai (China) Mercury.

BOERS A RACE OF GIANTS.

Their Average Height Is Estimated to Be Six Feet and Two Inches.

Aside from the Patagonians the Boers are probably the tallest race of men in the world and they are stalwart besides—men of strength, with no useless flesh. It would be difficult to find anywhere an entire race of such physical giants as the Boers of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. The roving existence, the life in the open air and the freedom from disturbing cares have combined to make the Boer a race that is almost physically perfect. If an average height of all the full grown males in the country were taken it would be found to be not less than six feet two inches, and probably more. Their physique, notwithstanding their comparatively idle mode of living, is magnificently developed. With action of the almost abnormally developed muscles of the arms and legs, discernible through their closely-flitting garments, gives an idea of the remarkable powers of endurance which the Boers have displayed on many occasions when engaged in native and other campaigns. They can withstand almost any amount of physical pain and discomfort and can live a remarkably long time on the smallest quantity of food.

It is a matter of common knowledge that a Boer can subsist on a five-pound slice of "biltong"—beef that has been dried in the sun until it is almost as hard as a stone—for ten to fifteen days without suffering any pangs of hunger. In time of war "biltong" is the principal item in the army rations and in peace, when he is following his flocks, it is also the Boer shepherd's chief article of diet. —Chicago Chronicle.

Its Glory Gone.

In one of the finest cities of our west there lives a certain man who has been prominent all his life in the work of building and managing theaters. He has been too busy at this to have much time for reading. When his pile was made he started for Europe and visited the various countries. Among other cities he took in Rome. It chanced that he drove out in the country and was shown the Coliseum. The guide told him it was a theater. The old man was surprised. When he came back he was asked about his trip; he mentioned Rome. Naturally he was asked if he had seen the Coliseum. He had. He didn't think much of it. To quote his own words: "It was a blamed good house once, but it's in ruins now."—Detroit Free Press.

Professional Curiosity.

"Yer honor," said the prisoner to the judge, "I should like to have my case postponed. My lawyer is sick and can't come to court."

The judge took two or three minutes to consider. "The case may be postponed," he said, at last, "if you desire it. But I see here that you were taken in the act. What can your counsel have to say on your behalf?"

"That's just what I want to know, yer honor," said the prisoner.—Collier's Weekly.

FREE GOVERNMENT LANDS.

There are still thousands of acres of government lands in the states of Washington and Oregon, also prairie and timber lands near railroad and water communication that can be bought for $3.00 per acre; and there are no cyclones, blizzards, long winters or real hot summers, no failure of crops, but always good markets. If you wish to raise grain, principally, or fruit, or the finest stock on earth, you can find locations in these two states where you can do this to perfection. If you are looking for employment and wish to secure steady work at good wages, I can help you to do this. I have no land for sale, but if you want information about this write me at 199 E. DELANO, FRIDAY, Dec. 1, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Don't forget to attend the lecture "My Ideal Boy" by Rev Dr. Mitchell, at the City Hall at 8:30 p. m., Tuesday Dec. 5.

—Plowing in November in Minnesota can't always be done. But on the 28th Joe Brenner was at work breaking up a new piece of marsh land.

—Members of the Christian Endeavor and Presbyterian church gave a reception last Saturday evening, at the Babb residence, in honor of their pastor, Rev Thompson.

—Rev. A. F. Thompson, of the M. E. church, preached a Thanksgiving sermon in the Presbyterian church Thursday forenoon. Those in attendance pronounced it an unusually able sermon.

—Monday evening, Dec. 4, the regular meeting of the Delano Cemetery Association will be held at Dr. Catlin's office. All parties interested or having business with the association are invited to be present.

—Roads have been in prime condition especially for bicycling, through November. Yet nothing like so many wheels are seen as formerly. Pleasure seekers have given up the wheel to those who ride for business.

—Some cheap John jewelery houses and other things succeeded in getting good free writeups from some of the unsophisticated of our country neighbors. If you don't think the business straight boys, don't advertise it so well.

—A few days ago W. D. Freeman shipped a church spire made by John Conzet and decorated by himself, to Elmer S. Babb at Williston, to be placed on the new Presbyterian church at that place, which Mr. Babb is building. So Delano has a hand in pointing the Williston people heavenwards.

—Last Friday evening about 20 of the friends of Miss Flossie Davis surprised her at her mothers home and celebrated her 17th birthday. They came prepared with refreshments, etc., to have a good time and they had it. And all join in wishing Miss Flossie many returns of her birthday anniversary.

—The Epworth League held a business meeting last Monday evening and elected new officers and attended to other business of the league. Three new names were handed in and elected to membership, Earl Jones, Earnest Marr, and Minnie Reider. Officers elected were as follows: President, Mrs. Thompson; Vice President, Julia Cunningham; 2nd., Merrel Jones; 3rd., John Catlin; 4th., Mollie Maxfield; Secretary, Lydia Johnson; Treasurer, Mary Catlin. After the league meeting of the Sunday School board was called and new teachers elected and other business attended too.

—The latest state law regarding the collection of vital statistics, in Minnesota, fixes as penalties for not reporting births and deaths to Health Officers or clerks within 10 days, for parents, oldest kin; proper officers of public institutions, etc., at not less than $5, nor more than $25. For Physicians and midwives neglecting to report within ten days, the penalty is not less than $10. nor more than $50. or by imprisonment for not less than 10 days nor more than 30 days. The state officers wish to make the reports as perfect as possible so that the new census will be reliable. Everybody should assist so far as possible.

--The Thanksgiving supper and entertainment given in the City Hall last night by the young ladies of the Catholic church and children of the parochial school was a grand success in every sense of the word. The supper was excellent, and abounded with evidences of the good taste of those who prepared it. After supper, which lasted from 5 o'clock until 7:30, a program was rendered by the school children, which was a credit to them and their teachers and contained many interesting and cute productions. Rev. Fr. Says spoke a few minutes, announcing a financial success and thanking all for their patronage; he also thanked the young ladies and those who helped in getting up a program and making the occasion a success. The tickets were then drawn to see who were the winners in the drawing of prizes. The results were as follows: 1st prize, won by ticket No. 191, Rev. Fr. Says; 2nd, 562, Miss M. Stotko; 3rd, 503, Miss Crescentia Hutter; 4th, 489. Miss Rose Plattner; 5th, 455, Mr. H. Yantos; 6th, 63, Mr. Frank Schaffer; 7th, 549, Mr. Fritz Zabel; 8th, 586, Mr. Joe Muckenhirn; 9th, 227, Miss Bina Plattner; 10th, 274, Mrs. Brenner. The prizes given in order were $10, $5, barrel of flour, 100 lbs of flour, box of cigars, box of cigars, ham, ham, six brooms, turkey.

Planting Walnuts.

In the fall of '93 I procured some native black walnuts, which I placed in a shallow trench to let them freeze, and plant them in the spring of '94. From that planting I now have some trees that are eight feet high, and some of them are bearing nuts this year. I found it to be best to procure the nuts for planting with the green hull on, and bury them very shallow before they are dry, then take them up as soon as the ground is thawed out in the spring and plant where wanted.—Peter Shippman, LeSuer Co., Minn., in Farm Stock and Home.

Personal.

John Gill, of the Hamline U Medical Department, spent Thanksgiving in Delano.

Mrs. Thompson, at the Methodist manse, entertained friends from Minneapolis on Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. H. C LaClair, of Brown's Valley visited Delano friends today.

Charley Carleton, came home from the west Wednesday.

Enos Epple, late of Havre, Mont., arrived home in time for Thanksgiving.

Fay Parslow, of Hankinson, spent his Thanksgiving vacation in Delano.

Perry Ball and Thomas Lanway expect to spend the winter in the pineries.

Miss Nellie Vorse, of Buffalo, is visiting relatives and friends in town.

Orson Braman and Earnest Hartford wheeled up Sunday morning and back Sunday afternoon. They visited with Miss Millie Cruickshank, while here.

Vernon, Roy, and Glenn Wilder wheeled to Monticello last Sunday for a short visit.

Miss Queency Buckley went to Hamline Wednesday evening to spend Thanksgiving with her grandma Grafft.

Mrs. H. A. Glimer returned Wednesday evening from Dumont, Dak., where she has been visiting her children.

Mrs. J. W. Packer and daughter, of Winsted, visited at the Gilmer House Wednesday night.

Dr. and Mrs. Scheig, of Minneapolis, came up to spend Thanksgiving at the home of Mrs. Scheig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Young.

Mr. Richards, formerly with the old St. Paul Pioneer visited with F. H. Lindsley and family on Thanksgiving day.

Miss Mamie Farber wheeled into town Saturday, from her school.

Jenner P. Chance and Guy Murphy, of the Hamelin University Medical school came up Tuesday evening for Thanksgiving holidays.

Same Coffin, of the U. came home for Thanksgiving turkey.

Alva G. Catlin returned home from Minneapolis, Tuesday evening.

Children's Contribution's.

Some of the young people desiring to contribute to the M. E. Church debts we have been asked to publish names of donors who leave their money at the GAZETTE office. Any amount will be given credit. Contributions: Herbert E. Bronkow.

County Cullings.

August Hafften is mentioned as a probable successor to himself as Register of Deeds.

H. Tanner is summoned to serve as a juror in the United States court at the December term in Winona.

Annandale has a bankrupt. Notices of the meeting of creditors of William Henderson, bankrupt, of Annandale, is being published.

Buffalo had an attempted suicide on Sunday afternoon: Miss Hanna Albrecht having taken carbolic acid. Dr. Shannon promptly relieved the patient and probably saved her life.

Howard Lake almost had another murder. The Herald gives an account of a shot having been fired at David Gilmer 2½ miles west of Howard, while at home in the evening. The bullet struck the window casing. The perpetrator should be found.

We are in receipt of a circular letter from Supervisor of Census, Hon. A. N. Dare, of Elk River, requesting the cooperation of newspapers in making the census to be taken next summer one of the most complete possible. We would advise all our readers to post themselves as to what will be expected of them, and to be ready to give satisfactory answers to all questions necessary to make our county show just what it is in the twelfth census.

Among Our Exchanges.

Sherburn County Times: The Luzon campaign is getting to be something of a fizzle—the beginning of the end.

St. Cloud Times: The Democratic party has never had a national boss, and those having the welfare of the party at heart sincerely hope that it never will have one.

Norwood Times: The root of all evil is the trust, but the root of the trust is the gold standard. Feed the trust monster with a diet of 16 to 1 and we guarantee that he will die abor'n.

Waseca Herald: When the old politicians are blowing about Governor Lind, just ask them why it was that the Republican members of the last legislature voted a big bounty to the sugar combine over John Lind's veto? Ask them why they tax money out of the pockets of the masses and give it to the classes—the sugar manufacturing combine?

Anoka Herald: We learn that Rev John Stafford, of the Red Wing Methodist church has requested the ladies of his congregation to remove their hats during services and that most of them comply. The same plan is being tried in the Anoka Methodist church to the satisfaction of all attendants. The move is a most commendable one and will be universally adopted before long.

Duluth Herald: "The location of the Democratic convention will largely influence the selection of the nominee," says the San Francisco Post. The location of the convention will have no more influence in the nominee than a shower of rain or a flight of wild geese would have, as the Portland Telegram expresses it. Bryan would be nominated in New York the same as in Omaha.

Timely Topics.

MR. EDITOR: Yesterday was the feast of the passover, or according to modern usage, Thanksgiving, not a feast of unleavan bread, but a feast of roast turkey, mince pie, cranberry sauce, brown bread, and wine on the leafe, etc.; a day set apart by proclamation by the President of the United States and also by the different governors of the different states. This is a a day for giving thanks to the great giver of all good for all we have enjoyed during the past year, for life, liberty freedom of speech, the inherient right to worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience, without having our rights abridged. But some may ask how much are we to give thanks for. Shall we give thanks for the Filipino war with its grim visage of death cloathed in its garb of unrighteousness that brings grief, sorrow, and lamentation to the hearts of fathers, mothers, wives and children? The cruel hand of war is upon us and we must meet the situation as we find it. Has the injustice of the Filipinos driven us to arms? No, not a bit of it. But we seek to recover that which is not ours. In our thanksgiving program let us remember the sick, the maimed, the wounded, and the dying, and ask by whom did this war originate; is it from God, or is it by man. Let us also remember the common private who burns the powder and takes the scalps. We should not only give thanks on the last Thursday in November of each year, but we should give thanks every day in the year. With many this is a day for family reunions etc. but how many family circles are now broken that will never be united again.

But, Mr. Editor, please allow me to digress a little. There is an old proverb that says a fool and his money soon part company. It seems the people have been very much displeased about Dewey's giving his mansion in Washington city to his wife. It was a gift to him by the people and they thought they had a string to it. But it served the people right. Dewey is no pauper at a salary of $13,000 or more a year. They gave him a silver loving cup and a $10,000 sword, and now they propose to give him a $500 watch by penny contribution. I do not suppose he needs the watch unless it would be to hang on his favorite dog, for no doubt he has as good a watch as can be bought. If ever there was a lot of foolish people who tried to make a fool or a God of a man (you can have it either) the people of the United States tried it on that man Dewey. But they made bigger fools of themselves. I wonder who will be the next victim that will have to suffer such sore affliction from the people of the United States. Hobson should have a house and lot bought for him. Perhaps he would put up with one in Maple Plain or Delano. I think perhaps by the time the Filipino war is over, Washington will all be bought up to donate out to the heroes of the Filipino war.

Congress will meet in a few days then it will be the single gold standard, a little hell, and Brigham H. Roberts. Let it come, the people are getting ready for most anything. They tell us we now have prosperity from the North pole to the kingdom come. With most of them this is only imaginary. It may be prosperity for the millionaire but not for the man that carries the hod. Some say war makes good times, for argument sake only. We admit it, but it kills our bright young men, breaks the heart of the mother and brings the father in sorrow to the grave. It does more than this. It blights affection and fills a country with shame and corruption, it breeds heavy taxation, squanders millions of the people's money, and the solution to the whole matter is a prodigal waste. But the party now in power had to deliver the goods they had promised in 1896, if they be shoddy goods. Some say you are a chronic kicker. That's all right; if your house was on fire would you try to put it out or would you do as Nero did at Rome, fiddle and let her burn. It seems a man that can't see we are going the way of all the earth has little discernment of his countrp as to its weal or woe.

In an article in the Saturday evening Post, of Nov. 25, Benjamin Franklin's paper, founded in 1828, Mr. A Vanderlip, assistant secretary of the Treasury, goes on at great length to show up the prosperity of the country, by telling what had been produced and how prices had doubled up on everything but farm produce. This is to fool the people This does not benefit the common people, but the trusts, the combines and the money power.

The 56th Congress that meets next Monday will pass some very stringent laws during its session, and may God pity the people for nobody else will.

There is a time coming when this thing will have gone far enough and there must come a halt, and when things have become desperate then it will be the other fellow that's to blame. It always turns out just that way. It is not the intention that prosperity shall strike every man alike, for they hold to the old addage in scripture that some vassals were made to honor and some to dishonor, and the good things of this life are only for the few and not for the many. It is for the classes and not for the masses.

But when Congress meets and the Chaplain invokes divine blessing upon that august body, who have met to make laws which are to govern over 70,000,000 people, will the members of Congress let their conscience expand, or will they reaffirm their devotion, allegiance to the Maker of all good and pledge themselves that by every word and act they will work for the best interest of the people at large. Equal rights to all, an special privileges to none, should be their motto

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

It looks more and more as if it might be Bryan and Towne in 1900

WONDER if editor Joubert, of the Litchfield News-Ledger is a relative of the Boer general by that name? In the cause at stake he seems to be.

WHY is Congress making so much of the Roberts case? Is the decision of that to settle the Sultan of Sulus standing with the administration.

WHEN Congress passed the bills to raise soldiers to "beneficently assimilate" the Filipinos it seems to have entirely forgotten to provide for Chaplains.

THE American Sunday School Union has sent out a neat little pamphlet "Lights and Shadows in Minnesota" showing good work in our state. Help them where you can.

AGUINALDO seems to have a queer army from reports. One day he had hard work to keep together 1000 men. Soon after he had a battle and lost 300; and fled with the remaining 1200

REPUBLICAN Journals through the country are uncermoniously accepting Mark Hanna's resignation as chief national Boss. They had better wait until he makes it before they accept it.

GEN. PALMER is out in a letter claiming that no gold democrat in Illinois will vote for Bryan. They wouldn't last time and nobody expects them to now. Does Palmer want to run again?

ANOTHER vessel loaded with horses for the Philippine islands started out a short time ago from a Washington port but met a storm and had to return to shore. It seems that horses are not to be carried over there.

SURELY Uncle Sam don't take much stock in reports from the Philippines that the Filipinos are sufficiently chastised and will hereafter be good, or why are several of our finest vessels racing for Manila. Possibly they are after prize money, or think there is "glory enough for all".

CONGRESS convened Monday. On Tuesday, President McKinley's message was read to both branches. Congressman Henderson, of Iowa, was elected Speaker of the House. The case of the admission of Congressman elect Roberts, of Utah, was referred to a committee of nine. A warm session is expected by all. Important questions are to be settled.

GOLD standard means momomentalism. It means that gold is the only true, real, genuine endorsed by the Government, money. It means that any man may demand of a debtor, though his pockets are full of so called money, GOLD, hard yellow gold in payment of debts. If you must have gold with which to pay taxes, for instance, where are you going to get it? Are you going to give some money shark two silver dollars for one gold? Do you want it that bad.

16 to 1 vs Gold Standard.

In our issue of Nov. 21 in an article on goldbugs misleading the people on the meaning of free silver 16 to 1 we said: "It simply means what it has meant for years. It means to have the money as now coined, 16 silver dollars equal to 1 gold dollar, only it means that either the gold or the silver dollars shall be good for all debts and obligations to the government or anybody else, as we have learned to use them". This appears to have touched a tender spot in several of our neighbors politics and the Eagle tries to throw people off from any argument on the subject in the following style.

"The Gazettee is still trying to explain what 16 to 1 means. We all know what it means, Doctor. It means everything that we haven't got at present—repudiation, dishonor, disaster, national ruin and national shame, hunger, famine, idleness and anarchy. Give us none of it".

Don't the people of this country know that the Eagle is mistaken, to put it mildly. Don't they know that for a century the United States held up its head among the nations of the earth. That dishonor, famine, anarchy and the other disasters of the Eagle's prediction did not bring our country to ruin although our business was done on the silver and gold standard? Is there any argument in the Eagle's assertion that all these "calamities" would overtake us?

The Advocate Post strives to belittle the definition we gave, then quotes a part of it, with the introduction "Here is his latest definition of '16 to 1.' Take off your hat!" Does the Advocate Post consider the definition in any way erroneous or misleading, if so, as a public mind moulder for the gold bugs, it should proceed honestly, to point out the discrepencies.

Readers can judge for themselves who is honest in their convictions, and whose convictions are best founded, when they have both arguments to form an opinion from. Surely ridicule is no argument; neither is bold assertion, backed up by no facts, as against the history of our own country for a hundred years.

EXPLANATORY. This week's Eagle, has succeeded in finding, (we don't know who told her) that our 16 to 1 article contained a lapsus faberi. Her sharp eye should have found that out in one week and not watted so long, before setting it right before her readers. Even now her joke is only more misleading. Nobody has tendered us a single gold dollar for 16 silver dollars, nor a silver dollar for 16 gold dollars, whichever the bird up street means. It is not so even if it was in the Eagle. Everybody must have taken the item to mean what we meant rather than what it said. We had reference to the subject we were discussing, 16 to 1. A gold dollar should contain 25 8 grains by weight, and a silver dollar should contain about 16 times as many grains.

A Voice from the Soil.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., Dec. 6, '99.

I am now spending my leisure hours evenings reading the life of Lincoln, some of Edward Eggleston's works, and Congressional news, all of which makes very good food for the brain. Now that the Thanksgiving proclamation has been fulfilled by the eating of roast turkey, pot pie, pork and beans with nightmare and visionary dreams as an accompanyment. We turn our thoughts to the coming of Christmas with sleigh rides and Christmas trees.

Mr. Editor, sometimes in reading the daily papers I get things mixed up in regard to the war in South Africa and the Philippine islands. Sometimes I think the Boers are Filipinos and at other times I think the Filipinos are Boers, and sometimes I mistake President Kruger for President McKinley and vice versa. The country is so full of war we are sniffing burnt powder all the time.

Just now it seems hard to separate church and state. A certain divine in Minneapolis, while preaching a Thanksgiving sermon the other day told the people how much we were progressing as a nation, and people in all the arts and science, education, civilization etc., and in nothing were we degenerating, and according to his tell we must be very near the new Jerusalem, but to me it seems the worthy divine must have overlooked some of his Scriptural texts. In second Timothy we read, that "In the last days perilous times shall come. Men shall be lovers of their own selves, coyetous boasters, etc., etc. Having the form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof". If the world is getting so very much better why is it the United States has to go 10,000 miles away from home to shoot the gospel and civilization into the poor Filipinos. Should think they could do it by missionary work. When the United States gets the Philippine islands and a part of old China, then they will begin to fish for the New Jerusalem. Trusts are forming all the time and the price of all manufactured articles are going up, up, and yet the combination papers tell us there is no cause for alarm. You only keep still, shut your mouth, vote her straight, and soon you will have an upper seat in the synagogue with a golden chain about your neck. It is the same old story as the spider and the fly.

In this part of the Northwest wheat is the staple of production, but the price is so low it would pauperize a dog show, and stop the propagation of the specie. Some say, go into the dairy business. Everybody cannot go into the dairy business. If they did the dairy products would be worth nothing. Some say raise stock. Some say raise this and that and you will be all right, but there seems to be more money in raising hell than anything else. My farmer friends it is not over production as they try to make you believe but under consumption and because they want it that way. They could pay the farmers 75 cents or $1.00 a bushel for their wheat just as well as to pay them 50 or 60 cents a bushel. But when these fellows come up before the judgement in the great last day to settle account for their sins of omission and commission, I fear they will fall far short of 60 pounds to the bushel.

The 56th Congres has met to fight, bleed, and die for their country, and it is just as we said long ago, the currency, money question, would be the first thing, and so it is. Could not even waite for the president's message. And the money power will get every thing they ask for, even to half of the kingdom (I do not mean the kingdom come. I refer to cosmos this habitable globe) They have it in prospect already.

Poor Brigham H. Roberts had to stand back and look on like the fifth calf. Would not even allow him to take the oath of office as a representative to Congress from Utah, and the charge brought against him is plurality of wives. Polygamy is forbidden by the Bible and all civilized governments and should not be tolerated, but how is it about the Sultan of Sulu who has slaves and 10 or 20 wives (and where the American flag floats and must not be hauled down they say, and the administration is willing to admit this Sulu chief as a citizen of the United States along with the Philippine islands, his slaves, his plurality of wives, and the combination of his breech clout, mongrel race of people.

Shall we let her come? Anything for expansion says the partisan politician.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25, 1899.

"Speaker Henderson promises to be just as much of an autrocrat as Thomas B. Reed, if one can judge from present indications. If anything he is more dictational than the man from Maine ever dreamed of being." That is not a democratic opinion, but one uttered by a prominent republican member of the House, whose name cannot be used, because he spoke in confidence to a personal friend. It indicates, that things are not turning out in accordance with the numerous prophesies of reform that were to be inaugurated when Mr. Henderson became Speaker.

Democrats are rather enjoying the republican criticism of Mr. McKinley's gold standard bill, alleged to have been prepared by a republican caucus committee, which was made public several days ago. Although the bill explicitly declares for the single gold standard, and favors the national banks, the ultra gold men are objecting to it because it does not provide for calling in the greenbacks as well. Several republican Senators have said that the bill cannot get through the Senate in its present shape, and have predicted such radical amendments thereto as will result in a dead lock between the House and Senate, and no financial legislation. Democrats are not discussing the bill to any extent, just now, but they will be glad to have the republican party go into the Presidential campaign with that bill defining its financial position.

According to Gen. Leonard Wood, who says he is in Washington solely to confer with the War Department concerning the withdrawal of some of the troops under his command from Cuba—the orders for their withdrawal have been issued—Mr. McKinley has abandoned the idea of appointing a civil governor for Cuba at this time.

Representative Crowle, of Ill., one of the new democratic members thus sizes up the political situation in his State: "My people favor the nomination of Bryan and the reaffirmation of the Chicago platform, with some additions against trusts and the imperialistic course of the McKinley administration. Col. Bryan has a strong chance of carrying Illinois, if sufficient encouragement is given and a good organization effected."

For the first time in many years two brothers, from different States, are members of the same House. They are Representative Clayton, of Ala., and Representative Clayton, of New York, nephews of ex-Senator Pugh, and both democrats of the tried and true brand.

Senator Harris, of Kans., thinks the democratic party has a grand opportunity before it, of which he said: "It seems to me that if the democrats would seize upon the opportunities within their grasp they would have an excellent chance of regaining control of the country. First and foremost, let them address themselves to getting up an income tax law that would be held valid by the Supreme Court. Here is something definite, something worth fighting for, and in line with popular sentiment. Social and economic problems are the vital issues, and the party that ranges itself on the side of the common people will be the dominant political force in this country."

The members of the republican caucus committee, which claims to have prepared the gold standard bill, which is to be jammed through the House by order of the caucus, without even being referred to a committee, displayed monumental nerve when they stated in their report on the bill, as one of the reasons why it ought to become a law, that silver had steadily declined in price and its production had fluctuated. Everybody knows that both the decline in price and the fluctuation in the production of silver was caused directly by the attitude of the republican party, taken under orders from the gold kings of Europe, during the last eight or ten years, toward the white metal.

Representative Sutherland, of Nebraska, says all the republican talk about not having tried to carry that State and being glad that Col. Bryan won is tomyrot of the worst kind; that the republicans of the State tried hard to beat Col. Bryan, and had lots of outside help on the job, and have been sore ever since election because of the poor showing they made. He added that the State would give Col. Bryan an increased majority next year. Mr. Sutherland is one of the few populist members of this House.

Much regret is felt in Washington over the announcement that the health of Hon. W. L. Wilson, who was the last democratic chairman of the House committee on Ways and Means, and Postmaster General during the last Cleveland administration, was in a precarious condition. Mr. Wilson who has since his retirement from public life been president of the Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., has been ordered to Arizona, for the winter, by his physician.

The democratic House caucus will be held Saturday afternoon and the republican caucus, Saturday night.

LUCK IN THE GRAVE.

He said that he was tired of life! Bad luck seemed always camping
Upon his trail to handicap all he might undertake.
For many long and weary months he'd worn himself out tramping
The rugged Colorado hills, and never made a stake.
No hill or gulch for miles around that he had not prospected.
But not a color nor a streak had met his searching eye,
And now, most awful sick at heart and thoroughly dejected,
He sought a wild secluded place to lay him down and die!

He started in to dig a grave in which to do his sleeping
Till Gabriel should wake him up upon the final day,
Emotions of the wildest sort throughout his bosom sweeping
To think that he must quit the earth in such a beastly way.
A dose of poison he'd prepared, a pint of cactus whisky,
Such as is kept for Indian trade down
at the agency,
And hoped that when he faced the deal
he'd feel so wildly frisky
That death would seem a picnic; but a mortuary spree!

But best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley, and soon he Was whooping in a joyous way and dance-in his grave
And acting most decidedly, emphatically looney—
He'd struck a lead of sylvanite o'er which a god would rave!
He sold it to a tenderfoot for twenty thousand dollars,
And life for him now carries lots of sugar
in the cup,
And at the faintest thought of death with fear he almost hollers,
And every time he catches cold he hunts
a doctor up.

The Red Cedar Chest.

By Emily Reed.

"ALLEN, do come and have a game of 'hide-and-whoop?' Dilsey is unpacking the winter things, and all the garret is open. Such splendid places to hide in!" urged Alice.

"Oh, Allen, let me hide with you? I never can find a safe place. I am always found before I can whoop," said Katy.

"You don't want to be hid forever, do you?" asked Allen.

"Not forever, but for ever so long. It's such fun to hear the others hunting for you, and you all the time so near them, only they don't know where to look!"

And Katy began to dance with glee at the thought of the long search for her small self.

"Come on," said Allen, good-naturedly. "I'll find a famously tight place for you to hide in."

"Don't hide too tight," said Nanny, "or I'll give you up. It's no fun to be always hunting and never hiding!"

"We will promise to keep to the garret, so, if you hunt sharply, you will be bound to find us," replied Allen.

So, under this agreement, the four children paired off for the game.

"What are you up to, screeching as if you thought a body deaf? Oh, you're hiding, are you? Well, take your fill of it, for, by this time to-morrow, if I'm spared, I'll have all the closets and the big garret locked up!" declared Dilsey, as she went downstairs, her arms full of last winter's garments, which she had just emptied the great cedar chest of.

The children had hidden so often that that they quite exhausted the big garrets of their crooked corners, closets and deep cubbyholes that ran under the low eaves.

SHE ROSE ON HER KNEES AND PULLED THE LID DOWN.

"It was Allen's and Katy's turn, when Allen discovered that the red cedar chest was empty.

"We can both get in," he said, lifting Katy as he spoke. "Lay low; the girls will not think of looking here, not knowing the chest is empty."

Then he gave a loud whoop and got in himself.

"Oh, they will be sure to find us, with the lid up," whispered Katy, hearing the approach of feet.

And she rose on her knees and pulled the lid down.

It fell so heavily Allen was sure the girls must have heard the noise, for they were in the other garret, hunting rather aimlessly, for they had grown a little tired of the game.

In a few moments they heard Nanny call out that they were "given up," so they might as well discover themselves.

"Oh, don't!" whispered Katy. "We are so splendidly hid. Let them hunt just a little bit longer."

But presently there was a sound of retreating footsteps.

The girls were evidently going downstairs, and Alice's voice was heard calling out that they had "given them up."

"We must give ourselves up," said Allen, much to Katy's disappointment.

And he raised his arms to lift the lid of the chest, but he found he could not budge it.

They were fast hidden, sure enough; and Allen remembered that when the lid fell he heard a sharp click that ought to have reminded him that the chest fastened with a spring-lock.

He was a sturdy, active boy, and he put out all his strength to force the lid open, but the lock was made to protect the contents of the chest, and it would have taken a much stronger person than Allen to have forced it open.

"Oh, Allen, what will we do?—what will we do?" cried Katy, beginning to understand that they were prisoners, and terribly frightened at the thought.

"We must make all the noise possible. Some one will be sure to hear us," said Allen, hopefully.

They called out as loudly as they could, beating against the side of the chest, but the sounds were not heard downstairs.

Dilsey had carried down her last armful of garments, and was busy, with her mother, sorting them into piles for the winter's use, or to be given away.

The other servants were sure to be even further downstairs at that hour, and Alice and Nanny had no doubt gone to their mother's room.

Katy's cries had died down into a whisper, and Allen began to find his efforts to shout very painful.

"It is so dark, and I am so tired. If I could only stand up! Oh, Allen, do you think we will ever get out of this chest?"

And Katy began to cry.

"Poor little Katy?" said Allen, tenderly. "Some one may hear us. Let us say our prayers together."

"Will God hear us in this chest?" asked Katy, growing weak and bewildered.

"Yes, indeed."

They said the Lord's Prayer together.

"I am so tired," Katy complained. "And, oh, it is so hard to get my breath!"

Allen took off his jacket, not without great difficulty, and made a pillow for Katy's head to rest on, bidding her to lean against him, and to put her mouth to the keyhole, that she might get all the air possible to breathe. Even that small quantity revived her enough to enable her to say:

"Poor mamma! How sorry she will be! And Alice and Nanny will be sorry, too, that they 'gave us up' so soon; that is, if we are ever found."

Meanwhile it was growing so dark Mrs. Stewart had asked more than once where Katy was, but felt no anxiety since she heard she was with Allen.

"It is so stupid in them not to show themselves since we have given them up," Alice said.

Dilsey had finished sorting the winter woolens, and went to the garret to close the windows. In the room where the red cedar chest stood, she heard a faint scratching.

"There's a mouse," she muttered, "I'll soon catch you, my friend, by the help of the cat."

She put down the windows, and just as she was about leaving the room, she stopped to set some things right that the children had disturbed in their play, grumbling a little at the trouble they gave.

The scratching she took for a mouse still went on, only it was growing fainter and fainter. It seemed to come from the red cedar chest, although it stopped entirely when Dilsey went to it, which made her all the more confident that the mouse was there, since they are always so quick to hear even the smallest sound.

The lid of the chest was down, and Dilsey hoped to capture the thieving mouse without the help of his enemy, the cat.

She put down the lamp, and raised the lid of the chest cautiously, peering in to find the mischievous mouse. In her fright and surprise, old Dilsey came near dropping the lid, for there lay Allen white and motionless, as if dead, and leaning against him, her head pillowed on his jacket, and her mouth close to the keyhole, was little Katy, a faint pink in her cheeks alone robbing her of all appearance of death.

Dilsey's first act was to lift the windows she, a few moments before, had been so careful to lower. Then she lifted Katy out of the red cedar chest, and laid her on the floor where the night wind could blow on her.

It was far more difficult to drag Allen out of the chest that had nearly proved his deathbed, but love and fright gave the old woman strength, and Allen had the full benefit of the fresh, life-reviving air.

The color was deepening in Katy's cheeks, and Allen had sighed and stirred, when Dilsey managed to be heard and had their mother called, and had also sent in hot haste for the nearest physician.

"You happened to open the old cedar chest just in time. Five minutes later, and the game of hide-and-seek would have been fatal," the doctor told Dilsey.

And after that—why, Mrs. Stewart had spring-locks abolished in the house as dangerous, and Dilsey found that she had gotten rid of her great antipathy to mice. Indeed, thenceforth she regarded them very much as those of the name of Bruce look upon spiders—with the gratitude one feels to a deliverer from a great peril.—Golden Days.

A Society Gradation.

The lady residing in a 14-story flat was talking to the wife of the janitor. "Do you know Mrs. Higgins?" she asked. "Which Mrs. Higgins?" inquired Mrs. Janitor. "The one who comes here sometimes to help me with my sewing." "Oh," and her nose perked slightly, "her? I've met her, but I don't call on her." "She's a nice woman, isn't she?" "I never heard anything against her. She isn't in my set, that's all." "Isn't her husband a janitor just as yours is?" This time Mrs. Janitor was in quite a dudgeon. "Of course he's not," she exclaimed, drawing herself up disdainfully, "he is a janitor for a building that only has six stories, while none of our set would engage in a building of less than ten stories, and this one, as you know, has 14," and with a 14-story hautiness of manner quite overwhelming, she bowed herself out of the lady apartment.—Detroit Free Press.

A Missouri judge has decided that a physician who believes his patient's case is hopeless and does not inform him is guilty of a breach of trust.

A New Jersey company is offering something called artificial lumber. The recent appearance of artificial oysters leaves no room for surprise in regard to imitations.

When Mrs. Peter Karl, of New York, died a short time ago she made a dying wish that her body be cremated and that the ashes be hurled to the winds from the top of the statute of Liberty. Her husband had her remains cremated and carried out her wishes in every detail.

Bishop Potter says that, coming of an ecclesiastical family, he owes his love of preaching to "those grandfathers and great-grandfathers." He adds: "I began preaching before kilts gave place to trousers. My pulpit was an empty stall in the barn, my audience the chickens and the hired man."

There are two gold fields in Alaska, not in British territory, Cape Nome and Cape York, that promise some sensations in the matter of dust next year. While Cape York is probably the most forsaken hole on the footstool, the pans are nuggety and yellow, and that settles its status as a winter and summer resort.

The head of a house in Germany which is one of the biggest buyers of Russian wheat in Europe has closed a contract for several hundred thousands of dollars' worth of American wheat. The Russian wheat crop is almost a failure and the grain so inferior in quality as to cause its rejection. The great American wheat fields are the world's most reliable source of supply.

It is said the discovery has been made that it is possible to raise and ripen grain in the Klondike, and large fields of wheat, barley and oats are to be sown. The country cannot be made profitable for general agriculture, but the raising of breadstuffs will be a source of profit to some people. It is likely that those who raise grain to feed the miners will make more money than the miners.

Millions of treasure lie buried in Mother Earth and at the bottom of the ocean, but more millions have been spent in trying to recover them than have been recovered.

Thomas A. Edison, Jr., has invented a long-distance telephone that he says will enable him to talk to people in Europe as easily as he can to those in another part of the city. He will be able to use the present submarine cables if he can get permission of the companies.

If the United Kingdom depended upon home-grown wheat the annual supply would only last 2½ months. The British colonies and India could only furnish enough more to last 1½ months. At present more than the difference suggested is supplied by the cereal regions of the United States. If commerce between this country and Great Britain were cut off there would be a terrible time of it in the "tight little island" before the rest of the world could meet the deficiency.

The year 1899 is a record breaker in the matter of munificence, both by bequest and donation, to schools, colleges, libraries, art institutes and galleries, the amount up to date being $83,584,174. Nothing remotely approaching it has been known in the past, and the most gratifying feature of it all is that the largest amount of the total sum has been given outright, showing that wealthy and generous persons prefer to extend their aid while living so that they may have an eye upon its administration and so that their plans are carried out as they wish.

John H. Page, Jr., who was recently commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Third Infantry, is the third of the name to serve in the army of the United States. His father, John H Page, is colonel of the Third infantry and served in Cuba during the war, taking part in the fighting about Santiago. He was the last of the regular colonels to leave Cuba. His grandfather, John H. Page, was killed at the battle of Palo Alto during the Mexican war. For more than 50 years there has always been a John H. Page among the officers of the army.

The mournful annual summary of the disasters to the Gloucester (Mass.) fishing fleet has been published. The number of vessels lost last year was 15. Sixty lives have been added to the great total accumulated during past years, 32 by actual wreck, the remainder either washed overboard or drowned while hauling trawls. By the loss of these 60 lives 15 widows and 26 children have been bereaved. And yet every year there is no dearth of captains courageous and sailors courageous to risk the dangers of the Grand Banks. It is accounted for in the "grind" for bread.

Hotel keepers in Paris have formed a trust and will make a minimum charge of five dollars a day for a room without meals during the exposition next year.

LATER NEWS.

The Fifty-sixth congress convened at noon the 4th. In the senate, as soon as organization was completed, it adjourned out of respect to late Vice President Hobart. In the house, D. B. Henderson was duly elected speaker. When the name of Brigham H. Roberts was called, Representative Taylor of Ohio secured recognition and amidst breathless interest protested against the swearing in of Roberts, on the ground of his being a polygamist and not a properly naturalized American citizen. Mr. Roberts was asked to stand aside and the matter was referred to the following day. The financial bill drafted by a special committee of republican members was introduced in the house by Representative Overstreet of Indiana, and was accorded the distinction of being bill No. 1.

An immense bed of high grade silica has been discovered at Dayton, Green county, Wis.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Program.

The program for the annual meeting of the State Agricultural Society to be held in the state capitol on Jan. 9-11, has been arranged by a committee to be as follows: Governor Lind will make an address of welcome, and he will be followed by Professor W. M. Hays of the state school of agriculture on "Breeding of the Grains." Professor Hays has spent a large part of the present season in Europe pursuing his investigation into the breeding of new varieties of grains and is especially well qualified to talk upon this important subject.

O. M. Lord, of Minnesota City; Theodore Louis, of Louisville, Wis.; Dr. Reynolds, state veterinarian; W. B. Wood, of Mankato; Professor Thomas Shaw, of the state school of agriculture; Professor John A. Craig, of the Iowa school of agriculture; W. A. Henry, director of the Wisconsin school of agriculture, and others, have been invited to address the meeting, and it is reasonably certain that they will all respond.

The program for Tuesday evening will be under the auspices of the Minnesota Stock Breeders' Association, and the session to be held Wednesday will be under the direction of the Minnesota school of agriculture.

On Thursday will be held the business meeting of the state fair association at which officers for the ensuing year will be chosen.

A Murder.

James McCabe was deliberately murdered in Dan Sullivan's saloon at East Grand Forks by Bish Dorsey, a colored porter employed in the saloon. McCabe was drinking at the bar and he and Dorsey got into an altercation in the course of which McCabe called Dorsey a coon. Dorsey struck at him across the bar and dodged a glass which McCabe threw at him. Dorsey then went outside and after about five minutes returned with a cordwood stick and running the whole length of the room struck McCabe a terrific blow on the head. The man sank to the floor and died instantly. Dorsey slipped on his coat and escaped before the dozen or more men in the room realized what had happened. He was later caught on the Dakota side while trying to board a Northern Pacific train. Dorsey is a young married man and has lived in Grand Forks since childhood. He has been well known as a baseball player. McCabe was a stranger.

How We Grow.

Minnesota will be found to have a population of 1,810,000 at the next census. State Superintendent Lewis is willing to guarantee that the figure will not fall 10,000 below that.

In 1895 there were 352,002 school children in the state and the population by the state census was 1,574,619. In 1899 the school population is 335,000, and the total population on the same ratio is 1,766,000.

The annual increase of school population is 8,000, equivalent to an increase of 44,000 approximately in the number of inhabitants. If the ratio holds, the population next year should be returned at 1,810,000.

According to the present apportionment Minnesota will gain two congressmen by that figure, but it is quite certain that the basis will be raised next time, as congress is already rather unwieldy.

Baseball.

It is learned on excellent authority that St. Paul and Grand Rapids are not the only cities to be dropped by the American (late Western) League next season, according to a dispatch from Milwaukee. The plan now is to drop Minneapolis also and take in Louisville, which will make Milwaukee the extreme northern end of a circuit to consist of Milwaukee, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Kansas City and Louisville. There is a hitch about Minneapolis, as the magnates are shy about letting Saulpaugh out, but this will be smoothed over, if the deal goes through, by giving the Minneapolis magnate an interest in the Louisville club. St. Paul's fate was settled, that is as far as baseball is concerned, when Comiskey closed a deal in Chicago for a lease of grounds on the South Side. The lease was signed and Comiskey is now working on plans for his new park.

Incendiaries.

A disastrous fire occurred in St. Peter. The Lampert Lumber Company's yard, which carries a stock valued at $15,000, was totally destroyed; also the residence of Mrs. M. M. Stark. It was valued at $2,000. The St. Peter furniture factory was saved by the work of the fire department.

The fire was started by a firebug, as the sheds and lumber were saturated with oil. This is the third attempt at setting fires within a month. The hydrant wrenches were missing from the engine house when the alarm was turned in, and it is supposed they were taken by the firebug to delay getting water on the fire. The entire city was threatened for a time.

News in Brief.

The northern part of Minnesota is to have a new railroad. A line from Winnipeg has been constructed to the international boundary and grading to War Rood Roseau county, has been completed.

Dee Norton, principal keeper at the St. Cloud Infirmatory, died at Battle Creek, Mich.

In one day 250,000 bushels of wheat were shipped from Duluth.

The continued mild weather is greatly retarding the work of the loggers. By this time one third of the winter's cut should be on skids ready to haul, but at present nothing has been accomplished.

The Diamond Knitting Works, at St. Paul, burned, causing a loss of $15,000.

A cablegram from London says that the net profits of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co. for the past year were about $672,500.

Louis Titiner, of Minneapolis, had his skull fractured by the kick of a horse.

Holiday mail for the soldiers in the Philippines is being received at the Minneapolis postoffice, and, judging from the amount that is being sent, each one of the boys will fare well at the hands of relatives and friends.

Griggs, Cooper & Co.'s wholesale grocery store, at Third and Wacouta streets, St. Paul, was damaged by fire, the damage on stock and building probably reaching $150,000.

Paul Wagner and James Doyle were bound over to the grand jury at Kenyon for selling liquor without a license.

John Freemand and his horse were killed Wednesday while crossing the Northwestern track below Mankato. Freemand was hard of hearing, and was not aware of the danger.

The state grain department has sent its remittance covering receipts for the month of October to the state treasurer. The check was drawn for $39,000. In comparison with October of 1898, the month's receipts were $1,000 short.

The new paint law, which provides that all paints labeled "pure" shall conform to a certain formula, will go into effect Jan. 1. The law, it is stated, will injure no one, and was enacted to prevent paint being sold as pure when it does not conform to state standards. Paint not so labeled can be manufactured as at present.

While coupling an engine to a car in the yard at Kasota, Brakeman O. H. Hanson had his hand caught and two fingers taken off.

The city of Duluth has just completed the refunding of $500,000 in 7 per cent orders into a fifteen-year 4½ per cent bond, thereby saving something like $200,000 for the life of the bond.

THE FARMER UP TO DATE.

One Who Was Strictly Up with the Times in Everything.

"Well, how're crops?" said the young man in the plaid suit, gayly, as he dropped into the seat beside the elderly individual with the gray chin whiskers and pepper-and-salt suit.

"I hear there ain't much demand for electricity," rejoined the latter, solemnly.

"Eh?" cried the young man, not so gayly as he had asked his first question.

"Petroleum, howsomever, is pretty steady," continued the elderly individual, stroking his whiskers thoughfully.

The young man looked askance at him and fidgeted uneasily in his place.

"And gasoline grows stronger every day," continued the elderly one, serenely.

The young man looked as though he wished he had seated himself somewhere else.

"Other kinds of fodder have slumped entirely, but, of course, they may begin feeding naphtha and other things again any day; you can never tell," continued the elderly one, ponderously.

The young man paled perceptibly, but he made up his mind to learn the worst.

"Say," he blurted out, "what kind of a blasted drug store of a farm do you run, anyway?"

"Me?" gasped the elderly one, with ungrammatical surprise.

"Yes, you," insisted the young man, stoutly.

"Why, I'm not a farmer, my young friend," said the elderly one. "I'm in the automobile supply business."—Harper's Bazar.

WORD FROM MARS.

When the Signal Was Made Out Its Significance Was Impertinent.

The greatest possible commotion prevailed. The entire world was interested. Scientists from every country flocked to the seat of the new observatory. The great telescope, the marvel of the nineteenth century, was the talk of two continents.

This world was on the eve of communicating with Mars. It had been scientifically proved possible. Astronomers watching the distant planet through lesser telescopes had observed the attempts of the Martians to signal us. They were using a system of great planes and geometrical figures which formed themselves into an understandable code.

Slowly was the big telescope focused on the distant star. Distracted reporters dashed around sending bulletins every five minutes. Aged astronomers waited with trembling anxiety for the great moment of their lives. Hundreds of smaller telescopes were carired along the range of the new optical instrument.

"The Martians are signaling!" telegraphed an excited correspondent; "in a few minutes more the signals will be read." At last! An eager eye is glued to the glass. The great figures on the plains of Mars move slowly. The world is hushed waiting for the message, the first to break the silence of Aeons. The first letter is made out with difficulty; the others follow more rapidly. The aged scientist spells out: "R-U-B-B-E-R!"—Rubber!—Puck.

HE WOULD DARE.

There Was an Egg Famine in Kansas and He Could Act There.

The paper fell from the hands of the half crushed tragedian. A shriek cut the damp air—

"At last! At last!" he cried, wild with something akin to enthusiasm.

A friend recognized the voice and slipping down from the high stool at the Ever-Ready lunch counter, hastened out. He hurried across the street, where the half-crushed tragedian leaned against a wall.

"Me friend! Me oldest pal!" he called, "what be the matter?"

"At last, at last!" exclaimed the half-crushed again, "at last they will hear my Hamlet!"

Tears welled up to the eyes of his friend. "Me heart is with you," he said, "but how does it happen—"

And before his wondering gaze the half-crushed held the newspaper. His eyes fell upon the startling head lines: "An Egg Famine in Kansas."

"And we are booked from one end of the state to the other, sobbed the half-crushed, choking with an emotion he could not beat back.

And there, all heedless of the passing throng, they wept upon the shoulder—each of each.—Detroit Free Press.

Forgetting Wives' Letters.

"He carried the letter around in his pocket for five weeks."

"Then what did he do?"

"He wrote to his father-in-law asking him what he'd better do. His father-in-law wrote right back and said he was awfully glad his son-in-law had written. The letter reminded him that he had a letter in his own pocket that he had been carrying around for six weeks."

"Didn't he offer any advice?"

"Not a word. So Briggs fussed around and worried, and at last opened the envelope to see how much mischief he had done by retaining it. What do you suppose it contained? A recipe for making tamarind jelly, clipped from some newspaper, together with two almanac jokes and a sample of cheap gingham. Briggs flung the whole outfit in the fire and felt better. But he chuckles every time he thinks of his old father-in-law and the burden he may still be carrying."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Scows That Pass in the Night.

Jacques leaned over the gunwale of the flatboat as she floated lazily down the Detroit river. He smoked his pipe.

Pierre hung over the rail of the scow that was upward bound. He also was enveloped in a hazy smoke.

In the moonlight the two boatmen recognized each other.

"H'llo, Pierre. How you geet along?"

"Oh, I been geet along. How you geet along?"

"Oh, I been geet along, too."

"How your seek fatair geet along, Jacques?"

"My fatair? Oh, she geet along. She been died last week."—Detroit Free Press.

Every reader of this paper should give special heed to the offers which are appearing from week to week by the John M. Smyth Co., the mammoth mail order house of Chicago. In this issue will be found their advertisement of a thoroughly up-to-date, first-class sewing machine, at the astoundingly low price of $14.25. Coming as this offer and other offers do from a house with a commercial rating of over one million dollars, and of the highest character, they mark an opportunity that the shrewd buyer will not be slow to take advantage of. The John M. Smyth Co., 150 to 166 West Madison street, will send their mammoth catalogue, in which is listed at wholesale prices everything to eat, wear and use, on receipt of only 10 cents to partly pay postage or expressage, and even this 10 cents is allowed on first purchase amounting to one dollar.

If people would pay as much attention to the preservation of life in other ways, there would be a great improvement. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a life preserver, discovered 50 years ago. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion and all forms of stomach trouble. It is an excellent tonic for the whole system and may be had from any druggist.

For the Grave.

A solicitor in a Georgia court is responsible for the following: He overheard a conversation between his cook and a nurse, who were discussing a recent funeral of a member of their race, at which there had been a great profusion of flowers. The nurse said: "When I die, don't plant no flowers on my grave, but plant a good old watermelon vine; and when it gets ripe you come dar, and don't you eat it, but jes' bus' it on de grave and let dat good old juice dribble down through de ground."—Youth's Companion.

M'KINLEY'S MESSAGE.

Synopsis of His Annual Communication to Congress.

Treats Exhaustively of the Subjects of Financial Legislation, the Trusts and the Affairs of the Different Colonies.

The following is a comprehensive synopsis of the president's annual message to congress, which makes, in full, about 30,000 words:

The message begins with an announcement of the death of Vice President Hobart and a tribute to his worth. Following that is a statement of the prosperity which the country is enjoying and statistics of our exports and imports for the year, in which it is shown that we have exported during the year more than $1,000,000,000 worth of goods, more than the total of both our exports and imports in 1870. Of the exports for the past year he says:

Exports of agricultural products were $784,776,142. Of manufactured products we exported in value $339,592,146, being larger than any previous year. It is noteworthy fact that the only years in all our history when the products of our manufactories sold abroad exceeded those bought abroad were 1898 and 1899.

Government Receipts and Expenses.

He calls attention to the report of the secretary of the treasury and his estimate of the receipts and expenditures for the present fiscal year, showing a surplus of $40,000,000. He points to the present gratifying strength of the treasury, and says that on December 1 the cash balance on hand was $278,004,857.72, of which $239,744,995.26 was in gold and bullion. Of the showing of the treasury he says:

Government receipts from all sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, including $11,788,314.14, part payment of the Central Pacific railroad indebtedness, aggregated $610,982,004.25. Customs receipts were $206,128,481.75, and those from internal revenue $273,437,161.51.

For the fiscal year the expenditures were $700,693,564.02, leaving a deficit of $89,111,559.67.

The secretary of the treasury estimates that the receipts for the current fiscal year will aggregate $640,958,112, and upon the basis of present appropriations the expenditures will aggregate $600,958,112, leaving a surplus of $40,000,000.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, the internal receipts were increased about $100,000,000.

Resumption of Bond Purchases.

He notes the resumption of bond purchases, and recommends important changes in the banking laws to allow national banks to organize with a capital of $25,000, and says:

The strong condition of the treasury with respect to cash on hand and the favorable showing made by the revenues have made it possible for the secretary of the treasury to take under the provisions of section 3,694, Revised Statutes, relating to the sinking fund. Receipts exceeded expenditures for the first five months of the current fiscal year by $13,413,289.91, and, as mentioned above, the secretary of the treasury estimates that there will be a surplus of approximately $40,000,000 at the end of the year. Under such conditions it was deemed advisable and proper to resume compliance with the provisions of the sinking fund law, which for eight years has not been done because of the deficiency in the revenue. The treasury department therefore offered to purchase during November $25,000,000 of the five per cent. loans of 1904, or the four per cent. funded loan of 1907, at the current market price. The amount offered and purchased during November was $18,868,600. The premium paid by the government on such purchases was $2,263,521 and the net saving in interest was about $2,852,000. The success of this operation was sufficient to induce the government to continue to offer to purchase bonds to and including the twenty-third day of December, unless the remainder of the $25,000,000 called for should be presented in the meantime for redemption. Increased activity in industry with its welcome attendant, a large employment of labor at higher wages, gives to the body of the people a larger power to absorb the circulating medium. It is further true that year by year with larger areas of land under cultivation, the increasing volume of agricultural products, corn, wheat, calls for a larger volume of money supply. This is especially noticeable at the crop harvests and crop movements and to meet them imperative to the end. The high margin of bond securities required, resulting from large premiums which government bonds command in the market, or the tax on note issues, or both operating together, appear to be the influences which impair its public utility.

The attention of congress is respectfully invited to this important matter with the view of ascertaining whether or not such reasonable modifications can be made in the national banking act as will render its service in the particulars referred to more responsive to the people's needs. I again urge that national banks be authorized to organize with a capital of $25,000.

I urgently recommend that to support the existing gold standard, and to maintain the parity in the coinage of the two metals (gold and silver) and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the market and in the payment of debts," the secretary of the treasury be given additional power and charged with the duty to sell United States bonds and to employ such other effective means as may be necessary to these ends. The authority should include the power to sell bonds on long and short time, as conditions may require, and should provide for a rate of interest lower than that fixed by the act of January 14, 1875.

Time for Gold Standard.

He strongly recommends the adoption of the gold standard, and on this subject says:

While there is now no commercial fright which withdraws gold from the government, but, on the contrary, such widespread confidence that gold seeks the treasury demanding paper money in exchange, yet the very situation points to the present as the most fitting time to make adequate provision to insure the continuance of the gold standard and of public confidence in the ability and purpose of the government to meet all its obligations in the money which the civilized world recognizes as the best. The financial transactions of the government are conducted upon a gold basis. We receive gold when we sell United States bonds and we pay gold for their payment. We are maintaining the parity of all the money issued or coined by authority of the government. We are doing these things with the means at hand. Happily at the present time we are not compelled to resort to loans to supply gold. It is been done in the past, however, and may have to be done in the future. It behooves us, therefore, to provide at once the best means to meet the emergency when it arises, and the best means are those which are the most certain and economical. Those now authorized have the virtue neither of directness nor economy. We have already eliminated one of the causes of our financial plight and embarrassment during the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896. Our expenditures equal our expenditures, deficient revenues no longer create alarm. Let us remove the only remaining cause by conferring the full and necessary power on the secretary of the treasury and impose upon him the duty to uphold the present gold standard and preserve the coins of the two metals on a parity with each other, which is the repeatedly declared policy of the United States.

In this connection I repeat my former recommendation that a portion of the gold holdings shall be placed in a trust fund from which greenbacks shall be redeemed upon presentation, but when once redeemed shall not thereafter be paid out except for gold.

A Merchant Marine Needed.

The value of an American merchant marine to the extension of our commercial trade and the strengthening of our power upon the sea invites the immediate action of congress. Our national development will be one-sided and unsatisfactory so long as the remarkable growth of our inland industries remains unaccompanied by progress on the seas. There is no lack of constitutional authority for legislation which shall give to the country maritime strength commensurate with its industrial achievements and with its rank among the nations of the earth.

The past year has recorded exceptional activity in our shipyards, and the promises of continual prosperity in shipbuilding are abundant. Advanced legislation for the protection of our seamen has been enacted. Our coast trade, under regulations wisely framed at the beginning of the government and since, shows results for the past fiscal year unequaled in our records or those of any other power. We shall fail to realize our opportunities, however, if we complacently regard only matters at home and blind ourselves to the necessity of securing our share in the valuable carrying trade of the world.

Our Dependence on Foreign Shipping.

Last year American vessels transported a smaller share of our exports and imports than during any former year in all our history, and the measure of our dependence upon foreign shipping was painfully manifested to our people. Without any choice of our own, but from necessity, the departments of the government charged with military and naval operations in the East and West Indies had to obtain from foreign flags merchant vessels essential for those operations.

The other great nations have not hesitated to adopt the required means to develop their shipping as a factor in national defense and as one of the surest and speediest means of obtaining for their producers a share in foreign markets. Like vigilance and effort on our part cannot fail to improve our situation, which is regarded with humiliation at home and with surprise abroad. Even the seeming sacrifices, which at the beginning may be involved, will be offset later by more than equivalent gains.

Industrial Progress at Stake.

The expense is as nothing compared to the advantage to be achieved. The reestablishment of our merchant marine involves in a large measure our continued industrial progress and the extension of our commercial triumphs. I am satisfied the judgment of the country favors the policy of aid to our merchant marine, which will broaden our commerce and markets and upbuild our sea carrying capacity for the products of agriculture and manufacture; which, with the increase of our navy, mean more work and wages to our countrymen, as well as a safeguard to American interests in every part of the world.

Asks for Trust Legislation

The subject of trusts is treated exhaustively, and several recommendations are made for their control, including a reiteration of those made by his predecessors. Of this subject he says in part:

It is universally conceded that combinations which engross or control the market of any particular kind of merchandise or commodity necessary to the general community, by suppressing natural and ordinary competition, whereby prices are unduly enhanced to the general consumer, are obnoxious not only to the common law but also to the public welfare. There must be a remedy for the evils involved in such organizations. If the present law can be extended more certainly to control or check these monopolies or trusts, it should be done without delay. Whatever power the congress possesses over this most important subject should be promptly ascertained and asserted.

State Legislation Has Failed.

He points to previous trust legislation and its ineffectiveness, and also calls attention to the legislation enacted by the various states in the following words:

The state legislation to which President Cleveland looked for relief from the evils of trusts has failed to accomplish fully that object. This is especially due to a great extent to the fact that different states take different views as to the proper way to discriminate between evil and injurious combinations and these associations which are beneficial and necessary to the business prosperity of the country. The great diversity of treatment in different states arising from this cause and the intimate relations of all parts of the country to each other without regarding state lines in the conduct of business have made the enforcement of state laws difficult.

It is apparent that uniformity of legislation upon this subject in the several states is much to be desired. It is to be hoped that such uniformity, founded in a wise and just discrimination between what is injurious and what is useful and necessary in business operations, may be obtained and that means may be found for the congress, within the limitations of its constitutional power, so to supplement an effective code of state legislation as to make complete the system of laws throughout the United States adequate to compel a general observance of the salutary rules to which I have referred.

The whole question is so important and far-reaching that I am sure no part of it will be lightly considered, but every phase of it will have the studied deliberation of the congress, resulting in wise and judicious action.

Our Foreign Relations.

Our foreign relations are treated exhaustively, and a general state of tranquility is shown with all countries. In this connection he notes that the contract between the Maritime Canal company and the Nicaraguan government has been declared forfeited by the latter, and then reviews the work of the United States canal commission and dwells on the importance of the undertaking to this country, and renews his recommendations of a year ago, of which he says the reasons then presented for early action are even stronger now.

The showing this country will make at the Paris exposition of next year is treated of at length, and says that we will have 7,000 exhibitors from this country.

Attention is called to the fact that Germany declines to recognize the excellence of our food products, but predicts a satisfactory settlement of the question. Of this he says:

The several governments of the empire seem reluctant to admit the natural excellence of our food products and to accept the evidence we constantly tender of the care with which their purity is guarded by rigid inspection from the farm, through the slaughter house and the packing establishments, to the port of shipment. Our system of control over exported food staples invites examination from any quarter and challenges respect by its efficient thoroughness.

Efforts to obtain for American life insurance companies a full hearing as to their business operations in Prussia have, after several years of patient representation, happily succeeded and one of the most important American companies has been granted a concession to continue business in that kingdom.

I am also glad to announce that the German insurance companies have been readmitted by the superintendent of insurance to do business in the state of New York.

The Canadian Boundary.

Satisfactory progress is reported in the work of the Alaskan boundary commission and hopes that the negotiations now in progress will end in a satisfactory agreement.

Much progress has been made by the commission toward the adjustment of many of these questions where it became apparent that an irreconcilable difference of views was entertained respecting the delimitation of the Alaskan boundary. In the failure of an agreement as to the meaning of articles 3 and 4 of the treaty of 1825 between Russia and Great Britain, which defined the boundary between Alaska and Canada, the American commissioners proposed that the subject of the boundary be laid aside and that the remaining questions of difference be proceeded with, some of which were so far advanced as to assure the probability of a settlement. This being declined by the British commissioners, an adjournment was taken until the boundary should be adjusted by the two governments. The subject has been receiving the careful attention which its importance demands, with the result that a modus vivendi for provisional demarcations in the region about the head of Lynn canal has been agreed upon; and it is hoped that the negotiations now in progress between the two governments will end in an agreement for the establishment and delimitation of a permanent boundary.

Apart from these questions, growing out of our relationship with our northern neighbors, the most friendly disposition and ready agreement have marked the discussion of numerous matters arising in the vast and intimate intercourse of the United States with Great Britain.

The necessity of a Pacific cable to Manila is alluded to, and he recommends that in case congress fails to provide for such communication the postmaster general be empowered to call for competitive bids for the establishment of the cable.

Wants Commission to China.

A commission to China is urged in the following words:

In my message to congress of December 5, 1898, I urged that the recommendation which had been made to the speaker of the house of representatives by the secretary of the treasury on the 14th of June, 1898, for an appropriation for a commission to study the commercial and industrial conditions in the Chinese empire and report as to the opportunities for, and obstacles to, the enlargement of markets in China for the products and manufactures of the United States, should receive at your hands the consideration which its importance and timeliness merited, but the congress failed to take action.

I now renew this recommendation, as the importance of the subject has steadily grown since it was first submitted to you, and no time should be lost in studying for ourselves the resources of this great field for American trade and enterprise.

The Samoan Question.

The entire history of the Samoan question is gone over exhaustively, and of the recent conference between Great Britain and Germany he says:

The arrangement under which Samoa was administered had proved impracticable and unacceptable to all the powers concerned. To withdraw from the agreement and abandon the islands to Germany and Great Britain would not be compatible with our interests in the archipelago. To relinquish our rights in the harbor of Pago Pago, the best anchorage in the Pacific, the occupancy of which had been leased to the United States in 1878 by the first foreign treaty ever concluded by Samoa, was not to be thought of either as regards the needs of our navy or the interests of our growing commerce with the east. We could not have considered any proposition for the abrogation of the tripartite control which did not confirm us in all our rights and safeguard all our national interests in the islands.

Our views commended themselves to the other powers. A satisfactory arrangement was concluded between the governments of Germany and of England, by virtue of which England retired from Samoa, in view of compensations in other directions, and both powers renounced in favor of the United States all their rights and claims over and in respect to that portion of the group lying to the east of the one hundred and seventy-first degree of west longitude, embracing the islands of Tutuila, Ofoo, Olosenga and Manua. I transmit to the senate, for its constitutional action thereon, a convention which, besides the provisions above mentioned, also guarantees us the same privileges and conditions in respect to commerce and commercial vessels in all of the islands of Samoa as those possessed by Germany.

Relations to Cuba.

Of our relations to Cuba during the year he recalls the withdrawal of the Spanish garrisons and the establishment of American military government until such time as the people were capable of caring for and maintaining a government of their own. He says that our pledge to Cuba to establish an independent government is of the highest honorable obligation and must be sacredly kept. Of the progress being made in the island he says:

For the relief of the distressed in the island of Cuba the war department has issued supplies to destitute persons, through the officers of the army, which have amounted to 5,493,009 rations, at a cost of $1,417,554.07.

To promote the disarmament of the Cuban volunteer army, and in the interest of public peace and the welfare of the people, the sum of $75 was paid to each Cuban soldier borne upon the authenticated rolls, on condition that he should deposit his arms with the authorities designated by the United States. The sum thus disbursed aggregated $2,547,750, which was paid from the emergency fund provided by the act of January 5, 1899, for that purpose.

Out of the Cuban island revenues during the six months ending June 30, 1899, $1,712,014.20 was expended for sanitation, $253,881.79 for charities and hospitals and $88,944.62 for aid to the destitute.

I believe that substantial progress has been made in this direction. All the administrative measures adopted in Cuba have aimed to fit it for a regenerated existence by enforcing the supremacy of law and justice; by placing wherever practicable the machinery of administration in the hands of the inhabitants; by instituting needed sanitary reforms; by spreading education; by fostering industry and trade; by inculcating public morality, and, in short, by taking every rational step to aid the Cuban people to attain to that plane of self-conscious respect and self-reliant unity which fits an enlightened community for self-government within its own sphere, while enabling it to fulfill all outward obligations.

This nation has assumed before the world a grave responsibility for the future good government of Cuba. We have accepted a trust the fulfillment of which calls for the sternest integrity of purpose and the exercise of the highest wisdom. The new Cuba yet to arise from the ashes of the past, must needs be bound to us by ties of singular intimacy and strength if its enduring welfare is assured. Whether those ties shall be organic or conventional, the destinies of Cuba are in some rightful form and manner irrevocably linked with our own, but how and how far is for the future to determine in the ripeness of events. Whether the present hopes of the friends of it that free Cuba be a reality, not a name, a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure. Our mission, to accomplish which we took up the sword, is one, is not to be fulfilled by turning adrift, in the unsettled and what is useful and necessary in business operations, may be obtained and that means may be found for the congress, within the limitations of its constitutional power, so to supplement an effective code of state legislation as to make complete the system of laws throughout the United States adequate to compel a general observance of the salutary rules to which I have referred.

The whole question is so important and far-reaching that I am sure no part of it will be lightly considered, but every phase of it will have the studied deliberation of the congress, resulting in wise and judicious action.

Domestic Postal Service.

The domestic postal service continues to grow with extraordinary rapidity. The expenditures and the revenues will each exceed $100,000,000 during the current year. Fortunately, since the revival of prosperous times the revenues have grown much faster than the expenditures, and there is every indication that a short period will witness the obliteration of the annual deficit. In this connection the report of the postmaster general embodies a statement of some evils which have grown up outside of the contemplation of law in the treatment of some classes of mail matter which wrongly exercise the privilege of the pound rate, and shows that if this matter had been properly classified and had paid the rate which it should have paid, instead of a postal deficit for the last fiscal year of $6,610,000, there would have been on one basis a surplus of $17,637,570, and on another of $5,753,836. The reform thus suggested, in the opinion of the postmaster general, would not only put the postal service at once on a self-sustaining basis, but would permit great and valuable improvements, and I commend the subject to the consideration of the congress.

The Navy.

He concurs in the recommendations made by the secretary of the navy for the increase of that branch of the public service and legislation that will provide for armor plate for the vessels now building.

It cannot be doubted that congress will at once make the necessary provision for armor plate for the vessels now under contract and building. Its attention is respectfully called to the report of the secretary of the navy, in which the subject is fully presented. I unite in his recommendation that the congress enact such special legislation as may be necessary to enable the department to make contracts early in the coming year for armor of the best quality that can be obtained in this country for the Maine, Ohio, and Missouri, and that the provision of the act of March 3, 1899, limiting the price of armor to $300 per ton be removed.

In the matter of naval construction, Italy and Japan, of the great powers, laid down less tonnage in the year 1899 than this country, and Italy alone has less tonnage under construction. I heartily concur in the recommendations for the increase of the navy, as suggested by the secretary.

Our future progress and prosperity depend upon our ability to equal if not surpass other nations in the enlargement and advance of science, industry and commerce. To invention we must turn as one of the most powerful aids to the accomplishment of such a result. The attention of the congress is directed to the report of the commissioner of patents, in which will be found valuable suggestions and recommendations.

The Subject of Pensions.

On the subject of pensions he gives the present ruling of the commissioner of pensions regarding the pensions of widows, recites the decision rendered by the grand army at its recent encampment, and says:

With the approval of the secretary of the interior, the commissioner of pensions recommends that, in order to make the practice at all times uniform and to do justice to the pensioners, the amount of income allowed independent of the proceeds of her daily labor should be not less than $250 per annum, and he urges that the congress shall so amend the act as to permit the pension office to grant pensions in cases of total inability from the causes of the third section of June 27, 1890, whose income aside from the proceeds of daily labor is not in excess of $250 per annum. I believe this to be a simple act of justice and I cordially recommend it.

On the subject of forest reservations he recommends an increase in the appropriations for this work of the interior department.

The Census.

The census and the Pacific railroads are treated as follows:

In accordance with the act of congress approved March 3, 1899, the preliminary work in connection with the twelfth census is now fully under way. The officers required for the proper administration of the duties imposed have been selected. The provision for securing a proper enumeration of the population, as well as to secure evidence of the industrial growth of the nation, is broader and more comprehensive than any similar legislation in the past. The director advises that every needful effort is being made to push this great work to completion in the time limited by the statute. It is believed that the twelfth census will emphasize our remarkable advance in all that pertains to national progress.

The Pacific Railroads.

Under the authority of the act of congress approved July 7, 1898, the commission, consisting of the secretary of the treasury, the attorney general and secretary of interior, have made an agreement of settlement, which has had my approval, of the indebtedness to the government growing out of the issue of bonds to aid in the construction of the Central Pacific and Western Pacific railroads. The agreement secures to the government the principal and interest of said bonds, amounting to $58,812,715.48. There has been paid thereon $11,762,543.12, which has been covered into the treasury, and the remainder, payable within ten years, with interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum, payable semiannually, is secured by the deposit of an equal amount of first mortgage bonds of the Pacific railway companies.

The amounts paid and secured to be paid to the government on account of the Pacific railroad subsidy claims are:

Union Pacific, cash	$ 58,448,222.75
Kansas Pacific, cash	6,303,000.00
Central and Western Pacific, cash	11,798,214.14
Notes, secured	47,050,172.36
Kansas Pacific dividends for deficiency due United States, cash	821,897.70
Making a total of	$124,421,907.95

The whole indebtedness was about $130,000,000, more than half of which consisted of accrued interest, for which sum the government has realized the entire amount less about $6,000,000 within a period of two years.

Department of Agriculture.

Regarding the work of the department of agriculture, the president refers to the inestimable value of the department to our agricultural interests, and says of it:

Markets are being sought and opened up for surplus farm and factory products in Europe and in Asia. The outlook for the education of the young farmer through agricultural college and experiment stations, with opportunity given to specialize in the department of agriculture, is very promising. The people of Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands, should be helped, by the establishment of experiment stations, to a more scientific knowledge of the possibilities of coffee, India rubber and other tropical products, for which there is demand in the United States.

There is widespread interest in the improvement of our public highways at the present time, and the department of agriculture is cooperating with the people in each locality in making the best possible roads from local material and in experimenting with steel tracks. A more intelligent system of managing the forests of the country is being put in operation, and a careful study of the whole forestry problem is being conducted throughout the United States. A very extensive and complete exhibit of the agricultural and horticultural products of the United States is being prepared for the Paris exposition.

The Philippines.

Of all the subjects treated the Philippines receive probably the greatest amount of attention. He reviews the conditions in this government with the islands since the signing of the peace treaty with Spain, tells of the attempt of the administration to assure the people of the islands of the good will and friendly intentions of this government, and of this says:

From the earliest moment no opportunity was lost of assuring the people of the islands of our ardent desire for their welfare and of the intention of this government to do everything possible to advance their interests. In my order of the 19th of May, 1898, the commander of the military expedition dispatched to the Philippines was instructed to declare that we came not to make war upon the people of that country, "nor upon any party or faction among them, but to protect them in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights." That there should be no doubt as to the paramount authority there, on the 17th of August it was directed that "there must be no joint occupation with the insurgents;" that the United States must preserve the peace and protect persons and property within the territory occupied by their military and naval forces; that the insurgents and all others must recognize the military occupation and authority of the United States. As early as December 4, before the cession, and in anticipation of that event, the commander in Manila was urged to restore peace and tranquility and to undertake the establishment of a beneficent government, which should afford the fullest security for life and property.

The Philippine Commission.

He reviews the organization of the Philippine commission and its purpose, and states that before their arrival at Manila the insurrection had broken out. Of this commission and the outbreak of the insurrection he says:

But before their arrival at Manila the sinister ambition of a few leaders of the Filipinos had created a situation full of embarrassments for us and most grievous in its consequences to themselves. The clear and impartial preliminary report of the commissioners, which I transmit herewith, gives so lucid and comprehensive a history of the present insurrectionary movement that the story need not be here repeated. It is enough to say that the claim of the rebel leader that he was promised independence by any officer of the United States in return for his assistance has no foundation in fact and is categorically denied by the very witnesses who were called to prove it. The most the insurgent leader hoped for when he came back to Manila was the liberation of the islands from the Spanish control, which they had been laboring for years without success to throw off.

Aguinaldo's Ambition.

The prompt accomplishment of this work by the American army and navy gave him other ideas and ambitions, and insidious suggestions from various quarters perverted the purposes and intentions with which he had taken up arms. No sooner had our army captured Manila than the Filipino forces began to assume an attitude of suspicion and hostility which the utmost efforts of our officers and troops were unable to disarm or modify. Their kindness and forbearance were taken as a proof of cowardice. The aggressions of the Filipinos continually increased until finally, just before the time set for the senate of the United States for a vote upon the treaty, an attack, evidently prepared in advance, was made along the American lines, which resulted in a terribly destructive and sanguinary repulse of the insurgents.

Ten days later an order of the insurgent government was issued to its adherents who had remained in Manila, of which Gen. Otis justly observes that "for barbarous intent it is unequaled in modern times." It directs that at eight o'clock on the night of the 15th of February, the "territorial militia" shall come in the streets of San Pedro, armed with their bolos, with guns and ammunition where convenient; that Filipino families only shall be respected; that all other individuals, of whatever race they may be, shall be exterminated without any compassion, after the extermination of the army of occupation, and adds: "Brothers, we must avenge ourselves on the Americans and exterminate them, that we may take our revenge for the infamies and treacheries which they have committed upon us. Have no compassion upon them; attack with vigor." A copy of this fell, by good fortune, into the hands of our officers, and they were able to take measures to control the rising, which was actually attempted on the night of February 22, a week later than was originally contemplated. Considerable number of armed insurgents entered the city by waterways and swamps and in concert, with confederates inside, attempted to destroy Manila by fire. They were kept in check during the night, and the next day driven out of the city with heavy loss.

Rebellion Must Be Put Down.

Of the course to be pursued and the work of reconstruction that is going on he says:

From the first the course to be pursued has been unflinchingly pursued. The rebellion must be put down. Civil government cannot be thoroughly established until order is restored. With a devotion and gallantry worthy of its most brilliant history, the army, ably and loyally assisted by the navy, has carried on this unwelcome, but most righteous, campaign with richly deserved success. The noble self-sacrifice with which our soldiers and sailors whose terms of service had expired refused to avail themselves of their right to return home as long as they were needed at the front forms one of the brightest pages in our annals. Although their operations have been somewhat interrupted and checked by a rainy season of unusual violence and duration, they have gained ground steadily in every direction, and now look forward confidently to a speedy completion of their task.

Work of Reconstruction.

The unfavorable circumstances connected with an active campaign have not been permitted to interfere with the equally important work of reconstruction. Again I invite your attention to the report of the commissioners for the interesting and encouraging details of the work already accomplished in the establishment of peace and order and the inauguration of self-governing municipal life in many portions of the archipelago. A notable beginning has been made in the establishment of a government in the island of Negros, which is deserving of special consideration. This was the first island to accept American sovereignty. Its people unreservedly proclaimed allegiance to the United States and adopted a constitution looking to the establishment of a popular government. It was impossible to guarantee to the people of Negros that the constitution so adopted should be the ultimate form of government. Such a question, under the treaty with Spain, and in accordance with our own constitution and laws, came exclusively within the jurisdiction of congress. The government actually set up by the inhabitants of Negros eventually proved unsatisfactory to the natives themselves. A new system was put into force by order of the major general commanding the department, of which the following are the most important elements:

The Sulu Islands.

He refers to the government established in the island of Negros as successful, and outlines its salient features. Of the Sulu group he gives the features of the treaty entered into between this country and the sultan, and of that portion of the treaty relating to slavery in the islands says:

Article X. provides that any slave in the archipelago of Jolo shall have the right to purchase freedom by paying to the master the usual market value. The agreement by Gen. Bates was made subject to confirmation by the president and to future modifications by the consent of the parties in the interest. I have confirmed said agreement, subject to the action of the congress, and with the reservation, which I have directed shall be communicated to the sultan of Jolo, that this agreement is not to be deemed in any way to authorize or give the consent of the United States to the existence of slavery in the Sulu archipelago. I communicate these facts to the congress for its information and action.

The United States flag will be used in the archipelago and its dependencies, on land and sea. Piracy is to cease. Both the sultan and the sultan agrees to cooperate heartily with the United States authorities to that end and make every possible effort to arrest and bring to justice all persons engaged in piracy. The trade in domestic products of the archipelago of Jolo when carried on with any part of the Philippine islands and under the American flag shall be free, unlimited and undutiable. The United States will give full protection to the sultan in case any foreign nation should attempt to oppose it. It says if the United States will not sell the island of Jolo or any other island of the Jolo archipelago to any foreign nation without the consent of the sultan. Salaries for the sultan and his associates in the administration of the islands have been agreed upon to the amount of $760 monthly.

Government of the Philippines.

The president points to the recent victories over the insurgent forces as a proof that the insurrection in the islands is about over, and says of their future government:

The future government of the Philippines rests with the congress of the United States. Few graver responsibilities have ever been confided to us. If we accept the trust in the spirit worthy of our race and our traditions, a great opportunity comes with them. The islands lie under the shelter of our flag. They are ours by every title of law and equity. They cannot be abandoned. If we desert them we leave them to anarchy and finally to barbarism. We fling them, a golden apple of discord, among the rival powers, no one of which could permit another to seize them unquestioned. Their rich plains and valleys would be the scene of endless strife and bloodshed.

The advent of Dewey's fleet in Manila bay, instead of being, as we hope, the dawn of a new day of freedom and progress, will have been the beginning of an era of misery and violence worse than that from which their unhappy past. The suggestion has been made that we could renounce our authority over the islands and, giving them independence, could retain a protectorate over them. This proposition will not, I feel sure, be entertained by our serious attention. Such an arrangement would involve at the outset a cruel breach of faith. It would place the peaceable and loyal majority, who ask nothing better than to accept our authority, at the mercy of the minority of armed insurgents. It would make us responsible for the acts of the insurgent leaders and give us no power to control them. It would charge us with the task of protecting them against each other, and defending them against any foreign power with which they chose to quarrel. In short, it would take from the congress of the United States the power of declaring war and vest that tremendous prerogative in the Tagalo leader of the hour.

Recommendations Not Needed Now.

He does not deem recommendations for the Philippines needed at the present time, but will make them to congress when peace has been fully restored there. Until such time as congress shall legislate upon the subject he announces that he will maintain the sovereignty of the United States in the islands, and put at the disposal of the army and navy all the means possible to put down the insurrection. Of the efforts to build up the waste places as fast as they shall come within our control he says:

No effort will be spared to build up the waste places desolated by war and by long years of misgovernment. We shall not wait for the end of strife to begin the beneficent work. We shall continue, as we have begun, to open the schools and the churches, to set the courts in operation, to foster industry and trade and agriculture, and in every way in our power to make these people whom Providence has brought within our jurisdiction feel that it is their liberty and not our power, their welfare and not our gain, we are seeking to enhance. Our flag has never waved over any community but in blessing. I believe the Filipinos will soon recognize the fact that it has not lost its gift of benediction in its worldwide journey to their shores.

The Hawaiian Islands.

Regarding the Hawaiian islands he recommends speedy legislation and the establishment of a government under our system. He recounts the possible difficulties that may be encountered, and says:

The people of these islands are entitled to the benefits and privileges of our constitution, but in the absence of any act of congress providing for federal courts in the islands, and for a procedure by which appeals, writs of error, and other judicial proceedings necessary for the enforcement of civil rights may be prosecuted, they are powerless to secure their enforcement by the judgment of the courts of the United States. It is manifestly important, therefore, that an act shall be passed as speedily as possible erecting these islands into a judicial district, providing for the appointment of a judge and other proper officers and methods of procedure in appellate proceedings and that the government of this newly acquired territory under the federal constitution shall be fully defined and provided for.

Legislation Asked for Alaska.

Legislation is asked for Alaska which will provide more courts for that territory, and also permit the organization of municipal governments, and says:

The whole vast area of Alaska comprises but one judicial district, with one judge, one marshal and one district attorney, yet the civil and criminal business has more than doubled within the past year, and is many times greater both in volume and importance than it was in 1884. The duties of the judge require him to travel thousands of miles to discharge his judicial duties at the various places designated for that purpose. The territory should be divided into at least two districts and an additional judge, district attorney, marshal and other appropriate officers be provided.

There is practically no organized form of government in the territory. There is no authority, except in congress, to pass any law, no matter how local or trivial, and the difficulty of conveying to the congress an adequate conception and understanding of the various needs of the people in the different communities is easily understood. I see no reason why a more complete form of territorial organization should not be provided. Following the precedent established in the year 1805, when a temporary government was provided for the recently acquired territory, then known under the name of Louisiana, it seems to me that it would be advantageous to confer greater executive power upon the governor and to establish, as was done in the case of the territory of Louisiana, a legislative council having power to adopt ordinances which shall extend to all the rightful subjects of local legislation, such ordinances not to take effect until reported to and approved by the congress if in session, and if that body is not in session then by the president. In this manner a system of laws providing for the incorporation and government of towns and cities having a certain population, giving them the power to establish and maintain a system of education to be locally supported, and ordinances providing for police, sanitary and other such purposes, could be speedily provided.

I believe a provision of this kind would be satisfactory to the people of the territory. It is probable that the area is too vast and the population too scattered and transitory to make it wise at the present time to provide for an elective legislative body, but the conditions calling for local self-government will undoubtedly very soon exist and will be facilitated by the measures which I have recommended.

Porto Rico.

For Porto Rico he advises legislation that will give them a temporary form of government, recounts the work done by the military government now in control, and makes the following recommendations:

It must be borne in mind that since the cession Porto Rico has been denied the principal markets she had long enjoyed and our tariffs have been continued against her products as when she was under Spanish sovereignty. The markets of Spain are closed to her products except upon terms to which the commerce of all nations is subjected. The island of Cuba, which used to buy her cattle and tobacco without customs duties, now imposes the same duties upon these products as from any other country entering her ports. She has therefore lost her free intercourse with Spain and Cuba without any compensating benefits in this market. Her coffee was little known and not in use by our people, and therefore there was no demand here for this, one of her chief products. The markets of the United States should be opened up to her products. Our plain duty is to abolish all customs tariffs between the United States and Porto Rico and give her products free access to our markets.

As a result of the hurricane which swept over Porto Rico on the 8th of August, 1899, over 100,000 people were reduced to absolute destitution, without homes, and deprived of the necessaries of life. To the appeal of the war department the people of the United States made prompt and generous response. In addition to the private charity of our people, the war department has expended for the relief of the distressed $302,242.03, which does not include the cost of transportation.

It is desirable that the government of the island under the law of belligerent right, now maintained through the executive department, should be superseded by an administration entirely civil in its nature. For present purposes I recommend that congress pass a law for the organization of a temporary government, which shall provide for the appointment by the president, subject to confirmation by the senate, of a governor and such other officers as the general administration of the island may require, and that for legislative purposes on subjects of a local nature not partaking —Sunday morning the ground was covered with snow and winter had evidently set in. The snow was not sufficient for sleighing. The thermometer has indicated below zero this week.

—The social gathering held at the I. O. O. F. Hall last Saturday evening proved to be quite a success. Everybody enjoying themselves. Refreshments were served about 11:00 after which the party dispersed.

—The Delano Cemetery Association held its regular meeting Monday evening, Dec. 4. The Association is getting on a better standing than it has been before. The regular annual election of members of the board should occur sometime soon.

—Delano's Board of Education met Saturday evening and discussed the necessity of complying with the law concerning instruction in physiology and hygiene being given in the school; the allowing of traveling entertainments avoiding license, etc., by exhibiting under the auspices of the public school, pupils engaging in the sale of tickets, and a few other important subjects.

—St. Michael's Polish Society of Delano, celebrated Poland's national holiday, Nov. 19, in style. A parade on the streets, with flags flying and drums beating, and patriotic speeches in the hall were part of the program. Among the speakers were Mowcy Michael Zagorska, Stanislaw Kowalski, Anton Zwierska, Adam Kruszewski, Miss Mary Zagorska, of St. Paul, and Paul Plotnik, of Delano.

The Delano society had for president, E. Klich; secretary, Simon Kittock and proposes to celebrate each anniversary as it comes round in future.

—The St. Cecilia Club wish to announce that: Believing that much is to be gained by working together and that much pleasure might be gained and given through such an organization, a number of Miss Kerr's pupils met at the home of Mrs. T. B. Rader on Monday evening and organized a club to be known as the St. Cecilia Club.

"To do our best to know the best" was adopted as the club motto and its object is study and mutual pleasure. Meetings are to be held on alternate Tuesday evenings with occasional "open" meetings and the plan is to give a recital during the holidays.

Officers were elected as follows:

President, Miss Blanche Rader; Vice President, Miss Lotta Roosen; Secretary, Miss Katie Frank; Treasurer and Librarian, Miss Ada Rader. Executive committee, Miss Kerr, Miss Blanche Rader, Miss Katie Frank, Miss Grace Mowatt, Miss Lotta Roosen. Program Committee, Mrs. T. B. Rader and Miss Kerr.

After the business meeting was over an impromptu program was given and light refreshments were served by Mrs. Rader.

—In his lecture Dr. Mitchell seemed to enjoy leaving his text, "My Ideal Boy" alone for a season, while he thrashed some of his worst enemies.

—Recorder Peterson has been officially assured that he can inform those interested that what business is transacted by him as Village Recorder is legal.

—A Sunday morning omnibus from Delano to Rockford station is said to have been in demand last Lord's day, to carry school marms and others on their way to their work.

—The failure of Ward & Watson, a Minneapolis firm that guaranteed 50 per cent profits reminds some of our citizens of investments they made in a building and loan association once upon a time.

—A synopsis of President McKinley's message appears on the inside of this paper The whole message makes fourteen columns of fine type in the daily papers, and would require most men at least a week to read understandingly.

—It has been determined by Rev. Thompson and others that sometime about New Years, the mortgages on the M. E. church property, in Delano, will be publicly burned. All who would like to see the consumation of this determination can help by contributing.

—The lecture in the City Hall on Tuesday evening was well attended and highly appreciated. Dr. Mitchell is a fine lecturer and the unanimous verdict was that "we have just listened to one of the best lectures ever given in Delano" while Dr. Mitchell was heard to say "the audience was one which no town, of this size, need be ashamed of." To anyone having an opportunity to hear Dr. Mitchell's "My Ideal Boy" we would say, don't miss your opportunity.

—Christmas is coming and you want to make some of your friends a present which will cause them to remember you. Nothing could better do this than a newspaper or a magazine, received by mail once a week, or month. If you have a friend living at a distance send them the GAZETTE and keep the Cosmopolitan, one of the best monthly magazines, for your own family. The Two for $1.85. And if you are a politician make the amount of your cash remittance up to $235 and and get the GAZETTE, the Cosmopolitan and the Thrice-a-week World, for one year.

—Our village authorities are congratulating themselves on the fact that they have saved the village a large bill of expense by looking up the friends, and the residence of an aged itinerant, who unfortunately, became disabled from pursuing his usual avocation and was confined to his bed and in need of help. He had already been in our village for about two months and the village was daily becoming involved on his account. On Monday a relative came and settled for what had been done and the patient was sent to the City Hospital at Minneapolis, being a resident of Hennepin county.

Forester's Party.

The following writeup of the Forester's party which we promised to print, just reached us this week:

That Delano's social season has opened in earnest was clearly demonstrated last Thursday evening by the Catholic Foresters at the Oddfellows' hall. The event was a progressive cinch party to their freinds and neighbors. If one desired to know who and how numerous those friends and neighbors were, they had but to step into the hall on that occasion to become satisfied. All the preceeding day one might observe the baskets of viands being borne to the hall by a few of the faithful followers of the order, and many a longing thought went forth in anticipation of what was in store, only to be realized later on. Those who arrived early in the evening enjoyed the privilege of social converse from which later arrivals were prohibited by the excitement of the game. Chief Ranger Borsch, acting as master of ceremonies, read the rules of the game in a concise and firm tone. When all were ready the "coming lady" grasped her cards and began to shuffle them as if her fate depended upon their successful manipulation. Some won, others lost, as in the game of life; thus swayed the tide for nearly two hours. Peals of laughter would often reverberate through the hall, indicating that the human mind tires of prolonged concentration, or that it was forced to yield to more alluring influences. At 11 o'clock the same warning that ushered in the game announced its close. The prizes offered were awarded to Mrs. John Taschler and Mr. Albert Eppel, thereby proving themselves the champions of the evening. Refreshments were then served, their delicacy and variety reflected credit upon the cooks, and the way in which they were served proves the fact that cooking is not the only accomplishment in which the Foresters excel. The hearty good will that prevailed could not fail to gratify the most skeptical observer. The Mahommedan, the Brahman, and the Buddhist each extendede th right hand of fellowship one to another. Let us pray that no cloud may ever obscure the brilliancy of such charity, and no discordant tones ever mar its harmony. —Katherine Kelly Green.

Burlington Reclining Chair Cars.

Running on two trains a day to and from Chicago, are the largest, roomiest, and in every way best, of any such cars running from St. Paul and Minneapolis. When you buy a ticket over the Burlington you get the best.

Personal.

Frank Roban made a flying trip to the city this week.

Miss Stella Davis visited at home a few days last week.

Cramer Swartout, of Montrose, was a Delano visitor, Wednesday.

Mr. Lloid Helmer of Buffalo visited Friends in Delano last Friday.

A. I Hanaford and Aug. Haffien, of Buffalo, were Delano visitors Saturday.

Joh Brenner who has been at Springfield for a few months returned home Monday.

Wm. Stacy and wife, of Montrose, attended the lecture in Delano Tuesday evening.

Miss Viola Cunningham came home from Omaha yesterday for a month's vacation

Adolph Holmberg, of Maple Lake, is visiting with his sister Mrs. G. F. Herman, of Delano.

Uncle Joe Bland and Alex Hayes, of Marysville, made Delano a business visit Wednesday.

Leo Pegrena who has been working in Montana the past summer, returned home Wednesday.

Geo. Kurtz returned home from Minneapolis after a visit with his brother, Thursday evening.

Landlord Hemilton, of the Grand Hotel, Cedar Rapids, Iowa was in town on business Tuesday.

William Gross and daughter Hattie returned Friday evening from their Thanksgiving trip to St. Paul.

David Boyer who was a guest at the Gilmer House for a number of weeks has gone to Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Cal Mattison and daughter, Mrs. Beach, of Rockford, drove over on business yesterday.

L. M. Maxfield returned home Wednesday evening, after an absence of several months doing contract work.

Fay Parslow visited Minneapolis friends Saturday, preparatory to his return to Hankinson, where he went Monday.

County Cullings.

Whooping cough is reported as being among the ailments of Middleville people.

Howard Lake froze over Tuesday, Dec. 5th. This is the first time in 15 years that the lake remained open as late as December.

Everybody that can ought to hear William Jennings Bryan while he is in Minneapolis, January 10, 2900, and learn for themselves that he does endorse the Chicago platform of 1896.

Last Sunday Henry Hohl, who lived with his brother Charles about four miles east of Buffalo, by mistake took aconite for nervine and died. The coroner thought and inquest unnecessary as the case was purely accidental.

Treasurer Hanaford and Register of Deeds Haffien were around shaking hands with Delano friends Saturday. Of course it seems a good while till election day, but this is to be a long campaign and there is nothing like being early in the field.

The Annandale Post-Advocate finds fault with our correspondent who signs "Farmer". Of course editors like Mr. Satterlee are not very favorably impressed with farmers, and farmers ideas. They prefer to be inspired from other sources in their lofty flights on such subjects as "True Democracy". Farmer could give Messrs Winston & Satterlee odds and distance them in the race for a decision in a debate on "True Democracy".

Among Our Exchanges.

Norwood Times: Who will preside at the free silver banquets now—since Winston has flopped again?

Aitkin Republican: The Republican national committee will meet in Washington on Dec. 15 to fix the date of the next national convention. The campaign will then be on.

County Line: President McKinley says the Philippines came to us "through the providence of God." Yes, but we paid the haughty Don about twenty million plunks for something!

LeSueur Sentinel: General Funston improved the time before sailing, with his mouth, to good effect, and kept himself sedulously before the people. Perhaps now we shall have a rest as cable tolls are expensive.

Waseca Herald: We are glad to observe that P. B. Winston, railroad contractor and gold advocate in disguise, has uncovered himself and shown his true colors. Goodbye Winston. Birds of a feather should flock together.

Litchfield News Ledger: Those who keep harping on the string about Hon. Knute Nelson backing this or that candidate are talking through their hats. Mr. Nelson has a little kittle of fish of his own on his hands and he has no time to keep other pots boiling.

Duluth Herald: Gen. Otis established the censorship at Manila under orders from the secretary of war, all of whose acts were approved by President McKinley From the same quarter the orders were sent to Gen. Otis directing him to suspend the censorship. These are matters of record.

Sherburne County Times: Van Sant, Evans, and Clapp divide the honors of being 'mentioned' for gubernatorial candidates about equally, but should any of the above named gentlemen be chosen to head the ticket, Governor Lind and the opposition would laugh immensely at the easy task they would have to beat them. The republicans have a hard struggle ahead to win back the governorship and a Moses is needed.

The Fire Drill.

Under direction of Superintendent Torrens the pupils in the public schools have been systematically drilled in marching in the best of order from their various rooms with almost incredible dispatch. In most of the rooms the pupils gather their books and wraps, march out of the building and return to their seats in two minutes; the longest time taken in any of the rooms is two minutes.—Anoka Herald.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $ 1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

"ACCORDING TO HOYLE."

On Tuesday afternoon at two—
Togged out in highest style—
The ladies of the Euchere Club
Play cards by rule of Hoyle.

Of course it's all for pleasure—
Not only wants the prize—
No lusts of conquest's in their hearts,
No fever in their eyes.

But each one on her partner
Bestows a loving kiss,
And when the cards are dealt around
The talk proceeds like this:

"Oh dear I never saw such cards—
Who dealt a hand like this?"
"Oh partner how could you play so?
Your chance you always miss."

"You should have led your bower then,
Where did you learn to play?"
"It may be so in other games,
But Hoyle doesn't rule that way."

"I never saw such greasy cards,
Miss Blank should be ashamed—"
"Whose turn is it to play, and Has the trump been named?"

"Now that trick's mine"—"It isn't so—"
"Now don't you be so smart—"
"I took it with my king of spades—"
"That's lower than my heart."

"I so enjoy our Euchre Club,
It's such a pleasant place
To spend a quiet afternoon—
Oh, shaw! You've trumped my ace."

"There is Mrs. X across the room,
Just see how she is dress;"
"She always wares that same old gown
No doubt it is her best."

"There goes the bell and we are tied;
I suppose we will have to cut—
I never have a bit of luck."
"Unless our eyes are shut."

And so it goes on till the end,
(The price costs ninety cents).
Each one her partner vilifies,
And on her host comments.

And when the afternoon is gone,
They home and hubby seek,
And tell about the splendid prize,
They're going to win next week.

WONDER if Uncle Sam couldn't buy a quit claim deed of the Boers at $2 a head, from Johnny Bull.

THE Boers continue to worry the British Lion as he hasn't been worried for a long time. Notwithstanding the reported alliance between the United States and England most people about here appear to sympathize with the Boers.

DR. A. E. SENKLER, of St. Paul, died Sunday, Dec. 10. He was an instructor in the Medical Department of the State University. He formerly lived at St. Cloud, but for many years has resided in St. Paul. He will be missed from the ranks of the medical profession of the state.

THE evidence of the futility of one man trying to climb into office by belittling another absurdly is plain in the case of G. S. Pease, of Anoka, who started in a campaign for Governor against "jacklind."

MORAL: Be courteous.

SOMETHING should be done to check the fearful depredations committed under the influence of intoxicants. Disgrace, disaster, death, are daily charges made against the deadly and damning influences of distilled destruction dealt out by those seeking wealth or an existence for a few short years without obeying the injunction "in the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground". Here misery is caused in America today by the saloon and its environments than by any other one evil Men, women, and children are kept in ignorance, disease, and unhappiness, sent to reform schools, jails, penitentiaries; hung; or sent to insane asylums. Politics have their origin, oftentimes, in these places, and only patrons of the saloon dare run for office because of there being no show for them. Everybody knows these things to be true. Yet men will let them go on, and on, gathering in new victims every day and dealing out death to the old ones. Thousands of the best young men of of our land are hustled away to fight a few people across the ocean, and to open up chances for the sale of more beer, while Congress neglects to send along Chaplains to help keep the men straight or to minister to their dying wishes. Would it not be better for our citizens to look to home, to do what they can to enlighten, and to teach the rising generation the evils of drink, and to help them to learn to shun such things as tend to kill mind body and soul?

GEN. DEL PILAR, Aguinaldo's chief of staff, is reported killed in battle.

OUR republican friends have lots to say about democrats being divided. It's themselves; they have a dozen or so candidates for Governor against J. Lind.

REPORTS keep coming of our forces occupying towns in the Philippines. Somehow the names of the towns occupied are becoming quite familiar.

WHAT a chance there is to expand our commerce, and create a new market for fine edge tools, razors, etc. by buying sovereignty of England over the Transvaal.

BLIXT, the associate of Harry Hayward in the Miss Ging murder, now in Stillwater penitentiary, is suing for pardon. He stands on the same plain as Cole Younger in claiming conversion, and better in being led, and not the leader in crime.

ANNANDALE, Minn., Special, Dec. 12—Miss Maude Golladay, daughter of J. B. Golladay, was married to Henry A. Taylor at Cokato. The marriage was not approved by the father of the bride and Saturday evening she left her home with her affianced and went to Cokato, where the marriage occured at the home of Mr. Taylor.—Pioneer Press.

THE New York World's account of the "pig sticking" of 60 Boers out of 90, by a large force of Fifth lancers, a "gentleman's regiment" of the British army, is not calculated to create any sympathy for the British. When men have thrown down their arms, and on their knees beg for mercy, is a poor time to ride them down and stick lances through them. Is that spreading civilization, or Christianity?

THE State Dairy and Food Department of our State Government is getting right down to good hard work. A little bulletin is sent out giving the monthly statement of work done. If you wish to have pure food to eat you should consult the bulletin and find out who makes pure, unadulterated articles for sale. For November, inspections were made of vinegars, spices baking powder, honey, cheese, lard. 20 fines of $25 each and one of $10 were imposed during the month. A sample of filled cheese was rounded up and placed on exhibition at the capitol. Major Bowler is liable to be accused by the opposition party of making his living out of filled cheese and such. Nevertheless let us have pure food.

ALL reports from the seat of war in South Africa during the past week have been favorable to the Boers, and tell of British reverses and delays. Among reverses suffered by the British are a check in an assault on Boer position at Modder river and capture of 50 British soldiers, with heavy loss in killed and wounded; defeat and retreat from Stormberg with heavy loss and 672 prisoners and 3 guns in the hands of the enemy; several minor affairs favorable to Boers, followed by a serious reverse at Magersfontein by the column under Lord Methuen, who was forced to retreat with severe loss. The following is a published telegram from London, Dec. 14.

"Each important battle seems to bring a worse reverse for the British, and the papers this morning sorrowfully admit that Lord Methuen's check at Magersfontein is the most serious event the war has yet produced."

The English papers and Tory sheets in theis country have altered their tone. They speak of the Boer army now instead of "an armed body of Boer farmers" and have long since given over discussing the cut of their whiskers. They have descended from their vain braggadocio and supercilious rampant, and now give matter of fact news, and generally give the people a day or two in which to nerve up to hear that. Here is a late quotation from a London paper.

"We have had our day of humiliation appointed for us. Let us accept it humbly and soberly, and be better and stronger for the lesson it has taught us. This last reverse will make us a fresh butt of Europe. There never was more apt occasion to prove to Europe what we are worth". J.

Unable to Remain Quiet.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 12.—In an interview today, W. J. Bryan expressed himself upon the financial bill now before the house. He said:

"Following in the line of the president's message, Congress is at present considering a bill that is an extremely bad measure. I refer to the financial bill now under discussion in the house. This bill is a very base one, indeed. It is a part of the gold standard people's plan, and I hope that it will be defeated. It should never be permitted to pass the house, because it is not in the interest of Democracy."
—Pioneer Press.

Duluth Herald: The suspension of the Nelson law for opening the Indian reservations in this state should be abrogated. The settlement of the northern part of the state is being delayed by the schemes of those who have had the law suspended.

Duluth Herald: If Senator Allen returns to the Senate from Nebraska, that currency bill may not be passed before Christmas. The senator is a talker.

County Line: That "stunning blow" that P. B. Winston is alleged to have given anti expansion, exists mainly in the minds of our imperialistic friends.

Minneapolis Times: Mr. Bryan's publisher announces that the distinguished Nebraskan's profits from the sales of his books have been $40,000. Mr. Bryan's friends will be glad to learn that he does not belong to the starving young author class.

Cards have been received by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Podas and daughter Mabel announcing her marriage on Wednesday Nov. 29th to Mr. William E. Stoopes. They will be at home to their friends after December 15th at 3343 Fourth Avenue South. —Buffalo Standard.

Pioneer Press: A young Washington girl committed suicide recently because she feared she would not pass an examination in Latin. The case is literally tragic. But when we think what would happen if the young people in the modern high schools should begin to take their failures in spelling so seriously, we shudder. The next generation of voters would be decimated.

Aitkin Age: What bosh is this about silver republicans and gold democrats! If a man supports Mr. Bryan and the fallacial policies he represents he is nothing more or less than a democrat. If on the other hand he favors sound finance and the tenets of republicanism he should have the strength of character to come out and proclaim himself a republican, just as thousands have done. Since democracy is so thoroughly swallowed up in Bryanism, one might as well speak of a white blackboard as a gold democrat. And silver republicans;—they are strong reminders of the wolf in sheep's clothing.

Here is a stunner for some of the wise men of the gop. The Waseca Herald asks:

"Don't you know my Republican friend, that the tariff tax of $2.00 on every 1,000 feet of lumber used in this congressional district goes directly into the pockets of four or five lumber firms in Winona and that they are getting rich out of the masses? And don't you know enough to know, my Republican co laborer, that this lumber plundering will go on just as long as you vote the Republican ticket? Pray, sir, why should you and I be taxed to enrich the lumber barons?"—Litchfield Independent.

Litchfield Review: The Crow River Valley Medical Society held a very successful meeting in this city Wednesday afternoon and evening. Fifteen members of the medical profession from surrounding towns were in attendance. Dr. Chilton, of Howard Lake, read a very interesting paper. Dr. C. T. Cooke, of Hutchinson, exhibited for the first time a new instrument, a gauze packer, and explained its workings to the members of the society. The instrument is Dr. Cooke's invention and is now being manufactured by an eastern firm. The doctors here pronounce it a valuable addition to the list of instruments used by the profession.

Greater Still.

At an agricultural show in Dublin a pompous member of parliament, who arrived late, found himself on the outskirts of a large crowd.

Being anxious to obtain a good view for himself and some lady friends who accompanied him, and presuming that he was well known to the spectators, he tapped a burly coal porter on the shoulder and peremptorily ordered:

"Make way, there!"

"Who are ye pushin?" was the unexpected response.

"Do you know who I am, sir?" cried the indignant M. P. "I'm a representative of the people!"

"Yah!" growled the porter, "but we're the bloomin' people themselves!"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec 8, 1899.

Democrats have every reason to be pleased with the outcome of the first week of Congress. Mr. McKinley and the majority in both House and Senate have committed the republican party irrevocably to the perpetuation of the single gold standard. Mr. McKinley in his message to Congress, the republican Senators by the Gold standard bill introduced by the chairman of the Finance Committee, and the Republican Representatives by the action of their caucus in endorsing the Gold standard bill, prepared last summer under Mr. McKinley's orders by a committee of which Speaker Henderson was chairman, and ordering it railroaded through the House. In addition, the republican Representatives have gone back on all their professions of reform and unanimously adopted the old Reed gag rules, and the republican Senators have decided upon the grab policy of increasing their own and reducing the democratic representation on all the Senate Committees. These things will all be understood by the people, and they will all make democratic votes. That's why the democrats in Congress are pleased with them; they enjoy seeing the republicans helping along their own defeat.

Representative Richardson, of Tennessee, the new leader of the House democrats, and Representative Bailey, of Texas, the old leader, were both among the thirty one members who voted against the resolution denying Roberts, of Utah, the right of being sworn in, in advance of the investigation of the charges against him. These votes were not cast in favor of Roberts, but as a protest against the method in which the republicans purposed to get rid of him. Mr. Richardson explicitly stated that if Roberts were shown to be guilty he would vote for his expulsion from the House, adding: "If there is one thing the American people are a unit upon, it is that the American home shall be preserved in all its loveliness, sweetness and purity."

Mr. Roberts stirred up the administration menagerie, by saying that Mormons, against whom the charges of living in polygamy had been brought, had been named for Federal positions in Utah by Mr. McKinley and confirmed by the Senate. Grosvenor, of Ohio, and Dalzell, of Pa., sought to defend the administration by denying the statement of Mr. Roberts, but their denial could not change facts. Senator Rawlins made the same statement more than a week ago, and proofs of its truthfulness will doubtless be forced upon the investigating committee's attention by Mr. Roberts.

Knowing that he has absolute control of a majority in both branches of Congress, Mr. McKinley must have chuckled to himself when he wrote in his message of the Philippines: "The future government of the islands rests with Congress." So far as the present Congress is concerned, Mr. McKinley knows that it will pass no legislation, dealing with the Philippines, or anything else, that is not ordered by him.

One clause in Mr. McKinley's message created consternation among the Senators and Representatives from the tobacco growing New England State,—that saying, "Our plain duty is to abolish all customs tariffs between the U. S. and Porto Rico and give her products free access to our markets." Seveveral conferences have been held, and Representatives Hill, of Conn., and Lawrence, of Mass., are threatening to lead a revolt in the House against legislation in line with that recommendation, unless an exception is made in favor of their tobacco-raising constituents. It's the old, old argument, "Give my products protection, but give us free trade in the other fellow's products."

Senator Chandler has aggravated the matter by introducing a bill providing that both Cuba and Porto Rico shall have absolute free trade with the U. S., which indicates his belief that the free Cuba spoken of so prettily by Mr. McKinley is still a long ways off.

At a caucus attended by the eight independent Senators, as the populists and silver republicans are called, it was decided to act with the democrats upon all party questions during the present session of Congress, as in the last Congress.

Senator Jones, of Ark., Chairman of the democratic Senate caucus, who has been authorized by the caucus to arrange the democratic representation on the Senate committies, says he will enter a vigorous protest against the carrying out of the republican programme of decreasing democratic representation on the Senate committies, but as the carrying out of that programme is necessary to give the gold men control of the Senate committee on Finance, and that control is necessary to get the gold standard bill favorably reported to the Senate, which will not countenance the House method of sending the bill from the caucus to the calendar, without the intervention of a committee, the protest is likely to be unavailing.

There are few, if any, better parliamentarians in the House than Representative Richardson, of Tenn., the democratic leader in the House, and even with the obnoxious Reed rules, which have been adopted "lock, stock and barrel" by the republicans, in force, he will doubtless find many opportunities to give the slim republican majority trouble and at the same time to show up for the benefit of the country the weak spots in the McKinley legislative programme.

An Idyl of the Okobogee.

THERE were three decks to the Lulu Jones and as swelling a bow as ever a vessel owned. A good part of the crew's duty was to push this bow off impertinent peninsulas and to protect it against drifting logs. For the Okobogee writhes in and out among the swamp lands, and the heavy masses of Spanish moss clinging to cypress and live oak obstruct the view, so that it is quite impossible for even the most watchful of wheelmen to tell what he may run into next. This lends an enchantment to the haunted river which even those who know it best never cease to feel.

No one ever knew it better than Capt. Bicker Jones and his faithful crew. The captain was white and triumphantly conscious of the fact; his crew was black and was not sorry; and though a great gulf was supposed to yawn between the captain and his men, as a matter of fact they were bound together heart and soul, and, if occasion had required, would have died for a common cause. But no such occasion arose, and there is no intention of dwelling unduly on the subject of death. For while there is no denying that the swamps were somber, and that the pale hangings of moss suggested some castle of old, yet with a captain that swore so merrily and a crew that sang so eternally as the captain and the crew of the Lulu Jones, even Lethe would have seemed jovial.

The songs of the crew were original (as, indeed, was the captain's profanity), and they were the swamp's protest against its own brooding silence and solemnity. They were born of the place and came from the unreflective hearts of these half barbaric men. So if into the wild chanting there crept now and then a minor note heavy with heartbreak it was no marvel. And if, as the boat crept cautiously down the black river, picking its way by the glow from the blazing pine knot on its upper deck, the voices of the men rose to a wail, was it strange? Were they not right to endeavor to propitiate the night, that formidable thing?

Ethan Bartlett had such thoughts as these as he sat on the deck and listened to the curious folk songs and let the weird architecture of the swamp drift pass him—for he could not dissassociate those broken columns and fallen arches, those shafts and buttresses made by the trees and the moss, from the idea of a ruined city of men long dead. Janet Long sat beside him, as usual. He and Janet Long had always been sitting side by side, it seemed to him. They had done so at school and in church as children. They had done so at college. It was intended that they should do so through life. His mother and hers were together even then, playing a slow game of eucher in the cabin below, safe from malaria and damp. Mrs. Long had been out of health, and a Florida journey had been advised. Mrs. Bartlett had decided to accompany her. Janet went as a matter of course, and Ethan was finally persuaded into going, too.

"It seems like an ancient vision, does it not? Like something one has seen ten thousand years ago and returned to, sadly?" asked Ethan.

"Hark!" warned Janet. "The men are singing again. It is a lament this time."

They listened to a plaintive melody, rising with fitful modulations and expressing the grief of a lover for his lost love.

"The black men are the only improvisatori our country can boast," Ethan remarked. The girl wrapped her long mantle close about her and sat listening. Suddenly she arose.

"It was much too weird, Ethan. I confess I find the whole place uncanny and depressing. I shall be glad when we get back to civilization. I'm afraid I was not made for a wanderer. Good night."

He arose and walked with her to the cabin door. "Good night," said he. "I must stay among the ruins a little longer. Perhaps I shall remember what it was that I did and said when I dwelt among them ten thousand years ago."

As he returned to the deck he saw a little form near the flaming pine knot. He knew it well.

"Miss Jones," said he, addressing this small person. "Do you never tire of the river?"

"Good evenin', sah. No, thank yo', I can't say I do. It's like ma back doah to me, you may say, sah. I've lived on this rivah all my life, yo' know."

"Yes, so your father, the captain, was telling me. You were born here, and you have traveled it almost every day of your life."

"Ah sometimes tell fathah I know every ole blacksnake on th' whole stream. As foh th' buzzahds, they ah ma chickens, yo' may say." She laughed musically and tossed the hood of her long gray cloak back from a little, dark face. "Ah play games all by myself when Ah stand out heah nights, sah. I play that I used to live in the ruined castles yeahs and yeahs ago, an' that I understood enchantment, and could be anything or anybody that I pleased. They look like ruined castles, don't yo' think, sah?" She pointed to the mystic structures fashioned by trees and moss.

"Indeed, I was playing the same sort of a game myself only a few minutes ago," cried Ethan. "How strange that we should have been thinking the same thoughts."

"Yes, sah." Her voice was like sad music; her manner compacted of gentle boldness and a sort of proud diffidence. Ethan found her enchanting, and he remained with her till the songs of the crew ceased.

"Th' boys ah all goin' to sleep, Ah think, sah. Ah mus' be sayin' good night."

"Good night, Miss Jones. To-morrow I fear our journey ends. I would willingly go up and down this stream indefinitely, but the ladies complain of monotony. This making a house-boat of the Lulu Jones and following her up and down her route is not to their liking."

"Ah'm sorry, Mistah Bahtlett."

"You cannot possibly be as sorry as I, Miss Jones." He spoke with earnestness.

"Oh, Ah don't know, Mistah Bahtlett. Perhaps Ah can." She flung a look at him which bewildered him, and then fled down the ladder.

And the next day he shook her dark little hand in farewell and started for the north. Once back in Boston, he expected to forget her. His profession was beginning to make demands upon him; his social obligations were many; and it was time that he was beginning to think of his duty to Miss Long. But this duty was now obscured. It seemed as if duty, or something much more alluring, continually drew him to the moss-draped swamps by the Okobogee; nor could he enjoy the electric lights of his historic city for dreaming of the glow of a pine knot on a dark river.

So one day, to his own astonishment, he quitted the city, though he had some business and many engagements of pleasure, and made fast and furiously for the lazy stream, where the blacksnakes lolled undisturbed, the lazy turtles watched the river with ancient-seeming eyes and the buzzards wheeled and wheeled, ever expectant. He had to wait three days before the Lulu Jones tied up at the wharf, but when once its nose was made fast he was soon on board. He sought out the captain and went straight to the point.

"Capt. Jones, I love your daughter. I tried to think I didn't, but I do. I went north expecting to forget her, but I can do absolutely nothing else but remember. Do you think she would marry me, and, if she would, should I have your consent?"

The old captain looked him over with an appraising eye.

"Ah don't know about her loving yo', sah, but Ah do know for certain no one gets Lulu that doesn't take the boat."

"I don't know what you mean, sir."

"Ah mean Ah've got nothin' but th' gahl an' th' boat, and they go togethah. Lulu undehstands it. We've talked it ovah. Whoevah takes Lulu has got to leahn to run this heah boat, sah, up an' down the Okobogee. That's a' fact."

"But you are running it yourself, Capt. Jones."

"So I be—now. But I won't fo' long. Ma days ah almos' done, Ah reckon. Ah feel maself gettin' stiff an' unhandy. An' Ah want to see th' boat an' th' gahl in safe hands."

"But I have my profession, captain, and my home and friends. You couldn't expect me to give them all up and come down here to run a—a steamboat up and down the river, captain!"

He looked about with ill-concealed amusement at the old craft.

"No. No, sah. Ah don't expec' anythin' of th' kin'. Oh, no! Ah was jus' sayin' what Ah'd expect of whoevah got Lulu." And he walked softly away, leaving Ethan staring at a fat turtle on a slimy log.

So the next train took Ethan north again, and once more he essayed work and pleasure, and proper conversations with Janet, and all the familiar round. And then, actually against his will, he was back again amid the warm and lazy airs of the Okobogee.

"You see, Capt. Jones, I am back. It's no use. I'll be a miserable man up there in Boston. I've come down to see if I can learn navigation on the Okobogee!" He couldn't help roaring with laughter at the absurdity of the idea. The captain laughed, too.

"Lulu's sewin' up fo'wahd, sah, undah th' awnin'. Yes, it's gettin' pow'ful wahm. She's makin' a white fixen fo' chuch. Bettah go see heh. She's been kin' o' down lately—white an' dull. But I reckon she'll chirp up now."

"Do you think so, captain?"

"Darned if Ah don't, Mistah Bahtlett. Yo' go fin' out!"—Chicago Tribune.

Extra Hazardous.

Life Insurance Agent (filling out application) — Your general health is good, is it not?

Applicant—Never had a sick day in my life.

"Um! You do not contemplate entering upon any hazardous undertaking, I suppose?"

"Well, yes, I am afraid I do. I am going to get married next Wednesday."

The electric fanmakers have formed a combine to raise prices. People in the prairie states do not need to worry about it for some months, as nature will furnish the breeze required.

A get-rich-quick operator in Brooklyn paid $52,269 in dividends and vanished with $600,000 of depositors' money. The assets consist of several desks and a second-hand carpet.

A man has been discovered who can walk only when he is asleep. Professional tramps will be distressed to hear that they may wake up and find themselves engaged in doing something useful.

Nearly all the contracts for the new palace to be built for the crown prince of Japan will be let to American firms. The architect is an American, and he agrees that the structure shall be earthquake proof.

The latest thing in prophylactics is the discovery of what is termed a "vaccine" for typhoid fever. Just what a cow has to do with typhoid germs is not clear, but the material, whatever it is, has been tried in the British army in Burmah with results which are reported to be satisfactory.

The new woman surely is enterprising. She isn't satisfied with old methods—not for a minute. One of them in Indiana has been stealing farm produce by the wagon load, and if she hadn't been caught just when she was there is every likelihood that she would have gotten away with a barn or a granary.

Garret A. Hobart was the sixth vice president of the United States to die in office. The others were George Clinton, of New York, in 1812; Elbridge Gerry, of Massachusetts, in 1814; William King, of Alabama, in 1853; Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, in 1875, and Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana, in 1885.

Steven E. Burch, who got a job as a hired hand on the farm of Peter Greenwalt, near Huron, Kan., and then eloped with the farmer's comely daughter, turns out to be a young Missourian of wealth and social prominence, and and chose this means of finding just the wife he wanted. He has written to his new father-in-law saying that his search was a long one, but has been amply rewarded.

Frank D. Randall, a well-known civil engineer in Kansas City, has discovered in the grand canyon of the Colorado what he claims will prove the richest copper mines in the world. In addition to the vast deposits of virgin copper he saw immense outcroppings of gold-incrusted rock and masses of schist with garnets sticking out like plums in a pudding, veins of coal and asbestos, mica, walls of onyx, columns of serpentine.

"I have seen thousands of persons die under all sorts of circumstances, and never yet have I seen one display the slightest fear of death." This remarkable statement was made by a physician who has practiced many years in Philadelphia, and who has seen a great deal of hospital service. "It is a popular fallacy," he went on, "to imagine that a deathbed scene is ever terrible, other than as a parting between loved ones. The fear of the unknown is never present at the last."

In June next it will be 500 years since the birth of Johann Gutenberg, who invented the art of printing with movable type. It is not, as a matter of fact, exactly known when he was born, but for the sake of convenience it is assumed that the interesting event occurred in June, 1400. That he was born in the German city of Mayence, on the Rhine, is not disputed, and in that city the fifth century of his birth will be celebrated next year by an international printing exhibition.

A granite shaft 70 feet high is to be erected at Erie, Pa., to the memory of Capt. Gridley, of the cruiser Olympia, who died a short time after the battle of Manila bay. There will be a bust and bronze tablets, and, with other inscriptions, Dewey's famous words: "You may fire, Gridley, when you are ready." In the meantime, Gridley's family is reported to be in very poor circumstances. It might be a better monument of our appreciation of the hero if we took care of his family first and built the monument afterward.

The fact that 57 new cotton mills have been built in the south during the last 12 months and the probability that as many more will be erected during the coming 12 months marks an extraordinary epoch in the industrial and commercial history of the south. Such an epoch can only be described by employing the superlatives of speech. The effect of the movement that is producing such a result will be felt all over the world. In the south it will change the whole aspect of affairs. It will give rise to new deals, new ambitions and new ideals.

The nose is playing an important part in both real and mimic life nowadays. Having been a prominent feature — in fact, having been the center of attraction on the stage—it is now coming to the front more conspicuously than before in other ways. A New York man who had the misfortune to lose his nose and who contracted with a dental operator for a false one is wrathy because the false nose does not fit, and he threatens suit if his money is not returned or a new and better fitting nose is not furnished him. And who can blame him?

Lillie Devereux Blake made public a statement that women are eligible to appointment as enumerators and as clerks in the compilation of the census of 1900, as they were in the census of 1880 and of 1890. She does this in the belief that women generally are ignorant of the law in this matter and in the hope that a great many more applications will be made when the facts are generally known. And in this she is right; no doubt. What a rare opportunity it will give women enumerators to learn the ages of all the other women in their district!

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

In a severe storm on the English coast five life-savers were drowned.

Dispatches received in London say that 15,000 Boers were almost within rifle range of the British army under Lord Methuen. With the extraordinary mobility they have demonstrated from the beginning of the war, they are seeking to surround Methuen, block the advance of further reenforcements and strike without giving more time for rest and preparation.

In an uprising in Negros Lieut. A. C. Ledyard was killed. He was a son of the president of the Michigan Central railroad. Gen. Otis reports that inflammatory publications in United States and European papers increase the difficulties. Col. Hare was in pursuit of Aguinaldo, who was said to be in the vicinity of Bontoc, 60 miles south of Vigan.

The British troops under Gen. Gatacre were drawn into a trap by Boers in the vicinity of Stormberg and more than 600 officers and men were missing. It was reported that the Boers attacked Kimberley at close quarters, but were repulsed with heavy loss.

Gen. Del Pilar, commanding Aguinaldo's bodyguard, was killed by Maj. March's battalion of the Thirty-third infantry in a fight 18 miles northwest of Cervantes in which 70 Filipinos were killed or wounded. The American loss was one man killed and six wounded. It was reported that the Filipino commander, Gen. Alejandrino, with his staff, had surrendered to Gen. MacArthur.

LATER NEWS.

Commander E. P. Wood, United States navy, died at his home in Washington of typhoid fever. He was in command of the gunboat Petrel at the battle of Manila bay.

Six hundred and seventy-two British prisoners were taken at Stromberg. In the fighting at Modder River Gen. Cronje maintained his position and captured 50 British soldiers. The Boers captured three British guns in the engagement with Gen. Gatacres' force at Stromberg.

DELEGATES AT DETROIT.

The American Federation of Labor Opens Its Session with Nearly 200 Present.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—Nearly 200 delegates, representing all branches of trade unionism, with an estimated total membership of nearly 800,000, were seated at writing tables, scattered over the floor of Harmonie hall, when the nineteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was called to order.

After adoption of a resolution of sympathy for President Gompers, the annual report of President Gompers was read by Vice President Duncan.

In his report President Gompers noted a revival of industry and said it was a cause for congratulation, especially as the wages of organized workers have been increased and the hours of labor in many cases reduced. He reported the growth of unionism during the year as gratifying. All divisions of labor and the questions at issue were touched upon by the president. Mr. Gompers said the toiling masses had ever yearned for a period of universal peace, and if that time ever came it would be welcomed by them. He took strong ground against expansion and militarism.

ALL HANDS PERISH.

The Steamer Niagara Undoubtedly Wrecked on Lake Erie—Sixteen Lives Lost.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 11.—It is now certain that the Canadian steamer Niagara, Capt. Henry McClory, foundered on Tuesday evening last, about eight miles east of Long point, Lake Erie, with all hands, numbering 16 persons. Tugs sent out from Port Colborne and from Buffalo to search for the missing steamer have returned, bringing with them great quantities of wreckage picked up near where the steamer is supposed to have foundered. The wreckage includes a part of the Niagara's deck, portions of the cabin, deck beams, other material, and a quantity of shingles marked "Parry Sound," from which port the Niagara sailed for Buffalo. Judging from the amount of wreckage that has been found, the Niagara must have broken up badly in the storm. It is the opinion of lake captains that the boat went down in deep water about eight miles east of Long point, as none of her spars has been found, and if she had gone down in shallow water they would be sticking up.

POSTAL SAVINGS BILL.

Outline of a Measure to Be Introduced in the House by Mr. Lorimer, of Illinois.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Representative William Lorimer will introduce his postal savings bank bill in the house to-day. The bill is substantially the same as that which he introduced last year, excepting amendments which were insisted upon by the subcommittee on postal savings banks. The bill provides that the system shall be known as the "postal savings depository." Any person may become a depositor. No deposits for a less amount than one dollar will be received, and the deposits of any individual shall not exceed $300 in any one year. Depositors shall not receive interest on sums in excess of $1,000. Interest shall be paid on deposits at a rate to be fixed by the postmaster general, but not to exceed a rate of two per centum per annum.

Will Present a Ticket.

Columbus, O., Dec. 11.—The union reform party will nominate by direct vote a presidential ticket in 1900 on the established platform of the party, which consists of a single plank advocating the initiative and referendum method for all legislation, both state and national. This decision was reached Saturday by the national executive committee of the party, after a conference in this city with the Ohio state executive committee. A proposition to consider the advisability of fusion with the democratic party on presidential candidates was promptly defeated, as was also a suggestion to enlarge the platform of the party.

Reese Released.

Fort Scott, Kan., Dec. 12.—John P. Reese, national executive committeeman of the United Mine Workers, who has been in jail here under commitment from the federal court for contempt, was released Monday under the writ of habeas corpus recently issued in St. Louis by Judge Thayer. The necessary $3,000 bonds was provided by Topeka bankers. Mr. Reese returned at once to the coal fields, where he was arrested, declaring that he would pursue the course which he was pursuing when Judge Williams ordered his arrest for contempt.

Many Killed in Mine Disaster.

Carbonado, Wash., Dec. 11.—Eighty men went down into tunnel No. 7 of the Carbon Hill Mining company Saturday morning, and five hours later an explosion of coal damp took place. Thirty-two of this number are dead. Those who were not killed outright by the force of the explosion were hemmed in by falling walls, pinned down by splintered timbers and suffocated by the deadly fumes of black damp which immediately filled the mine.

Dropped Dead.

Milwaukee, Dec. 11.—John E. Coughlin, one of the best-known labor leaders in the northwest, dropped dead Saturday at his residence in this city. Mr. Coughlin was brought up in Boston and removed to Chicago in 1878, and to Milwaukee ten years later. In 1891 he organized the United Brotherhood of Tanners and Curriers of America, and was president of that organization for three years.

Skaters Drowned.

Northfield, Minn., Dec. 12.—While skating on Cannon river, Mark Chamberlain and Drew Stevens, high school students, broke through the ice and were drowned.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 11.—Ralph and Clyde Hendricks, brothers, aged 13 and 11, and Albert Schilling, aged 14, while skating at Gallitzin, broke through the ice and were drowned.

Offers a Reward.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 12.—Gov. Bradley has offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of the members of the Maysville mob who lynched and burned Dick Coleman, the negro who brutally murdered Mrs. James Lashbrook.

A SERIOUS REVERSE.

Defeat of Gen. Gatacre in a Battle at Stormberg—Boers Take Over 600 Prisoners.

Molteno, Cape Colony, Sunday, Dec. 10.—Gen. Gatacre left Putter's kraal by train for Molteno and then proceeded by forced march 12 miles toward Stormberg. He had 2,000 men, including the Northumberland fusileers, the Royal Irish rifles and two batteries of field artillery. The British were unmolested by the Boers until the Boer position was reached, when a hot fire was unexpectedly opened upon the advancing column. The engagement began at 4:15 a. m. At seven a. m., after a sharp artillery duel, the British retired.

London, Dec. 12.—Later details regarding the disaster to Gen. Gatacre's column show that but for the magnificent work of the British artillery the disaster would have been far more extensive, as the incessant Boer shell fire in the midst of the repulsed infantry ultimately led to disorder, which only escaped developing into a rout through the batteries of artillery, occupying successive positions, covering the retreat, thus drawing a portion of the Boers' galling fire.

Apparently, the British were set an impossible task, and were treacherously guided. After a trying march, and being under arms 16 hours, they attacked the wrong part of the Boer position, where the hill was impregnable, and the burghers were estimated to number 6,000 men, instead of 2,500, as the spies had reported.

The affair has caused the most depressing influence everywhere, not excepting the stock exchange, where consols were at the lowest price in many years and South African securities slumped, not so much on account of the military reverse, which is retrievable, but owing to the profound apprehension as to its political effect. No great surprise would now be left if Gen. Gatacre's reverses resulted in Cape Colony becoming aflame from end to end.

GEN. DEL PILAR KILLED.

Filipino Commander Falls in Battle Near Cervantes—Grant Occupies Olangapo.

Manila, Dec. 11.—Gen. Gregorio Del Pilar, commanding Aguinaldo's bodyguard, was killed by Maj. March's battalion of the Thirty-third infantry in a fight 18 miles northwest of Cervantes on December 3. According to reports which Gen. Young obtained from escaped Spanish prisoners at Vigan several days ago, Maj. March left the coast, where he was pursuing Aguinaldo, and encountered Gen. Del Pilar on a fortified trail. The forces fought for four hours, during which 70 Filipinos were killed or wounded. The American loss was one man killed and six wounded.

Manila, Dec. 11.—A force of 100 insurgents attacked near Balinag a wagon train escorted by 30 men of the Sixteenth infantry. A sharp engagement followed. The Filipinos lost 18 in killed and nine in captured.

Manila, Dec. 12.—The advance guard of Gen. Grant's command, under Maj. Spence, arrived at Olangapo, Subig bay, during the night of Saturday, December 9, which place was occupied with little resistance, the enemy fleeing. Maj. Spence had an arduous march over the mountain trails from Dinalupihian. Sunday morning the Baltimore and Oregon and a chartered transport arrived at Olangapo from Manila. The navy was disappointed to find the army in possession of the place, which they had hoped to capture. A detachment of marines under Capt. Myers occupied the navy yard at Olangapo and will hold and occupy it as a naval station. The yard consists of seven new large buildings and some repairing and machinery shops, all damaged by the bombardment of September 23.

Manila, Dec. 12.—Gen. Lawton, with the Thirty-fifth infantry and four troops of the Fourth cavalry, has occupied San Miguel without a fight. The insurgent commander, Gen. Pio Del Pilar, who made his headquarters there with supposedly the largest force of insurgents north of Manila, is believed to have divided his men into scattered bands. The inhabitants have petitioned for a strong garrison.

Col. Hayes, with cavalry, had two brushes with the insurgents, the Americans having two wounded.

Capt. Sturgis, with a troop of the Eleventh cavalry, surprised 40 insurgents under Gen. Pando, near Norzagaray. The insurgents had a major and two privates killed, a lieutenant and three privates wounded, and a lieutenant and 14 men, with 21 rifles captured.

Broke the Record.

New York, Dec. 11.—Charles W. Miller, of Chicago, the long-distance champion bicycle rider of the world, and Frank Waller, the Dutchman, won the six-day bicycle race which began at midnight last Sunday week at Madison Square garden. They finished at ten o'clock Saturday night first by two laps, with 2,733 2-5 miles to their credit. The best previous record for 142 hours was made by Miller in the garden in 1898, when in a six-day race he rode 2,190 miles and 660 yards. The combined mileage of Miller and Waller for 142 hours, therefore, beats Miller's record by 543 miles.

Confesses to Murder.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9. — Harry Hamburger, the 20-year-old youth arrested on suspicion of being the slayer of John M. Reindel, Friday confessed the crime. He said that while the victim was reading a paper in his place of business he struck him over the head with a club. Reindel got up and kicked his assailant, but the boy grabbed a piece of iron pipe, with which he smashed Reindel's head and face. His motive was robbery.

Chicago Wins Championship.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 11.—The western football championship goes to Chicago. Before at least 12,000 persons, the eleven of the University of Chicago Saturday defeated the University of Wisconsin team by a score of 17 to 0 in a game that for desperate playing, for clean, scientific football, has probably never been equaled on a western gridiron.

Bravely Defends His Home.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 8. — Word reaches here from Grenshaw county that the 15-year-old son of Widow Rhodes killed William Jones and mortally wounded John Pruitt while they were attempting to force an entrance into his mother's home. They battered down the door with a fence rail when the boy fired.

Plan Extensive Improvements.

Milwaukee, Dec. 9.—The Illinois Steel company is projecting improvements and additions to its Bay View plant in this city that will cost $3,000,000 or more. It will take about two years to complete the improvements, when it is expected 1,200 more men will be given employment.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM GATACRE.

BRITISH FORCES UNDER HIS COMMAND DEFEATED WITH GREAT SLAUGHTER AT STORMBERG, CAPE COLONY.

Pretoria, Dec. 12.—Six hundred and seventy-two British prisoners were taken at Stormberg. In the fighting at Modder river Sunday evening Gen. Cronje maintained his position and captured 50 British soldiers.

The Boers captured three British guns in the engagement with Gen. Gatacre's force at Stormberg.

The sortie at Kimberley last Saturday was an attempt to take the Boer position at Kamperdam and to secure the waterworks. All the British shots fell short.

London, Dec. 12.—It is just two months since the Transvaal ultimatum was delivered. Nine engagements have been fought and the British have lost 566 killed, 2,027 wounded and 1,977 missing or prisoners.

Is Against Wheeler.

New York, Dec. 11.—A special to the World from Washington says: Representative Bailey, of Texas, is ready to protest against Gen. Joe Wheeler's admission to congress should he return from Manila and present himself to assume his position as representative from Alabama. Mr. Bailey will contend that Mr. Wheeler cannot hold two positions—major general of volunteers and member of congress—at the same time. Mr. Bailey has made a canvass on the democratic side and received promises of support from nearly 100 members.

Root for Vice President.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Formal decision to make Secretary of War Root the candidate for vice president on the ticket with McKinley in 1900 was reached by the managers of the republican party in this city Thursday. Senator Platt called at the white house and told President McKinley New York republicans would favor the choice. Committeemen Payne, of Wisconsin; Manley, of Maine; Senator Hanna, Senator Platt and others close to the administration reached the decision.

A Terrific Explosion.

Bradford, Pa., Dec. 11.—The nitroglycerin magazine of the Pennsylvania Torpedo company, located in Bolivar Hollow, 1½ miles from this city, blew up Sunday with a report that was heard for 30 miles. The shock was felt at Olean, Salamanca, Ellicottville and other surrounding towns. The magazine was blown to atoms and a hole made in the earth 15 feet deep by 30 feet in circumference.

Distribution of Seeds.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The department of agriculture will begin its distribution of seeds a little earlier this year than last, shipping them south the beginning of January and perhaps sending a few shortly before the first. This year the seeds for distribution to all parts of the country will consist of 13,000,000 packs of vegetable seeds, 1,588,000 of flower seeds besides field and lawn grass seeds.

A HARD LUCK STORY.

He Used to Be a Successful Broker But Went Broke at the Business.

He stood before the police judge a wreck. He suggested an echo of better days. He had been arrested the night before for sleeping in an open doorway.

The judge saw that the prisoner had not always been a tramp and questioned him with regard to his past.

"Well, your honor, it was this way," the man said, quietly. "I haven't always been as you see me now. I was a stock broker once. When I was a younger man I became interested in copper. Copper is usually solid, you know. Well, I made a little pile, then shifted to iron. Iron is hard to handle and I lost. I withdrew from speculating for a time, but the old fascination drew me again into the maelstrom. I took a flyer in some glittering mining stock, but it was a loser. I said I would try again. I bought a little train of different railway stock, but I didn't tie to it long enough and went nearly broke. Then I shoved all of my remaining fortune into pork. It turned out that pork was on the hog, and here I am."

The judge had listened to the story attentively and at its conclusion discharged the prisoner. "Have you any money?" he inquired, as the man turned to leave the courtroom.

"No, sir," was the reply; "I'm broker now than I ever was."—Detroit Free Press.

She Indorsed It.

She handed the check to the paying teller. She was calm and collected, as if it was an everyday matter.

"Madam," said the teller, gently. "You have forgotten to indorse it."

"Indorse it?" with a little worried smile.

"Yes; you must write your name on the back here to show that you will repay this bank in case the issuer of this check should fail to answer our call."

"Oh!" she said, accepting the pen.

When the teller looked at the check again this is what he read:

"The —— bank has always paid up what it owes, and you need have no worry. Therefore I indorse this check. Very truly yours, Mrs. J. B. Blanks."

The teller fell over into the vault.—Syracuse Herald.

The Whole Truth!

There's nothing so bad for a cough as coughing. There's nothing so good for a cough as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

The 25 cent size is just right for an ordinary, everyday cold. The 50 cent size is better for the cough of bronchitis, croup, grip, and hoarseness. The dollar size is the best for chronic coughs, as in consumption, chronic bronchitis, asthma, etc.

FAITH WELL KEPT

WITH THE PEOPLE OF MINNESOTA BY THE LIND ADMINISTRATION.

The First Annual Report of the Grain Department by Chief Inspector Reishus—In Spite of Efforts to Hamper Reform, a Good Showing Is Made. Echoes of Republican Policies and Administration—Up With the Trusts and Down With the Farmers—Points From the Message and From Secretary Gouge—Our English "Relations"—The 16 to 1 Sandard in Use by the Boers. Minnesota's Grand State Fair Record. Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Dec. 11, 1899.

The chief event of the week in state administration has been the annual report of the grain inspection department made by Chief Inspector E. S. Reishus, who succeeded A. C. Clausen four months ago. The report has been quite widely given to the state press, and too much attention cannot be given it by the people. It shows a very material increase in the volume of business, nearly 60,000 carloads of grain having been unloaded at the four terminal points, more than during the previous year. The enormous quantity of 217,924 carloads of wheat were received during the year, all but about 1,000 cars being Northwestern spring wheat.

The department collected during the year $188,926.30, an increase in the receipts over the previous year of $35,412. The disbursements for the season were $213,764, showing a net loss for the year, nine months of which was conducted by Mr. Reishus' predecessor, of $24,838.24. This reduces the net surplus of former years to a little more than $21,000, being all that was left of a surplus of $123,268.54 Nov. 30, 1896, when the inspection and weighing fees were reduced from 25 cents a car to 15 cents. Thus, as Inspector Reishus states, on Aug. 31 last, when he had been in office one month, he found that the surplus had shrunk $102,032.44 in 32 months. In other words, during that length of time of the administration of Mr. Clausen, the finances of the department, with a 15-cent fee enforced, ran behind $100,000. This makes clear the necessity for the increase of the fee recently made, and in addition, there had been the establishment of the board of grain appeals, calling for the further expenditure of about $20,000 per year.

The law requiring that the department shall be self-supporting and that grain inspection shall be borne by the shippers of grain without any additional burden upon the general tax payers, Inspector Reishus says: "Therefore, the business-like administration of the department, indeed, the maintenance of the entire state grain and warehouse system, not to mention the support of the new Board of Grain Appeals, demanded the restoration of the fees for inspection and weighing."

An important reform affected has been the turning of samples of grain taken by state inspectors at the Minneapolis and Duluth terminals back to the state by selling and placing the proceeds to the credit of the grain inspection fund. This makes a saving of $3,000 per year, or enough to pay the rental expenses of the Minneapolis and Duluth departments.

The old practice was for the inspecting officials to gobble the samples. It is estimated that in the 14 years of the department this steal may have reached the sum of $75,000. Inspector Reishus rightly denounces the system as wrong and demoralizing. The grain thus taken, of course, is the property of the shippers, but it being impracticable to return it to the owners, the next best thing to do is to sell it and place the proceeds in the fund from which the expense of inspection comes, thus indirectly returning it to the owners, since they pay the inspection expense.

Inspector Reishus was besought most urgently, especially in Duluth, to devote the grain to a public charity, but he found himself unable to do so, since, as he says: "As a public official the law gave me no authority to devote the money or property of the department to private uses or charity."

Inspector Reishus explodes the humbug that only long years can fit men for service in the department. Two or three months' experience, he shows, is ample, for men otherwise qualified. "It requires," says the inspector, "immensely more experience and judgment to grow 50-cent wheat at a profit than to name the grade of the wheat after it is dumped into the elevator or car," and this he gives after 30 years experience in the handling and growing of grain.

The present season's crop is more difficult than usual to grade, by reason of the heavy fall rains which affected a large part of the crop, and the rust and blight in different sections. The Inspector has no fear, however, that the outcome will not be satisfactory, for, he says: "Growers and handlers of grain are, as a rule, reasonable and fair-minded men, and will appreciate an honest and industrious effort to give just grades."

The policy that shall govern the department is thus outlined: "It is the aim to establish uniformity and stability of grades, to give to the producer and dealer, the miller and Eastern purchaser the same uniform grade and at all stages of the market and seasons of the year; to give the same grade in the fall, when the grain is in the hands of the producer, as in the winter and spring, when it is largely in the hands of the dealers, miller and elevators; to give the same grade when wheat is depressed as well as when wheat is boomed high; to give the producer a grade as high as the character and condition of the grain will warrant, and give the dealer a grade no lower than the grain demands."

Thus is another department of the administration keeping full faith with the people.

And how it must delight the farmers to learn that it is a matter of official record that proof was offered the interstate industrial investigation at Chicago that five men in that city connected with the transportation combines, daily fix the price of wheat! Such testimony was given by Mr. Countryman, one of the five.

Combines to keep grain down. Trusts to force manufactures up. This is the system brought upon the country by Republican legislation.

Secretary Gouge points to the large treasury balance, but fails to remark that it is what we have left after borrowing $200,000,000 a year ago, and paying in over $273,000,000 in war taxes in one year. Imperialism and British financiering come high but we must have them.

Speaking of farm and trust prices, a Milwaukee paper examines a year of McKinley's "best" prosperity, taking wheat, barley, oats and corn, and iron piping, sucker rods, rope, twine, nails and lumber for comparison. For the same days of November, '98 and '99, wheat is 5 cents lower, barley 3½ cents lower, oats 1½ cents lower, and corn 4¼ cents lower. But the iron piping has risen from 5½ to 25 cents, sucker rods from 7½ to 11½, rope and twine from 8 to 17 cents, nails from $1.85 to $3.40, and lumber from $12 to $18.

That is, a year ago it took three bushels of wheat to buy 100 pounds of nails, and now five and one-half bushels; last year, four bushels of barley to pay for the keg of nails, and now seven bushels; last year seven bushels of oats for the keg of nails, now 14. For a thousand feet of lumber it takes 10 bushels more of wheat, 15 more of barley, 28 more of oats and 18 more of corn to pay for it than a year ago.

"How do you like it, Mr. Farmer?" asks the Milwaukee Advance. "And don't you know that it was your vote that did it? Don't you know that you voted for prosperity—for the trusts?"

And the small dealer, the ordinary merchant, gets it the same way—in the neck. We have just seen the notice of the plug tobacco trust to its customers, notifying them arbitrarily of the discontinuance of their chief margin of profit, 10 per cent on sales. From Dec. 1 on, all that each dealer can possibly make is 2 per cent, on cash purchases. All unfilled orders are cancelled and everything subject to change without notice.

A student notes in Burke's speech at the trial of Warren Hastings the following complete definition of the McKinley "benevolent assimilation:"

"Conquest may cover its baldness with its own laurels, and the ambitions of the conqueror may be hid in the secrets of his own heart, under a veil of benevolence, and make him imagine he is bringing temporary desolation upon a country only to promote its ultimate advantage and his own glory." "There never was a man," said Burke, "who thought he had no law but his own will, who did not soon find he had no end but his own profit."

And still more directly applicable, Burke said, against coercing America:

"America, gentlemen say, is a noble object. It is an object well worth fighting for. Certainly it is, if fighting a people is the best way of gaining them."

And that was the English "traitor," Edmund Burke.

McKinley subscribed himself to the trusts, in his message, as the blushing, yielding maiden closed her letter, "Your friend and more."

It should be a matter of pride to Secretary Randall and officials of the agricultural society that in the number and variety of exhibits, in attendance and in receipts the Minnesota State Fair ranked first in the United States this year. Not only is this a matter of pride to our citizens, but the knowledge of so great a success is valuable to the state in many ways. It has made the securing of the National Hereford exhibition and sale for 1900 an accomplished fact, and has caused the spread of the conviction among live stock men, farmers and others of the country that Minnesota is a good state, and that her people are imbued with a spirit of enterprise, energy and progress.

Congress is at it, and the recognition of Minnesota's distinguished delegation to date, is to make Tawney a British "whip," Morris a judge of polygamy in the Roberts case, to permit McCleary to read the financial bill, and a "mention" of Fletcher.

A question before the congressional house is, will Congressman Heatwole open his mouth, this session, enough to disclose his nationality to a wondering nation.

There seems a good deal of 16 to 1, in the South African campaign—16 British killed to 1 Boer, and the Boers approve the standard!

Hon. Charles A. Towne is in Washington, where he may remain until after the opening of the new year. It is already certain that there will be the closest co-operation of the party of which he is the official head, with the Democratic and Peoples party organizations. When the same is extended, as it will surely be, to the powerful allies of the American anti-imperialists and anti-trusters, the whole will make an invincible army, and their vote is morally certain to be thrown for the same candidate next November. Then down will go the Republican imperialists and monopolists.

"Mr. McKinley," remarks the Minneapolis Journal correspondent, "has now burned the bridge behind him on the financial question, and can no longer pose in the role of a bi-metallist." This is not news, but fact. All but the dullest found it out long ago.

Its Origin.

"Hoot!" cried the owl ever and anon.

The fowls of the air and the beasts of the field stirred uneasily in their sleep and muttered maledictions.

"Why are they so angry?" asked the owlet at last.

"They are envious, my child," replied the owl, "of my Scotch dialect. Hoot, hoot!"—Detroit Journal.

Under Two Flags.

"What a grand picture it must have been," remarked the boarder who had seen Dewey, "to have seen the Olympia steaming home, the stars and stripes on one mast and the homeward pennant on the other."

"Magnificent!" echoed the man in black suspenders, "but think what a picture it would have been to have seen the stars and stripes on one mast and the baseball pennant on the other."—Chicago Evening News.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Ten Days of Fair.

The Minnesota state fair of 1900 will run 10 days, beginning Wednesday of one week and continuing to Saturday of the next week.

This is the news that came through one of the early discussions at the meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society. It all came about through a wordy war, started by E. H. S. Dartt, Owatonna, who objected to the manner in which the state fair management had treated exhibitors. He said he had been with the fair at previous exhibitions, but the judges made rules to please themselves and make it easy for them, and as a result his exhibit was so distributed around in various classes that he was ashamed of it, and didn't exhibit again.

Mr. Dartt also objected to the sweepstakes idea. The largest money prize of the fair was that offered for sweepstakes, where the exhibitors could gather here and there a few things from different people and exhibit them under guise of sweepstakes, while the real growers and producers were relegated to back seats.

A Brute.

At Duluth Jacob Schneider attacked his wife, Mary Schneider, with a meat axe, at their home in an isolated portion of the city, and after chopping her horribly, saturated the house with kerosene and set fire to it.

He perished in the flames, but his wife was saved by her daughter, who was sleeping in the upper part of the house, and was alarmed by the noise of the struggle. There were three other women in the house, and they ran to the rescue of the wife, but Schneider drove them out of the house with the cleaver.

Schneider has borne a good reputation, but his home life has not been pleasant.

Money in Skunk Skins.

The boys in the vicinity of Minneapolis are making nice pocket money trapping skunks. Never before in fur history have their skins brought so much, and with dealers paying from 90 cents to $1.25 for skins, according to the color, there is opportunity for making Christmas money. Last week one young man out near Minnehaha trapped seven large ones, and had no trouble in selling the green skins. Out in the country districts, on farms, they are setting traps every night, and still the dealers do not get nearly as many as they desire. The present cold snap will make the animals easy prey.

Fell from the Porch.

Clarence Olson, seven years old, a patient at the city hospital in St. Paul, fell from a second story porch and fractured his skull. He died within an hour. Clarence is the son of Mrs. Annie Olson, who lives in Franklin avenue, Minneapolis.

Clarence, with other children, was in the hall on the second floor in the children's department. While the nurse's attention was attracted in another direction he ran out on the porch and leaned over the railing to call down to several romping children. He leaned over too far and pitched head first to the pavement, 12 feet below.

A Minnesota Boy.

Lieutenant James N. Munro, of the Fourth cavalry, who perpetrated the gigantic "bluff" on General Conon and his garrison of 800 insurgents at Bayonbong, Nov. 28, capturing the town and receiving the surrender of the garrison with only fifty men at his back, is a Minnesota boy.

He was born and lived at Lake City, Minn., until he entered the university in Minneapolis, where he remained three years, receiving an appointment to West Point in 1893.

Will Investigate.

Dairy Commissioner Bowler proposes to make some thorough examinations of butter colorings. He has had a letter from the dairy commissioner of Ohio calling attention to the fact that some families in that state had been poisoned with a compound containing coal tar and other ingredients. Experiments with the coloring proved that four drops of it would kill a cat.

News in Brief.

Shelving in the drug store of J. W. Cook, at Pipestone, gave way, completely destroying the stock of liquid, and damaging a large amount of Christmas goods.

In the federal court at Winona Chas. Norton was convicted of robbing the postoffice at Money Creek some weeks ago, and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary.

The new reservation school plant which has been in course of construction at White Earth, has been formally turned over to the government officials.

The city council of Winona has voted an appropriation of $180 toward the armory rental of Company C during 1900. It is expected this will result in the reorganization of the company, which has not held drills for several months past.

A committee has been appointed by the Mayor of St. Paul to discuss the construction of an ice palace.

A 3-year-old boy of R. McDonald, of West Duluth, was probably fatally burned. He played with matches.

The first inheritance tax to be paid in Goodhue county was collected from the estate of Mary Purdy. The amount was $507.86.

While out hunting near South Ridge, Gus Bolt accidentally shot William Cradler in the stomach, from which injuries he died yesterday morning. Bolt was going to shoot in the air when Cradler suggested shooting at a fence post. Bolt's bad aim resulted in Cradler's receiving the full charge.

A Duluth iron man has figured out that the amount of ore shipped from Minnesota this year would cover an area of 85 acres 40 feet deep.

While catching on moving freight cars at Moorhead, Carl Weum was probably fatally injured.

Mrs. Shea's building at Montgomery, was partially destroyed by fire. The millinery stock of the Misses Fields, located in the building, was destroyed. Loss, $800; insurance, $600.

John Schneider was appointed postmaster at Union Hill, Scott county, vice Mary Echens, resigned.

AN ACTIVE YEAR.

The Closing Month Finds Encouraging Conditions in Business and Industrial Lines.

New York, Dec. 9.—Bradstreet's says: "The last month of the year has opened auspiciously, finding trade and industry generally well employed, demand treating close upon and even passing supply, labor troubles averted in some instances by widespread advances in wages, of small importance except in one or two cities, and with the general level of values of staples at the highest point reached for eight years past. Holiday demand has opened well and collections from retail trades therefore show some improvement. After a year of unprecedented activity and advancing prices, iron and steel are quiet, with few significant changes, partly because the season of the year does not favor new work, and partly also owing to the fact that producers are very generally sold up to the middle of next year. Prices show no marked change. More seasonable weather conditions have further stimulated the demand for boots and shoes at numerous points, and hides and leather retain all the strength gained as a result of last month's general rise. Notwithstanding advanced stage of the season, lumber, hardwood particularly, continues in active demand at most markets."

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The approach of a new year usually brings so much of hesitation in business that the small shrinkage this year is surprising. Probably never before have the productive forces of the country been so largely covered by contracts at this date, insuring employment and profit far into the coming year. This results, not from any mere speculative excitement, but from actual demands for consumption running far beyond the producing capacity heretofore, and pushing it to remarkable expansion. The increase in foreign trade has been insignificant, compared with the increase of $24,000,000 in payments through clearing houses. For the week payments have been 26.3 per cent. larger than last year, and 28.1 per cent. larger than in 1892.

"Wheat has risen three cents and corn a fraction, with decline in western receipts of both. Atlantic exports of wheat for the week, flour included, were only 3,359,677 bushels, against 5,636,767 last year, and Pacific exports 888,172, against 556,523 last year.

"Failures for the week have been 221 in the United States, against 248 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 22 last year."

INJURED AT A FIRE.

Many Girls Hurt by Jumping from Windows of a Burning Building—One Life Lost.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 8.—One of the most appalling fires that has ever visited this city occurred Thursday when the extensive hosiery mill of Nolde & Horst Co. took fire, destroying the plant, causing the death of one person, and injuring 57 other employes of the company. Miss Louisa Clay, aged 48, lost her life. The hosiery building was a large, four-story structure, and nearly 600 persons were employed, most of them being women and girls. The fire was discovered about 11 o'clock, and in a few minutes the girls were panic-stricken. They made a dash for the fire escape and the stairs, but found that the latter means of escape could not carry all of them down at the same time. Several hundred of the girls then made a rush for the windows, and appealed to those in the street to save them. Ladders were brought into use, and many girls were taken from the burning building safely. Most of them, however, jumped, and were seriously injured. The fire was caused by the explosion of gasoline in the singeing room. The loss is estimated at about $275,000, on which there is an insurance of $150,000.

TAYLOR WINS.

Republican Candidate for Governor of Kentucky Gets Certificate on Face of Returns.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—The state board of elections Friday night gave out their official findings that W. S. Taylor, for governor, and the rest of the republican ticket have been elected on the face of returns. Commissioners Ellis and Pryor signed the majority report, in which they hold that as a board of canvassers they have no right to go behind the returns of the county board; that their duties are purely ministerial as canvassers; that the face of the returns as received by them from the counties show the election of the republican state ticket, and certificates of election were ordered issued to each candidate thereon. Commissioner Payntz presents a minority report which he closes by saying: "I am unwilling to certify fraud and to turn Kentucky over to the control of the bayonet, gatling gun and the fraudulent tissue ballots." Extensive preparations are being made to inaugurate Taylor next Tuesday.

Mules for Great Britain.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 8.—Purchases of mules in America for the use of the British government seem likely to upset the calculations of American live stock men. It is said orders have been received to purchase 10,000 more animals. Almost this many have already been shipped from southern points.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9.—A local commission firm announces the closing of a contract for the delivery of 1,000 pack mules to agents of the British government for shipment to Cape Town. Twelve hundred Missouri mules, sold by the same firm, have already been shipped to South Africa from New Orleans.

Tragedy in Iowa.

Adel, Ia., Dec. 8.—Joseph Huttheus, living 1½ miles east of Adel, beat his wife to death with a club about 8:30 Thursday morning, and then blew his brains out with a shotgun. He was about 65 years of age and had been married about 40 years. Mr. and Mrs. Huttheus have been known to have more or less trouble for 20 years. Huttheus has been jealous of his wife, and their trouble seems to have culminated in the double tragedy.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 8. — Representative D. Judson Hammond, of Pontiac, was arraigned Thursday under two grand jury indictments. One charges Hammond with soliciting a $500 bribe to influence his vote on the anti-trust bill; the other with demanding this sum and promising to vote and work against the same bill. Hammond pleaded not guilty and furnished $3,000 bail.

Big Deal in Florida Lands.

Pensacola, Fla., Dec. 12.—The Louisville & Nashville railroad has sold all its lands in western Florida, aggregating 600,000 acres, to a Michigan syndicate at one dollar an acre. The largest and best bodies of the land will be held by the syndicate for its own uses, and a large milling and turpentine business will be soon established. The smaller detached tracts will be sold to home-seekers.

Knew Mr. Johnson Well.

He was one of those garrulous old fellows whose only aim in life seems to be to strike up conversation with strangers in public places. He was seated in the corner of a Market street car, holding a one-sided conversation with the conductor, when a dapper young fellow entered and took a seat on the opposite side of the car. The old fellow eyed him closely for several minutes and then leaned over and touched him on the knee. "Scuse me," remarked the inquisitive old chap, "but ain't your name Johnson?" Considerably surprised, the young man replied that it was. "Son of William Johnson, a.n't you?" "Yes," was the curt answer. "Well, well, well," went on the loquacious old man. "I knowed you was a Johnson the minute I laid eyes on you. I uster know your father well." "So did I," said young Mr. Johnson, without cracking a smile. An audible titter ran around the car, and the old man got off at the next corner.—Philadelphia Record.

New Pass in Rocky Mountains.

After numerous hairbreadth escapes and many thrilling adventures, a party of explorers in the Rocky Mountains stumbled onto a pass where they had believed it possible for none to exist. In a like manner, people who have believed dyspepsia incurable are astonished to find that there is a way to health. A Shrewd Negro.

A traveler came along to the gate of a humble cabin in a town in Alabama just as an old negro handed a couple of jugs to his son, who was about ten years of age, and said: "Now, Julius, yo' gwan down to de grocery an' git a quart o' treacle in one ob dem jugs, an' hurry back." When the boy had gone the traveler said to the father:

"You didn't tell him to get anything in the other jug; is he going to leave it at the grocery?"

"No, sah—gwan to bring it right back home," he replied.

"But why send two jugs to get a quart of treacle?"

"It's jes' dis way, sah. If he has a jug in each hand he can't go dipping his finger in the treacle and eating it as he comes along."—Detroit Free Press.

A Small Boy's Sarcasm.

Aunt Jane wanted to study, but little Willie wanted to ask questions. After answering a few, auntie told Willie not to talk or make a noise. There was a dead silence on Willie's part for a moment, then in a plaintive voice he said:

Honest Boy!

"I am glad there are a few honest people left. Two years ago I sent a boy around the corner to buy a postal card. I have never seen the boy to this day."

"You don't call that boy honest?"

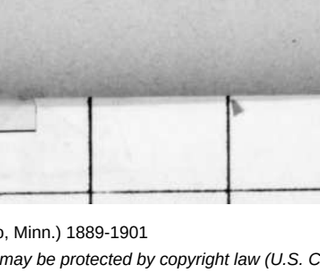
OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.



Mr. Isaac Brock, the Oldest Man in the United States.

Mr Isaac Brock, of McLennan county, Tex., has attained the great age of 111 years, having been born in 1788. He is an ardent friend to Peruna and speaks of it in the following terms:

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but I have learned from Dr. Hartman's books that these affections are the same and are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections.

"Peruna has been my stand-by for many years, and I attribute my good health and my extreme age to this remedy. It exactly meets all my requirements.

"I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine. I believe it to be especially valuable to old people."

Isaac Brock.

Catarrh is the greatest enemy of old age. A person entirely free from catarrh is sure to live to a hale and hearty old age. A free book on catarrh sent by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

OCCULT INFORMATION.

She Told Him What He Wanted to Know and He Couldn't Make a Sneak.

The lady who tells fortunes and goes into trances had been visited by the idle young person with an inquiring mind.

"I don't want to know anything about family affairs nor how to beat the stock market," he said, cheeringly. "I am a great reader of the news, and as I hadn't seen anything about the Chinese emperor for a long time I thought I'd call around and see how he's getting along. I've been waiting a good while for some news from Peking or Hong-Kong or thereabouts, and I thought you might help me out. Asia's a big distance away," he added, doubtfully. "Maybe you don't make such long jumps as Asia."

"Oh, yes," she answered, and, passing her hand over her brow, she shut her eyes and proceeded. "I see a young man with slanting eyes and a cue. Something tells me that it is the Chinese emperor. A man is running away from him so fast that papers are dropping out of his pockets and falling in all directions. The man who runs is a life insurance agent. A lady appears. She also has slanting eyes. It is the empress dowager. She catches the young man in the act of taking a drink out of a large bottle. She notes that there are bottles of every size and shape scattered about the apartment. 'So,' she exclaims, indignantly, 'this is the way you pass your time—drinking and carousing!' 'Empress dowager,' he answers, 'you do me wrong. It is true that I drink. But there is no carousal fluid in any of these bottles.' 'Nonsense!' she exclaims, 'why, then, have them about?' 'Because,' he answered, 'I need them in my profession of emperor. Those bottles are full of antidotes.' The empress frowns and exclaims in a whisper: 'That explains it!' Then she turns and leaves the palace without another word."

"That's first rate," said the young man, as he reached for his hat and arose to go.

She opened her eyes immediately and said: "One dollar, please."—Washington Star.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Dec. 15, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Heavy fur coats at G. P. Schaffer's.

—Read J. B. Plattner's new add this week.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thirsday and Friday.-11tf.

—Miss Mollie Maxfield entertained a number of her young friends and school mates at her home last Friday evening.

—The M. E. Sunday school is at work on an interesting programme for Christmas. The attendance at the school last Sunday was 77.

—The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will give a dime social at the home of Mrs. J. D. Young, in South Delano, tonight, Dec. 15. Everybody is invited.

—The usual number and variety of Christmas presents are being displayed in store windows; evidence that old Kriskinkle intends making his customary visits.

—Have you guessed on the number of grains of powder in Krag-Jorgenson Cartridge in Mealey's window. He is giving away some fine presents, call and ask him about it.

—Though the crop of ice is not yet ripe, some of our industrious and provident citizens are arranging their ice houses for packing a bountiful supply for summer's use.

—A number of young men of the village are trying to effect the organization of a club for athletic entertainment. About a dozen are interested so far and it is thought their efforts will be crowned with success.

—A number of friends of Miss Veronica Steffes were invited to her home last Saturday evening. The evening was spent in cinch. About eleven o'clock refreshments were served, and after several solos, and selections on the piano the party dispersed.

—For good china ware, fancy cups and saucers, vases & etc., suitable for Xmas presents, call on G. P. Schaffer.

—Last Fairday was one of the smallest ever held in Delano since its start, on account of continual rain, something that has never been known in this locality, by the oldest residents, to have occured previous to this event, at this time of year.

—Jerome Teichnor, lying on a farm about a mile east of town, has sold his place to Perry Ball, for twelve hundred dollars, and will move off this winter. Perry, who is now in the woods, will take possession in the spring and take up his duties as a tiller of the soil.

—We are headquarters for groceries. Here are a few snaps we have to offer till after Xmas:

30 lbs of Rice for	$1 00
20 lbs Prunes for	1 00

XXXX or Lions Coffee, 10cts per pkge.
C. H. Green & Co.

—Miss Jones is the proud possessor of a lovely pansy picked last Sunday morning on Mrs. Charles Carleton's flower garden. The pansy is of good size and has its beautiful color. This is the first blooming of flowers out of doors that can be given to the credit of Delano, on the 10th of December.

—Several deaths of boys by drowning are reported this week. The ice is not strong enough to skate on yet. Boys and girls too, would be safer by remaining on shore until the thermometer indicates a few degrees lower than it has this winter and until they know the ice is thick enough to hold them up.

—There is a scarcity of wood on the market in Delano, possibly caused by the delay of a sufficient fall of snow for sleighing. However there seems to be but a small amount, in proportion to other years, cut. Year by year the big woods are disappearing and the land put under cultivation, thus curtailing the supply of wood.

> —Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of the LORD, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of the LORD, to the help of the LORD against the mighty —Judges VI, 23.

The above was the text of Rev A. F. Thompson last Sunday evening. His sermon was an able one and highly appreciated by an unusually large audience.

—Quite an excitement was occasioned Tuesday afternoon by a few minutes absence without lief of a small boy. After school George Burns did not go immediately home, and his grandmother started out to learn his where abouts and was told by a youngster that the last he seen of him he was on the ice, on the river. This report was carried to his mother, who started in search and fainted away several times, and was carried into Mrs. Borsch's for a short time. It turned out that George was at Dave Reibel's playing with their children and he claims he was not on the ice at all.

—Read the Births and Deaths report of the Health officer of the Village of Delano, for 1899, to date. If you know of any omissions make them known, as statistical records to be of use should be accurate and entire. If people wish the names of their children to appear on the records preserved for years, they should name them and furnish the names to the proper officer. It would lead the children, when they are big enough to look over, or perhaps keep the records themselves, to see that their parents had attended to recording them according to law, besides there is a penalty for not doing so.

—Call on G. P. Schaffer for fancy Candies and Toys.

—A. L. Mealey the Jewler has a fine line of Holiday goods. Call in and see them and get his prices.

—The ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society have changed the date of their dime social and sale to Wednesday evening Dec. 20.

—We are headquarters for all kind of Xmas goods, such as, Trees, Candies, Nuts and all kind of presents for old and young. Can trim trees for the Church or Family Circle.
C. H. Green & Co.

—The long beautiful fall has been a God send to those having to keep fires going. Only a few days so far has required anything like full heating. Many have only just started their coal stoves. Unless they burn coal just to make up for lost time, the coal barrons have sold them all they can, for this winter.

—Next Friday night, Dec. 22, the members of the Epworth League will hold a basket social at the Odd Fellow's hall. The receipts are to go on the church debt. Let everybody come and enjoy the evening. There will be a short program.

—Having bought a very large amount of Xmas goods for Spot cash, we are bound to supply all commers if prices will do it. C. H. Green & Co.

—The beginning of the New Year is a time when people usually resolve to do better than they have been doing. They then swear off their bad habits and pledge an improvement. It would be better to begin now and practice up till New Year's day. It would then be easier to keep the resolutions.

—Mrs. Chance has received papers from Aliance, Ohio, giving accounts of the death and funeral of her brother. He was mounting a horse and the girt broke, throwing him to the ground and injuring him so as to cause death in a few days. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in that city.

—Mufflers, Handkerchiefs and the like for presents, at G. P. Schaffer's.

—Rev. Dr. Forbes, P. E. of the Duluth district is to lecture here twice, and preach for the M. E. church, at the close of the year. He is a noted lecturer and his lecture on "The Mistakes of the Devil and some other people" is pronounced a very interesting one. He will, doubtless, have a large audience at all his appearances in this place. The grand jubilee year is to be celebrated by burning a thank offering of the mortgage on the M. E. property. Let everybody donate all their conscience will allow them toward this end.

—Let everybody, as far as possible, pay their debts before the close of 1899, and be ready to begin 1900 with a clean sheet. If those who can will do so, others not now able, will become so, and many bothersome old debts would be wiped out of existance. A few dollars will change hands often sometimes and pay many times their value in debts. We remember on one occasion to have paid a man two dollars balance on a load of hay; he, before leaving my office, handed it to the man he had employed to help him; he in turn gave it to a man he owed. Thus $2 paid debts of $8 in a few minutes. Pay what you can and keep the money in circulation.

GOOD MANY GOOD GOODS.

Call on C. H. Green & Co., and see them.

We want the trade of men and women who appreciate good service.

We want your trade, not only this winter, but next spring and next winter and right along after that.

We have Good Service Clothing for you, good honest clothing and you know what that means. Its economy to buy well made, well wearing suits and overcoats. We take care of the boys so for as clothing goes. Its a hobby with us. A boy isn't as big as a man but he wants bigger ware we have them and don't you forget it. When it comes to foot wear, we have got them that have merit all through, extra good lining, and the latest styles. No trouble to fit any Lady or Gent from the oldest to the youngest Concluded to be Law-abiding.

Saloonkeepers of Minneapolis no longer permit messenger boys to enter their places of business. The door is closed to the boy of the blue uniform and the number, as it is to the minor without the uniform. He cannot carry messages to and from the retail liquor houses as he has been doing ever since Minneapolis knew him.

Mayor Gray's recent action in revoking a saloon license because liquor was sold to a messenger boy is responsible for this condition of affairs. The saloonmen have declared that hereafter the messenger boy shall not be a privileged character. Many of them have in the past delivered liquors to boys upon written orders from adults. In the future orders won't go. If the man who wants the liquor can't call for it, he must hire a man to get it. The "messenger man" is gaining a foothold and is forcing the messenger boy to the rear.—Minneapolis Times.

County Cullings.

The County Commissioners have resolved to grant auctioneer's license to Wm. H. Helm, Charles W. Fogle, and Samuel Gordon.

We clip from the Jennie items of the Dassel Anchor the following:

"A gentleman (?) claiming to be from Howard Lake was in this vicinity last week taking orders for crayon work. He used very disrespectful language to several ladies into whose homes he had gained an entrance. He claimed to be an artist, a good judge of pictures, etc. If this man is a sample of Howard Lake artists, God pity the others!"

Surely no Wright County artist ought to deserve such a roasting. But if he does, roast him well, and respectable people will agree with you.

Charles Hoffman's opinion of the Minneapolis police changed materially within six minutes last night. Shortly before midnight Officers Chris Norbek and Fred Johnson were called to First street S. where Hoffman was loudly proclaiming that he had been robbed of $3. When the officers came he told them his story and was politely informed that he himself was under arrest.

Wednesday Joe Krasky of Rockford, twenty six miles from Minneapolis, drove to the city and hired Hoffman to chop wood. Hoffman worked all right but yesterday morning he arose about 4 o'clock and when the family got up Hoffman was missing and so was $40 in cash, Krasky's overcoat and gloves and a gold watch and chain. Krasky drove to Buffalo and notified the sheriff, and then came to Minneapolis and called on the police last night. The overcoat, watch and chain and $25 were found on Hoffman's person, with several pawn checks for other property pawned in the city, which the police will look up today.—Minneapolis Times.

It is reported that one of the Anders boys, a brother-in-law of Joe Boxell's found a watch case in a wood pile in the town of Middleville on the place recently occupied by Fred Kier, who is now in the asylum. It is claimed that the case has a locomotive engraved on it, and appears to have been through fire. It is thought to be the one taken from the old man Boxell's pocket the night he was murdered. How did the case come to be in Fred Kier's wood pile, and when did it get there? It is claimed by some that Fred, who was supposed to have been in the Fergus Falls Asylum for insane at the time of the murder, came down and did the murder and returned to the asylum. If a man escaped from the hospital long enough to make the journey, do the deed, and return, the asylum people ought to know of it.

Every true democrat should remember that among the first primary elections called they have their opportunities to do what they can for shaping the policy and choosing the standard bearers of their cause, of using their ballot as far as possible towards nominating the president and vice president of the United States. Every voting precinct sends, or should send delegates to the county convention. Delegates to the county convention choose delegates to the state convention, which chooses delegates to the national convention to nominate a president and vice president, and make a platform for the next campaign. Don't fail to attend the primary and see that it is properly conducted and good men selected as delegates to represent your precinct. Primaries are the fountainheads from which spring our political streams. If they are pure our government is bound to be so too. If the primaries are neglected or polluted, the political whirlpool is the result. Be on the look out and don't fail to be at the primary election and cast your vote for men who are honest and who will vote as you would yourself. If you are a good man don't refuse to serve as a delegate yourself and allow a man with views entirely opposite to yours to be elected when your vote might possibly have changed the sentiment of the convention. In this age of political deceit and trickery if a man wants political honesty he must work for it.

LIFE.

If all our hopes and all our fears
Were prisoned in lifes narrow bound;
If, travelers through this vale of tears,
We saw no better world beyond;
Oh, what could check the rising sigh?
What earthly thing could pleasure give?
Oh, who would venture then to die?
Oh, who could then endure to live?

Were life a dark and desert moor,
Where mists and clouds eternal spread
Their gloomy vail behind, before,
And tempests thunder overhead;
Where not a sunbeam breaks the gloom,
And not a floweret smiles beneath;
Who could exist in such a tomb?
Who dwell in darkness and in death?

And such were life without the ray
From our devine religion given;
'Tis this that makes our darkness day;
'Tis this that makes our earth a heaven.
Bright is the golden sun above,
And beautiful the flowers that bloom,
And all is joy, and all is love,
Reflected from a world to come.

Court News.

Following are cases disposed of in Judge Giddings' December term of court:

State of Minn. vs. Joseph Vassar, was dismissed.

John Cullen vs. Anthony Daugherty, judgement was rendered for plaintiff.

Martin Clark vs John Franklin, for grand larceny, plead guilty and was sent to the reformatory.

Christina Erickson vs. James Erickson, divorce granted.

Thos. G. Reed vs. the Great Northern R. R., verdict for the defendant.

Joseph Boxell vs. Root. Robinson, verdict of $89.39 was allowed the plaintiff and a stay of 30 days was taken. This case will probably be appealed to the supreme court.

H. Grossman vs Wm. Werner, judgement of $13 was rendered for defendant.

Olaf Johnson vs. Aug. Johnson. The jury on this case failed to agree and were discharged.

James Swanson vs. Aug. Shipp and Aug. Westerberg, has been on trial for the past two days and given to the jury this morning.

This is frequntly called "woman's century," and the appellation becomes significant when one considers the difference in woman's position today from what it was a hundred years ago. She is rapidly becoming a force in the business of the world, as well as in the world of art and letters, yet her home interests have not seemed to suffer in consequence, as may be proven by the increase in publications for the housemaker during the past fow years. The HOUSEKEEPER, established in 1877, was one of the first journals to recognize woman's demand for a periodical devoted to progressive methods in housekeeping. "Helpful, Instructive and Progressive" has always been its motto. It is a thirty six page monthly illustrated with half tone plates, and full of good things from cover to cover. It tells the homemaker how to cook, how to dress, how to do many other things and it also keeps her fairly well informed concerning current events, besides giving a large amount of good fiction and special articles on timely topics. Upwards of 140,000 subscribers pronounce it to be of the best of "domestic" magazines. It is certainly a wonderful 50 cents' worth.

A Cook Book Free.

The Housekeeper also publishes the the famous "Buckeye Cookery," which has proven a boon to thousands of housewives. It is a standard up to date illustrated work of 540 large pages. More than 750,000 copies have been sold by subscription at $1.75 per copy. The publishers will give a free copy of this book, bound in strong leather paper covers, to all who subscribe for the magazine, provided they will pay the cost of mailing, which is seven cents. Send 57 cents for The Housekeeper and "Buckeye Cookery." Address is Minneapolis, Minn.

A YULETIDE DREAM.

Holiest nights of holinights,
Filled with visionary sights
From all sweet and saintly lore
Treasured in the books of yore!
Did it chanced in my young age,
From a legendary page
Late I read, one Christmas eve;
Such a spell the book did weave,
When my chamber I had sought,
Out of gentle sleep methought
On a sudden, I awoke.
List was it not the spirit spoke?
Or was it the tingling frost,
Where the pain was thick embossed?
Then I saw, or seemed to see,
Kneeling there Saint Cicely:
Roses—roses white and red,
Through the moonlit chamber shed,
Roses in the icy year!
While an angel stood anear,
Smiling on her trance'd eyes;
And a music from the skies,
Through the rocking, roof-tree pine,
Came as I went in death divine!
Thus, of wonderous yule-nights all,
This most wonderous did befall.
—Edith Y. Thomas.

GEN. LAWTON was killed in the Philpines this week. Thirteen men and officers were wounded in the same engagement.

THE fashion, for it seems to be but a fashion, and certainly is foolish, of reducing laboring men's wages just as winter approaches should be stopped. Men who in summer can have some choice of labor are paid $1.25 to hold them at their work. When winter comes and jobs are limited their wages are cut down. Why? Just because it can be done! because the laborers think they can't help themselves! Railroad officials claim it costs more to run their road in winter, consequently cut down wages. It costs the laboring man more to run in winter. He must have warmer clothes, more costly food; keep fires going at home for his family; and needs a raise in wages worse than the railroad corporations do. If it costs railroads more to do business in winter let them charge it on to those doing the freighting, or the riding, and not to the laborers.

Be Consistent.

The mind moulder of republican proclivities, successor to the Rank Post, at Annandale, should measure his articles all from the same piece, for one week at least. In his paper last week in one article he says:

"The best feature of the case is that the farmer who raises broom corn is getting a better price. The man who makes it up gets better wages, and are consequently spending money."

In another column of the same paper he says:

"The greatest good to the greatest number, is as near perfection as mankind can approach."

Would Mr. Satterlee have his readers believe that the majority of the farmers in Wright county or any other county in the United States are raising broom corn, or a majority of the laborers engaged in making it up for better wages? He does not deny that all are using brooms at greatly advanced prices.

Republican Convention.

The Republican National Convention has been appointed for June 19, at Philadelphia. It has been carefully fixed for making it a succes. Being in June, one of the most pleasant months of the year, people are expected to be at their best for enjoying a vacation, at a time of year when business is slack; and, of course, things being previously planned, they will be made to feel the force of the wave of prosperity that is to be then sweeping over our country. Holding it in Philadelphia is a wise move. Pennsylvania goes republican by thousands. The convention will be in the home of its friends. It is near New York city. All the financial fixers of Wall street can spare a day for candidate Rooting. It is handy by Washington, our National capitol, whose political pointers can be easily and effectively used in shaping the platform of generalties for the procuring of necessary voters. It is easy of access for Boss Hanna and his cohorts who will do their best to continue pulling the wool over the eyes of such as choose to be led in that way. We think the managers have surely chosen well their fighting place, at least. But it remains to be seen if the men in ordinary walks of life are going to march uncomplainingly to the merry jingle of the few shining gold dollars in the pockets of corrupt capitalists whose object in life is the spreading of commerce even at the sacrifice of hundreds of lives, and millions of money, and the upbuilding of an empire instead of a republic.

THE Elk River Star News says: "On Saturday last, Judge Collins definitely announced that he would not enter a scramble for the gubernatorial nomination". And further on it says: "And not being a rich man he did not feel that he could make the campaign that would be required to insure success." It is really too bad that, in this day of intelligence, a man qualified, and desiring to be governor and who is the choice of the people for Justice of the Supreme Court, don't dare to run for governor because he isn't rich. This ought to be changed.

Ally of the Filipinos.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Capt. J. P. Finley, of the Ninth United States infantry, arrived here today from the Philippines. He is on crutches owing to a terrible malady which he says is widely prevalent among the officers and men there. The first stage of the disease is dysentery, which becomes chronic. Then neuritis or nerve paralysis sets in and some are crippled for life.

"I have seen men," said Capt. Finley, "with their feet drawn up out of shape, arms swollen and almost useless and their facial muscles so drawn as to prevent them from talking intelligibly."—Duluth Herald.

Prophesies a General War.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—"If Great Britain is ultimately successful in South Africa, the powers of the world will reunite to resist successfully her advance. A coalition will be formed against British domination, and when this war of the nations comes, which side will the United States take? We must take one side or the other. That will be a sad day for our nation. Yet, I say, we never have got into a scrape yet that we did not get out of. And as a prophetic American I tell you we never shall."

The Foregoing statement was made by Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, former president of Brown university and now superintendent of the Chicago public schools, in his address on "The War in South Africa," at the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church, last evening.

The occasion was the Men's Sunday Forum meeting, and Dr. Andrews startled his hearers by the declaration that international war inevitably would follow the wake of Great Britain in the Boer war. He announced that from the moment Kruger's followers surrendered, England necessarily would come in conflict with other powers in carrying out its plans of colonization. He declared that clashes would follow the attempt to build the Cape to Cairo railroad and that the contemplated effort of Great Britain to build a railroad from the Suez canal to Bombay, which would give that nation a direct means of throwing munitions of war into the lands about the headwaters of the Euphrates would be resisted.

The address of Dr. Andrews was heard by an audience that packed the chapel. Several times he referred to the wrongs of the African people, both in the United States and in Africa, and his words brought out great cheering.—Duluth Herald.

Sympathy for Boers.

The German American Centralbund of Minnesota met yesterday in St. Paul and adopted resolutions expressive of their sympathy for the Boers. The Central Bund is one of the more liberal German organizations of the state, embracing representatives of different creed and enjoying the name of being non partisan. When the meeting opened Dr. Ohage of St. Paul offered the resolutions and moved their adoption. They were as follows:

"Whereas, The citizens of the republics on the African continent, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State, are at the present time engaged in a heroic defense of their countries, their liberties, homes, their all, against the greeed and robberlike attacks of England; and,

"Whereas, The cause which England alleges for this most unholy and unjust way, 'civilization and liberty for all,' in the mouth of England is nothing but blasphemous hypocrisy and cant: and,

"Whereas, Further, The actions of England, its brutal mode of warfare in South Africa, violate every feeling for justice and humanity; be it hereby

"Resolved, That the German-American Central Bund of Minnesota hereby extend to the fighting Boers its fullest sympathy, and prays to God Almighty to grant final victory to the arms of the sturdy men of South Africa, who only 'fear God and nothing else in the world.'"

In supporting the resolutions Dr. Ohage claimed that it was a well known fact that the English forced the issue with the Boers. He stated that many newspapers had taken the stand that England's aggression was in the interests of justice and civilization. Such contentions he branded as sheerest nonsense, asserting that England was actuated by greed alone. He believed the Germans of Minnesota should support in sentiment and a substantial manner the cause of the Boers.

Rev. Mr. Thiele believed it to be a question in some minds whether the United States should not take a hand and assist the Boers.

President Boernisch made a lengthy speech.

"We are," he said, "sons of a great republic, and when we see our brothers of another republic struggling for liberty we should encourage them."

Jules Moersch made a short address and the resolutions were adopted. The society voted to send $50 to the Boers through the German Red Cross Society.—Minneapolis Times.

To the Little Echoes.

We call the attention of the McKinley imperialists who declare that the Declaration of Independence was only for political effect, and only applied to white men, to a recent decision of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia in which Justice Morris observes:

"The Declaration of Independence is not, as some have asserted, a mere string of generalities. It is a bill of rights which enters fundamentally into the structure of our government."

Chief Justice Fields used this language:

"The theory upon which our political institutions rest is that all men have certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that in the pursuit of happiness all avocations, all honors, all positions are alike open to every one, and that in the protection of these rights, all men are equal before the law."

Even McKinley, before he surrendered to the gold trust, said at a New England dinner:

"Human rights and constitutional privileges must not be forgotten in the race for wealth and commercial supremacy. The government of the people must be by the people; it must rest upon the free consent of the governed, and all of the governed."

And less than two years ago, Mr. McKinley said in his message to congress, speaking of Cuba:

"I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of—that by our code of morality, would be criminal aggression."

And yet the dirty little echoes of the trusts, combines and corporations denounce "Old Child" as a "copperhead" for advocating identically the same doctrines regarding imperialism that McKinley advocated two short years ago. Queer isn't it? -Waseca Herald.

Products of the Soil.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., Dec. 18, '99.

We farmers are debating among ourselves what are the most profitable products for us to raise here in the Northwest. Some favor one thing and some another. Wheat has been the staple of production for many years, but is not as profitable as it was 20 or 25 years ago, when the average yield per acre was 25 or 30 bushel, and the price per bu. $1.00 to $1.50. Now we raise on an average, 10 to 20 bu. of wheat per acre and we realize in price per bu. about 55 or 60 cents, and this is hardly equivalent to cost of production and hauling to market. Our soil is becoming less adapted to the raising of wheat every year. The elements in the soil for the growing of wheat is being absorbed. The product of the farm must be less wheat, more corn, hay, potatoes, and vegetables of all kinds. Many of our farmers are becoming interested in the dairy business. This, so far, has proved to be quite a profitable business, and no doubt will continue to be a good business if it is not overdone. The prices of cows and other cattle have gone up during the last two years and they are really demanding greater prices than are justifiable, according to other products of the farm: but hardly think these prices will continue long.

The wealth of Hennepin and Wright counties (outside of Minneapolis) is in the products of the soil, and as farmers of the above named counties must look to our own interest. Only a year or two ago the sugar beet industry was agitated to be such a profitable industry in this part of the Northwest, as to cause the state legislature to make a large appropriation for the building of a sugar beet plant at St. Louis Park. As yet but few farmers have ever received but little benefit from it. The appropriation of a bonus by the state to build the sugar refinery at St. Louis Park was a misguided piece of legislation and something of a prodigal waste to the producing class of the state of Minnesota.

In Wright and Hennepin county we have no mineral or lumbering industry and must wholly depend upon the products of the soil. With shortage of crops and low prices in the markets, the farmer is sometimes put to great disadvantage in providing for himself and family and meeting his obligations that are under contract.

Some tell us that the farmers are chronic kickers, but in this they are misrepresented. There is no class of people so imposed upon as the farmer. All kinds of agents and impostors seek to make them their dupes, and by misrepresentation sell him articles that are C O D. at fabulous prices, but many times the farmer is largely to blame for his own misfortune and should not be such a ready tool. I myself have more than once suffered this sore affliction and sometimes thought it was money well spent. Sometimes a man profits by his own misfortune; yet the medicine is hard to take.

That wise jurist and statesman, Abraham Lincoln, said, near the close of the rebellion, "I see a crisis that unnerves me. Finally the money power will gain ascendance and the wealth of the country will be aggregated into the hands of the few, and the government will be overthrown." This prophesy is being literally fulfilled. Many of the capitalists have repeatedly attempted to deny that Lincoln ever uttered these words but they are gospel truths uttered by his own lips.

Next year the farmer will be compelled to pay a much larger price for machinery; plows, wagons, harness, and in fact everything that a farmer makes use of in his business.

The trust combines are gathering in big money for the next campaign, but the people are paying the freight.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8, 1899.

Mr. McKinley isn't satisfied with bossing Congress; he intends to boss the whole republican shooting match. For some reason he has soured on Boss Platt's little scheme of making Gov. Teddy Roosevelt the Vice Presidential candidate, and he took occasion to tell the members of the Republican National Committee, which met in Washington today to choose the time and place for the next republican national convention, that Secretary Root would be nominated on his ticket. Boss Platt tries to make it appear that he means it when he says that Root's nomination for Vice President will be entirely satisfactory to him. Now, that it has become known that Mr. Root is Mr. McKinley's candidate the thick and thin worshippers at the McKinley shrine are falling into line and the Root boom is growing accordingly.

Senator Allen, who has been appointed by the governor of Nebraska to fill the vacancy left by the death of the late Senator Hayward, will be warmly welcomed as a staunch and valuable recruit to the ranks of the anti-gold standard Senators, who are preparing for a long and hard fight in the Senate against the gold standard bill, which Mr. McKinley has found it so easy to jam through the House.

The republican speeches in the House, this week, have contained lots of gush about "republican prosperity" and "sound money", but very little praise of any portion of the gold standard bill, which will, if it becomes a law, put the control of the finances of the country in the hands of the bankers, enabling them to contract or expand the amount of money in circulation at will.

Representative Cochran, of Mo., in an able speech against the McKinley gold standard bill, presented figures showing that there is not enough gold in the world to do the business of the world, and declared that the importation of gold to pay for the surplus crops exported to supply the failure of crops abroad had quickened trade and produced the prosperity of which the republicans boasted, and warned the republicans that when the stock of gold declined, as he believed it was bound to do, the prosperity of today would crumble like a house of cards. Representative Sims, of Tenn., in his speech against the gold bill, called attention to a very important fact—that while wages did not average more than 10 per cent above the panic level, the price of manufactured goods had increased 100 per cent.

Senator Pettigrew's resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Navy to inform the Senate whether the flag of the Philippine republic was carried by vessels in Manila Bay and saluted by Admiral Dewey or any of the vessels of his squadron at any time since May 1, 1898, and whether a vessel flying the Philippine flag accompanied the U. S. Cruisers Concord and Raleigh to Subig Bay, in June 1898, to aid in compelling the Spanish force to surrender, asks for legitimate information and should be adopted. If these reports are false the administration ought to be glad of the opportunity to officialy say so, but no such gladness is manifested. On the contrary, Mr. Pettigrew's resolution is to be smothered, not answered.

Mr. Quay is in Washington, making a personal appeal to Senators to vote to seat him on the governor's credentials. It is said that if he does not receive assurances from a sufficient number of Senators to make it absolutely certain that he will be seated, he intends to withdraw his application and credentials, but there is a doubt as to whether he could withdraw them.

Some of the members of the House committee which is engaged in investigating the charges against Roberts are themselves charged with being more anxious to get a free trip to Utah and back, with all expenses paid, than to complete the investigation and make a report. There seems very little probability that the report will be made to the House before the Christmas recess.

It is no new thing to charge the U. S. Senate with being an extravagant body, but the itemized cost, as shown by the report of the Secretary of the Senate, of the furnishings bought for the Vice President's room in the Capitol, show that it is growing more extravagant all the time. Here are some of the items: Imported carpet $465, antique desk $325, mahogany tables, $160, sofa $150, two rugs $212, two pairs of lace curtains $300, velvet portiere $170, and a solid silver ink stand $1,000.

The democrats intend pushing trust legislation at this session of Congress. Senator Morgan, of Ala., has introduced an anti-trust joint resolution which he says he intends forcing to a vote if it possibly can be done, and Senator Chilton, of Texas, says the same about the anti-trust bill he has introduced.

The appointment of Gen. Leonard Wood, whose nomination to be major general of volunteers was confirmed by the senate this week, to be Military Governor of Cuba, is regarded as the best thing that has happened for the Cubans for some time, as he has shown by his management of the province of Santiago that he thoroughly understands how to get along with them.

FOUR LIVES.

By Edgar Temple Field.

"TO DANCE away a night like this in a glaring ballroom in the company of a lot of retired butchers and bakers and candlestick-makers would be as stupid as to play golf on the plains of paradise," said Marie.

Harrington recognized her tone with some alarm. Much of the time Marie was as reasonable as most girls, but when such a mood was upon her he lived in hourly fear of being swept away in the tide of her revolt against her life, herself and the people by whom she was surrounded.

At such times, indeed, his only comfort lay in the belief that he had ceased to be a merely ornamental appendage to her existence and had become in a measure a necessity to her. For Harrington, being an observer first and a lover afterward, had noticed that the bric-a-brac generally goes before the furniture in the fits of emotional overthrow to which the iconoclastic temperament is subject.

This being a case of incipiency, he tried that ounce of prevention which tradition has declared will outweigh in utility 12 ounces of cure.

"We will go down to the Indian camp," he suggested.

"They will talk Anglo-Saxon slang to us and show us baskets made in imitation of Pompeiian jugs and colored with diamond dyes in horribly sophisticated greens and yellows," said Marie.

"Eliza Antoine has promised to sing for us," he urged. The case threatened to be worse than he had feared.

"Ah, she will probably sing the jewel song from 'Faust,' or perhaps give us the latest enormity in rag-time," replied Marie. But she turned into the path that led to the water, moving proudly like some slender young goddess through the dappled shadows, while Harrington followed, wondering if there ever had been a woman like her. She was so beautiful and he loved her so.

Eliza Antoine stood at the entrance of the little tent, her poor, blind eyes turned toward the shining bay she could not see, where the moon was writing strange characters in gleaming gold on the crest of every dancing wave.

Behind her in the tent two half-grown children slept upon the bare ground, their heads pillowed on a heap of rags. A group of Indians of both sexes sat huddled on a log, gazing vacantly into the night. All the glory of moon and wave was shining there before their eyes, but their stolid, stupid faces bore not the faintest trace of the rapt joy with which the blind woman turned her own toward the lovely scene to which her eyes were forever closed.

Eliza Antoine had not always been blind. Once, long ago, when she had been trim and straight and graceful instead of bowed and shapeless and blundering as she was now, she had looked forth at the world with keen, dark eyes and saw and noted all its beauty.

A lover had come to her then, a white man, rough and uncouth, but good-looking and gay, with a touch of Irish brogue at the tip of his tongue and a merry wit that had taught the daughter of a savage race the one saving grace of this awful thing we call life—the blessed trick of laughter.

He had wooed and won her in a careless, easy fashion, and then one day, when a baby lay at her breast and another trotted beside her, tugging at her skirts, he had gone away and left her, never to come back.

She thought she would die after that, but she didn't. It's not so easy to die, after all. And there came a day when she stood, with a broken, aching heart, looking across the glittering waste of waters for him who would never return, a sudden pain struck like a knife-stab through her eyeballs, and a dreadful darkness fell swiftly between her and the sun. And it was told that night in the village that Eliza Antoine had been suddenly stricken blind.

God alone knows when the poor savage creature first began to find that there were gleams of sunshine even in a lot as dark as hers. But it came to pass in time that Eliza Antoine found herself occupying a position of importance in the community. The Indians as a rule are not given to bestowing tenderness or compassion on the afflicted, but they thought they saw the hand of the Great Spirit in the swift and awful punishment which had descended upon Eliza for seeking false gods and worshiping at alien altars. She was clearly set apart for especial distinction, if only for the enormity of her sins, so they treated her with great respect, as one marked for a frightful doom.

Then her voice and love of singing brought her into prominence in the camp meetings and other ebullitions of the strange, new religion she had espoused at her husband's bidding and gained her many a silver coin from music-loving strangers who visited the village. Her knowledge of English, learned from her faithless spouse, also served her well, and she was much sought after as interpreter among the various tribes in the neighborhood.

She had been brought over to the resort to act as mouthpiece for the bargaining in basket ware her people hoped to accomplish with the susceptible and wealthy cottagers gathered there, and as it had been a prosperous expedition Eliza had been the object of especial consideration at their hands.

It was a face fairly shining with happiness that she turned toward Harrington and Marie when her quick ear caught the sound of their approach.

"Eliza, I have brought a young lady to hear you sing," Harrington said gently. Somehow it seemed to him just then that she was to be pitied because she could not see Marie.

"Yes, I know," said Eliza. She was bending forward, listening intently to the soft, silken rustle of the girl's draperies and drinking in with evident delight the faint, elusive perfume that seemed to float about and envelop her as though she inhabited some rare atmosphere denied to ordinary mortals.

"Give us some of your native songs," went on Harrington. "We want to hear something really Indian to-night."

"No, no," said Eliza, eagerly. "I don't know any Indian songs now, but," she added with a touch of pride, "I can sing many English ones."

Marie made an impatient movement. It was just as she had thought it would be, and she loathed it all anyway. She was in no mood for pity to-night, and the squalid tent with its dirty, sleeping children, Eliza herself, with her dark, tragic, deep-lined face, revolted her. She wanted to get away.

But Harrington detained her.

"Just sing us the song you like the best," he said, slipping a silver dollar into Eliza's hand, and after a moment's hesitation she began to sing "Annie Laurie." Her voice, though rough and untutored, was not without a certain sweetness, and the sufferings of the Eliza Antoine of long ago had put into it a thrill of feeling that went straight to the heart.

Clear and true the cadences of the dear old song floated on the air, floated past the two lovers standing hand in hand, past the stolid Indians huddled like animals on their log—far, far out into the moonlight night.

For bonnie Annie Laurie
I'd lay me doon and dee.

On the other side of the bay, in a rude board hut, lay an Irish lumberman who had been injured that day in an accident on a great lumber barge. He had been brought ashore to die, and the rural minister was praying at his bedside—praying for the welfare of the dying man's immortal soul with the fervent but conscientiously guarded diction of one who felt that he was of those whose prayers, if not granted at once, were sure to be recorded for future reference.

The dying man stirred as the far-off strains of the song were wafted in through the open window and a smile twisted his white lips.

"Sure an' that's a good tune to die by," he said, faintly, and then his face changed. "Eliza used to sing that," he muttered. "Eliza Antoine. She was only an Injun, but she was a good girl. Poor Eliza, I didn't treat her square—"

"Oh, Lord, deal with the poor penitent soul as Thou seest fit," the prudent minister was saying to his Maker.

And once more the refrain thrilled softly on the moonlit air:

For bonnie Annie Laurie
I'd lay me doon and dee.

"Poor Eliza," said the injured man again, and then was still.

A few moments later Harrington and Marie took leave of the Indian woman and walked along the shining shore, their hearts too full for words.

At the entrance to the woods they were suddenly confronted by a lighted window through which was distinctly visible the figure of a man kneeling at the side of an already stiffening corpse.

Marie shrank back with a sob of terror and Harrington, shutting out the dreadful picture from her sight with a protecting gesture, hurried her on to the shelter of the wood beyond.

But once within the shadowed path the girl whose own life had wearied and disgusted her from the very fullness and richness of its gifts covered her face with her hands and burst into tears.

"Oh, this is such a dreadful, dreadful world," she sobbed. And her lover soothed her with tender words while his heart ached with the knowledge that all his love could not shield her from the world's misery.

But on the dead face over which the minister was reverently drawing the sheet there was a smile of unutterable peace. And Eliza Antoine, left alone in the door of the little tent with her face turned toward the shining waters that she could not see, was saying softly to herself:

"Thank the good God for this beautiful world we live in."—Chicago Herald.

The Archbishop's Hardships.

Archbishop Temple has his trials like other folk. At a luncheon the other day, after some church function in his diocese, the bland vicar asked: "May I give your grace a little cold chicken?" "No, you mayn't," said the archbishop. "Wherever I go they give me cold chicken and 'The Church's One Foundation,' and I hate 'em both."—Westminster Gazette.

His Intentions.

One thing that interests the convivial reader of war news is the proximity of laagers to neks in the Transvaal.

A monument, a bronze heroic statue of "Grief," has been placed upon the grave, at North Easton, of the late Oliver Ames, thirty-fifth governor of Massachusetts under the constitution.

In an article on the admission of women to Cambridge degrees, Miss Helen Gladstone refers to the fact that no less than six Cambridge colleges were founded by women for the benefit of men.

A bridge in Boston over the St. Charles river was replaced the other day after having faithfully performed its duty for 113 years. The old bridge cost $50,000, while the one that replaces it calls for $1,500,000.

The football season in the United States is over, but there is no limit to the insurrection season in South America. They keep right on playing, summer and winter, apparently being always in condition. At the moment this item was written the Colombia players had the field.

They must have an enterprising police force in Vancouver, B. C. Some time ago they claimed that they had the famous Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell, of Chicago, in jail, and now they claim they have arrested Aguinaldo! Next they will be finding the lost Charley Ross or perhaps the man who struck Billy Patterson.

"The father of the house," as the member having the record of the longest consecutive service in congress is called, is Representative Alfred C. Harmer, of Philadelphia. As such he had the honor of administering the oath of office to the new speaker and the privilege of selecting his seat before the drawing of the others began.

In the matter of continuous service as an editor, perhaps A. E. Burr, of the Hartford (Conn.) Times is the oldest in the country. Mr. Burr purchased an interest in the weekly Times 61 years ago and turned it into a daily two years later. Since his first connection with the paper he has had editorial control, and is still in active service, bearing well his 84 years.

The Baldwin locomotive works in Philadelphia, have installed in its erecting shop an American built crane that is a wonder. The crane has a span of 158 feet, and lifting a locomotive weighing 196,000 pounds—the very largest type—to a height of 40 feet, it carries the monster 336 feet and sets it down, all in the brief time of 3½ minutes. The American machinist cannot be beaten.

The war in South Africa is the first in which bicycles have been used by the regular troops. Bicycle couriers have done good service there, and especially so in conveying messages from the besieged town of Mafeking. Gen. Buller has given the department officers at bases of operations the option of using their bicycles instead of their horses, and receiving an allowance in lieu of the rations that would be consumed by the horse.

Speaker Henderson's gavel is something of a curiosity. The head is of rosewood from Montejo's flagship and the handle of native osage, grown in Polk county, Ia. It is decorated by an eagle's beak bearing a scroll inscribed "E Pluribus Unum." On the upper ferrule are doves and a garland, on the lower pictures of the United States ships Iowa and Des Moines. The Iowa arms and Mr. Henderson's monogram are on the side of the head.

The rapid development of the commerce of the Pacific ocean affords another opportunity for agricultural industry in Alaska. The short route between our Pacific coast and Japan and North China lies near the Aleutian islands, and not, as popularly supposed, by way of Hawaii. Owing to the influence of the Japan current, the western Aleutians have a warmer climate than the Alaskan coast. With an energetic development of the agricultural resources of Alaska the Aleutian islands should become an important half-way house for trans-Pacific trade.

On the day congress assembled Mr. Turner, the young representative from Kentucky, started for the capital with his mother, but they became separated in the crowd. Mrs. Turner made her way alone to the members' gallery and gained admittance, though she had no ticket, the necessary pasteboard being in her son's pocket. To a doorkeeper who said he would have to eject her unless she produced her ticket Mrs. Turner said: "I came here to see my baby sworn in as a member of the house, and here I remain until he takes the oath." She was permitted to remain.

During the excitement attending a controversy over religion in Butte, Mont., between J. S. Charlebois, divine healer, and Malachy Dwyer, the latter attempted to strike the healer and dropped dead before he could do so. Charlebois says he appealed to Heaven for protection, and believes that Dwyer's death was an act of Providence. The coroner's physician, who made the examination, says that death was due to heart disease. Dwyer was 68 years of age and a well-known old-time resident of Butte. Charlebois has created a sensation by some cures effected.

THE LATEST FOREIGN DISPATCHES

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

In the United States senate on the 14th Senator Pettigrew's resolution inquiring if Americans had recognized Filipino insurgents was tabled. The house resolution for a Christmas holiday adjournment on the 20th of December until the 3d of January was agreed to. In the house bills were introduced to admit Arizona to statehood; to give two months' extra pay to those serving in the war with Spain, without limitations of present law; to extend the homestead law to the Philippines so that soldiers serving in the wars with Spain or the Philippines shall have the benefit of homestead settlement in the Philippines. The currency bill was further discussed.

In the United States senate on the 15th the new list of committee members was agreed to. Numerous private pension bills were introduced, making the number of such bills at the present session over 1,600. Adjourned to the 18th. In the house bills were introduced providing a system of government for Alaska; authorizing the president to appoint as cadets at the Naval academy the cadets temporarily appointed during the Spanish war; giving to all Mexican war veterans who have reached the age of 70 years and their widows of the same age pensions of $30 a month. The debate on the currency bill was ended.

The United States senate was not in session on the 16th. In the house Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) introduced a joint resolution declaring that a state of war exists in South Africa, and according belligerent rights to the Transvaal government.

FROM WASHINGTON.

War department tables show that the United States had 223,235 men on the army muster rolls during the Spanish war.

Throughout the United States the one hundredth anniversary of the death of George Washington was commemorated. At the tomb at Mount Vernon President McKinley made an address.

In Washington Lieut. Thomas M. Brumby, of Marietta, Ga., flag lieutenant to Admiral Dewey during the Manila campaign, died of typhoid fever, aged 44 years.

THE EAST.

On Tuesday, June 19 next, the republican national convention will be held at Philadelphia.

The largest pork packers in New England, John P. Squire & Sons, failed in Boston with liabilities of $3,000,000 and assets of $5,000,000.

In their weekly review of trade R. G. Dun & Co. say that never has production been greater, the number of hands employed larger or wages distributed higher.

The John P. Squire company failure in Cambridge, Mass., for $3,000,000 caused the Broadway national bank in Boston to close its doors.

At the age of 47 years Eugene P. Gillespie died at Greenville, Pa. He represented the Twenty-fifth district in congress in the session of 1891-93.

The death of James Nelson Pidock, congressman from the Fourth district of New Jersey from 1884 to 1888, occurred at his home in Whitehouse, aged 63 years.

In Buffalo, N. Y., Gen. William F. Rogers, a civil war veteran and successively auditor, comptroller and mayor, died at the age of 79 years.

The newly-appointed governor general of Cuba, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, sailed from New York for Havana.

WEST AND SOUTH.

In January William Goebel and J. C. W. Beckham, democrats, will contest before the Kentucky legislature the right of the republicans to the offices of governor and lieutenant governor.

H. W. Widemann made a new world's record at a swimming tournament in San Francisco, making the 25-yard dash in 12 2-5 seconds.

The wheat crop of the United States for 1899 is 547,300,000 bushels.

As the late M. L. Hayward never took the oath of office as a United States senator the question arises whether William V. Allen, commissioner to fill the vacancy from Nebraska, is entitled to take his seat.

At Moundsville, W. Va., Frank Walker (colored) was hanged for the murder of Thomas Sanders, a saloonkeeper.

At Tacoma, Wash., Adam Crist killed his wife and eight-year-old son and fatally wounded a second son, and then killed himself. Jealousy was the cause.

The death of George W. Shell, who represented the Third South Carolina district in congress from 1890 to 1894, occurred at his home in Laurens.

Fire destroyed the Comedy theater, one of the pioneer show houses in San Francisco.

While arguing a case in court in Perry, O. T., Prosecuting Attorney Williams, of Pawnee county, fell dead with heart disease.

Flames partially destroyed the state penitentiary at Lincoln, Neb.

At Nicholasville, Ky., Samuel Reynolds' three small children, aged six, three and one years, were burned to death during the absence of their parents.

William V. Marquis, who was lieutenant governor of Ohio under the Campbell administration, died at Bellefontaine, aged 72 years.

W. H. Carpenter, author, poet and editor, died at his home in Baltimore, aged 86 years.

Near Alliance, Ky., Nelson Hamilton and his three children were burned to death by the burning of their home.

With her crew of nine men Whaleback barge 115, missing on Lake Superior several days, has been given up for lost.

In a railway wreck near Lewiston, Idaho, Engineers Bain and Ogden, Fireman Bradshaw and Brakeman Budge were killed

Flames destroyed the factory of the Duluth (Minn.) Boot and Shoe company, the loss being $150,000.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

In a dispatch to the war office in London Gen. Buller tells of a serious reverse near Colenso, which is looked upon as the worst event that has transpired in the South African campaign. The British troops were again led into a trap. Unable to withstand the furious raining of bullets from Boer rifles, the British were forced to retreat, and besides heavy losses in killed and wounded, 11 big guns were left behind.

Gen. Otis reports the Filipino people fully realize that the insurrectionary movement has gone to pieces, and are anxious that drastic measures be adopted to bring about normal conditions in the Philippines.

Advices from Gen. Buller say that his casualties in the Tugela river battle reached a total of 1,097 and Methuen's revised list makes his losses at Magersfontein 963. The British losses in killed, wounded, prisoners and missing throughout the campaign now reach the enormous total of 7,360. Under Field Marshal Roberts England has ordered to the seat of war all the reserves, colonial troops and a strong division of militia.

A Manila dispatch says that Maj. March, of the Thirty-third infantry, has abandoned his pursuit of Aguinaldo, who is said to have left Manitong in disguise for Cabugoan, province of Cagayan. An insurgent major who had 23 American prisoners surrendered to Gen. Young. The Brooklyn has arrived at Manila, winning the long race which she has been running with the New Orleans.

LATER NEWS.

NEW COMMANDER APPOINTED.

Lord Roberts to Lead Forces in South Africa—Buller Reported to Have Crossed the Tugela.

London, Dec. 18.—Baron Roberts of Kandahar and Waterford, commander of the forces in Ireland, has been appointed to the chief command in South Africa, with Gen. Lord Kitchener, of Khartoum, as his chief of staff.

London, Dec. 19.—The Daily Mail hears from a hitherto reliable correspondent that Gen. Buller, after a stiff fight, crossed the Tugela river. The correspondent also states that Gen. Methuen's communications are cut.

The war office has posted a revised list of the casualties in the battle of Magersfontein, giving 51 additional killed.

The Daily Chronicle's financial article, which is written by A. J. Wilson, a leading authority, says: "The expenditure for the war considerably exceeds £2,000,000 per week, and as the treasury cannot hope to sell its bills on the market under five per cent., it is evident that the government must soon come upon the market for money."

GEN. LORD ROBERTS.

London, Dec. 19.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Frerere camp says that the bodies of two of the guides who misled Gen. Gatacre at Stormberg were found on the battlefield. The men had been shot.

London, Dec. 19.—A correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing from

GEN. LORD KITCHENER.

Freres camp, Natal, December 15, describing the Tugela river battle, says:

"The Boers in great force occupied a strong, entrenched position, commanding the river and reaching back 800 yards from its further side. Gen. Hart's brigade, on the left, first attempted a crossing under a murderous nordenfeldt and rifle fire. The Royal Dublin fusileers, the Royal Inniskilling fusileers, the King's Own Scottish borderers and the Connaught rangers crossed with superb unflinching gallantry, but the position on the other side was found utterly untenable. The British suffered heavily from a perfect hail of artillery and shrapnel, while their own artillery was very badly mauled. They were, therefore, obliged to recross the river. On the right, Gen. Hildyard's brigade, displaying equal heroism, succeeded in entering the village of Colenso, but the Sixth battery encountered a murderous fire, and was compelled to retire, leaving guns and ammunition wagons on the veldt. This brigade also was obliged to fall back. Meanwhile Gen. Barton's brigade also failed to take possession of Hlanwri hill, as was intended, and the entire force retired on Chievely. Gen. Clery was in command."

Lorenzo Marques, Delagoa Bay, Dec. 18.—It is rumored that Mr. Churchill, the newspaper correspondent who recently escaped from Pretoria, has been captured at Waterfalboven, about half way between Pretoria and Portuguese territory.

PERISH BY FIRE.

Three Persons Lose Their Lives in New York City, and One in Chicago.

New York, Dec. 15.—Three persons were burned to death and one seriously injured in a fire that occurred early this (Friday) morning in a dilapidated tenement at 300 South First street, in the Williamsburg district of Brooklyn. Mrs. Goscher and Mrs. Smyth were found on the top floor suffocated to death. The body of Luke Freen was found on the second floor badly burned. Mrs. Freen, the wife of Luke Freen, jumped from the second-story window and broke her legs. She was otherwise seriously injured.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Alice Palmer, whose family lives in Alabama, was burned to death in a midnight fire in a boarding house kept by Mrs. Samuelson at 1 Hubbard court, on the corner of Michigan avenue.

Great Demand for Ships.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 18.—A special to the Times from Tacoma, Wash., says: The exports of wheat and lumber from Puget sound are being greatly increased by the tremendous demand for ships throughout the world. Tacoma elevators contain ten cargoes of wheat, with only two vessels in sight to carry it during the next two months. The lumber situation is much worse, owing to the immense demand from the orient, Hawaii, South America, Australia and Europe.

Raise Their Rates.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 18.—Iowa bankers and financial concerns are raising the rates on farm loans, and, whereas as five and 5½ per cent. was accepted until recently, six and seven is now demanded and secured. Bankers report that the demand for money is fully equal to the supply for the first time in two years. They attribute it to the tightness of the eastern money market and say the east is drawing a great deal of cash out of Iowa.

Nine Sailors Lost.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 18.—Whaleback barge 115, which has been missing on Lake Superior since Wednesday last, was on Sunday given up for lost, with her crew of nine men.

COST FOUR LIVES.

Carelessness in Handling Blasting Powder Results Fatally in a Kentucky Farmhouse.

Louisa, Ky., Dec. 18.—A sad accident occurred near Alliance post office, Floyd county, resulting in the death of Nelson Hamilton and three of his children. Hamilton, who was preparing to do some blasting, was pouring out some powder from a keg when his four-year-old son picked up a small amount and tossed into the fire. The explosion threw some embers into the pile of powder and a terrific explosion followed. The father and little son and two older children, who were in the room, were shocked into insensibility. The ceiling was lifted from its place, the walls spread and the upper part of the house came down and stopped about half way of the walls, thus fastening all the doors securely. When the oldest daughter regained consciousness sufficiently to realize that the house was in flames she tried to open a door, but at once saw the hopelessness of such an effort and began to scream for help. A neighbor arrived in time to burst in a door and get the tortured persons out, but they were so badly burned that all died within a few hours.

GOES TO PHILADELPHIA.

Republican National Convention Will Meet in the Quaker City on June 19.

Washington, Dec. 16.—The republican national convention will be held at Philadelphia on Tuesday, June 19 next. The place and date were decided upon by the national republican committee Friday after a friendly contest for the honor of entertaining the convention between the city selected, Chicago, St. Louis and New York. The meeting of the committee was held at the Arlington hotel and was presided over by Senator Hanna, the chairman of the committee. Forty-three of the forty-five states and each of the six territories were represented, Senator Foraker, proxy for Charles L. Kurtz, the national committeeman from Ohio, and Senator Wolcott, proxy for J. F. Saunders, of Colorado, being the only absentees. In addition to the committee many of the big wigs of the republican party were in attendance.

Boston Bank Fails.

Boston, Dec. 18.—As a result of the failure of the John P. Squire company (corporation), of Cambridge, for $3,000,000, which was announced late Thursday afternoon, the Broadway national bank here, in which the Squires were largely interested, did not open its doors Saturday, and a notice at the entrance, stated that the affairs of the bank were in the hands of the comptroller of the currency.

Special Session Begins.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 19. — The Michigan legislature met in special session at noon in response to the call of Gov. Pingree. The governor's object is to secure passage of a joint resolution providing for submission to the people at the general election next November of an amendment to the state constitution placing railways upon the same basis for taxation as all other property. At present the railroads pay specific taxes upon gross earnings.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Maj. March Abandons Pursuit of Aguinaldo—Lawton Marching on San Mateo.

Manila, Dec. 18.—Maj. Peyton C. March, of the Thirty-third infantry, has abandoned his pursuit of Aguinaldo, and has reached Baguen, in the heart of the Grand Cordillera, where the range is 10,000 feet high, and where food is scarce and travel almost impossible.

From native couriers and Spanish prisoners it was learned that Aguinaldo left Bontoc, in the province of the same name, with three women and two soldiers, three days ago, and headed southward, evidently for Bayombong, in the province of Nueva Vizcaya, where it is thought he may encounter the Americans.

Maj. March's command was depleted 20 per cent. by the two days' march from Cervantes to Bagnen, so he returned to Cervantes December 10.

Manila, Dec. 19.—Gen. Lawton has started from Manila with the Eleventh cavalry, under Col. Lockett, and battalions of the Twenty-ninth and Twenty-seventh infantry, under Lieut. Col. Sargent, to capture San Mateo, where Geronomo has 300 insurgents. Gen. Grant has nearly cleared Zambeles province. He discovered hidden in Subig bay a steamer, the Don Francisco, of 180 tons, fully equipped and coaled. She is supposed to be the vessel Aguinaldo was keeping ready for his escape. Capt. Layson, of the Thirty-second regiment, has routed an insurgent band in Zambeles province, killing several officers. Maj. Smith, with three companies of the Seventeenth, surrounded and captured another band of guerrillas which were terrorizing a large section north. The troops killed several of the band. Gen. Hughes has captured insurgent strongholds at Leapiz and Romblon, the navy cooperating. One man was killed and one wounded. The insurgents in the island of Panay are apparently suppressed.

THE DAY OBSERVED.

One Hundredth Anniversary of the Death of Washington—Ceremonies at Mount Vernon.

Washington, Dec. 15. — Mount Vernon was the scene Thursday of the most unique and impressive ceremony in its rich and picturesque history. Masons of high degree from all over the United States and Canada met at the tomb of Washington in services commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the greatest American. President McKinley delivered an eloquent tribute to the memory of the first president, and senators and representatives in congress, high officials of the government and distinguished private citizens were participants and spectators of the solemn service.

Later in the day when the masonic ceremonies had been concluded the Independent Order of Red Men succeeded them in honoring the memory of Washington with the rites of their order.

At night the order supplemented their Mount Vernon ceremonies with elaborate exercises at Convention hall, where patriotic music by the Marine band, songs and addresses formed features of an interesting programme. Great Incohonee George E. Green, of New York, presided, and speeches were made by Past Great Incohonee Charles H. Litchman, of Massachusetts, and Great Prophet Robert T. Daniel, of Georgia. Senator Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, was the orator of the evening.

TO RECOGNIZE FILIPINOS.

Resolutions Introduced in the House Favoring Independence of the Philippines.

Washington, Dec. 15. — Two joint resolutions were introduced in the house of representatives Tuesday by Representative Williams of Mississippi, which are the result of consultation among a number of democratic leaders in the house and are understood to be expressive of their general position on the Philippines. The first resolution declares the intention and purpose to recognize the independence of the Filipinos and withdraw our land and sea forces, provided the independent government agrees to refund the $20,000,000 paid by the United States to Spain, to give us a suitable naval and coaling station and grant in perpetuity free access to their ports.

Another section pledges our friendly assistance and also pledges against foreign interference or aggression for ten years, during which time the foreign affairs of the island are to be under American control.

The other resolution asks for information relative to the conclusion of a treaty with the sultan of Jolo and provides for an inquiry by the judiciary committee as to whether the constitutional provisions against slavery and the statutory provisions against polygamy apply to the Sulu people.

Democrat Wins.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 19.—At the special election in the Seventh Kentucky congressional district Monday to elect a successor to the late Congressman Evan E. Settle, June W. Gayle (dem.), of Owen county, was elected over ex-Congressman W. C. Owens, who ran as the fusion candidate of the anti-Goebel democrats and republicans. About two-thirds of the vote was polled. At Gayle's headquarters his majority in the district is placed at 3,000.

Victims of a Feud.

London, Ky., Dec. 18.—The Philpot-Griffin feud has claimed two more victims in the past 48 hours. The two factions met Friday night near Bengetown, where a fight occurred, in which Ed Rogers was killed and one of the opposite side, a Philpot, was seriously wounded. Saturday another fight took place, the Philpots, it is said, having followed up the retreating side and fired into them, killing Henry Hampton.

Bradley for Vice President.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 18.—William O. Bradley, who has just retired from the gubernatorial chair, and who was a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1896, is a candidate for vice president. Gov. Bradley's friends are openly working in his behalf. The plan is to make him the nominee of the republican caucus for United States senator as a kind of starter for his race for the second place on the national ticket.

How to Avoid Colds During Winter.

"This idea that many people have, that winter is an unhealthful season, is all wrong. Winter is just as healthful as summer, if people will take care of themselves. If you want to go through the winter without a cold, observe these few simple rules:

"Don't overheat your house, and don't stop all ventilation. Sleep in a cool room, but keep warmly covered. Always take off your outdoor wraps when you come in the house, and always put them on when you go out. And, lastly, just as long as there is snow on the ground, don't go out without your rubbers. This last rule is the most important of all, for two colds out of three come from wet feet."—The Independent.

IMPORTANCE OF CORN.

The Colonel Made It Plain That the Golden Grain Was Absolutely Indispensable.

"Yes," said Col. Stilwell, "everything is progressing nicely with the people in my part of the country, I am happy to say."

"It is a fine region," said the young girl.

"It is. One of the most salubrious on earth. It is there that the great golden orb as it swings on its diurnal path across the sky pauses to send his tenderest messages across the sunbeams which bind him to the earth."

"You don't say so!" exclaimed the young girl. "It's something like wireless telegraphy, isn't it?"

The colonel looked a little annoyed, and she hastily exclaimed: "It must be perfectly lovely there!"

"It is. The only gold we ask for is that which is coined from the sunlight into great ears of yellow corn. That's what my neighbors and I used to pride ourselves on."

"Corn is a very useful article," she said, with a dainty chirp.

"Of co'se it is. People could not get along without it. I remember one year—one of the most terrible I ever experienced. My sympathies were never before so deeply moved. There was a drought. The corn crop was a failure."

"It must have been dreadful. Still, you could send elsewhere."

"I could. So could the other comparatively well-to-do people. But I was thinking of the poor. I tell you, if it hadn't been for the charity of a number of charitable citizens, myself among them, I have no doubt that a great many of those unfortunates would have died of thirst."—Washington Star.

Took Him at His Word.

Customer—You sell cracked eggs at half price, do you not?

Clerk—Yes'm; we always make 50 per cent. reduction on cracked goods. Anything else to-day?

"Yes, you may give me a dollar's worth of cracked wheat. Here's 50 cents."—Columbus (O.) State Journal.

The True Connoisseurs.

"Papa," said the boy, "when you say in your advertisements that your goods are acknowledged by connoisseurs to be the best, what do you mean by connoisseurs?"

"A connoisseur, my boy," answered the great manufacturer, "is an eminent authority—an authority, in short, who admits that our goods are the best."—Collier's Weekly.

That's What They Call It.

"Papa, what is broad-mindedness?"

"Agreeing with headstrong people when you know they are wrong."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Nell—"Why did Maude get a divorce? I thought she and George got along beautifully." Belle—"So they did, but the cook took a violent dislike to him and threatened to leave."—Philadelphia Record.

Christmas Graces

WHEN silent are the shady dells,
And southward all the birds have flown,
While breezes through the maples moan
In grief for joys they once have known,
What music all the gloom dispels?
The Christmas Bells! The Christmas Bells!

While earth beneath a silver sheen
Lies white and still, when moonbeams glow
On tiny graves where drifted snow
Conceals the blossoms in their woe,
What beauty lights the lonely scene?
The Christmas Green! The Christmas Green!

Though wintry winds are bold and free
That shake the orchard kings of old
Whose autumn wealth of red and gold
No more their rugged branches hold;
What bends with fruitage fair to see?
The Christmas Tree! The Christmas Tree!

When lonely hearts by sorrow tried
Find wealth of earth is but alloy
And love deferred their hopes destroy,
What blessing floods their souls with joy,
Till earth and heaven are glorified?
The Christmas Tide! The Christmas Tide!
—Ruth Raymond, in Minneapolis Housekeeper.

MRS. SAXTON'S CHRISTMAS

IT WAS early twilight of the day before Christmas, and Mrs. Saxton sat in her favorite window seat with an open magazine upon her lap. She was not reading, however, but was looking out upon the usually quiet avenue, now thronged with package-laden pedestrians and delivery wagons heaped high with good things for the morrow. The expression of her countenance as she regarded the hurrying throng was a mixture of pain and perplexity. She had considered her own plans for to-morrow settled some weeks ago, but something she had just read had jarred her out of harmony with them and it seemed too late to make new ones. It was not the article on "Christmas Giving" that had done the mischief, but the time-worn quotation with which it ended:

"Who gives himself with his alms feeds three; Himself, his hungering neighbor and Me."

Not that the words were new to her—Oh, no! They had been her Christmas motto every year since, when a girl of 15, she had first read the Vision of Sir Launfal. It was this that gave the words such power over her, for on this particular Christmas she had decided for the first time in 12 years to set aside her rule and give her alms without giving herself. She had sent turkeys and other good things to numerous needy families, bestowed largesse upon sundry orphan asylums, homes and hospitals, and otherwise used without stint the money of which she had abundance; but for herself—her house was to be closed, her servants given an entire holiday and she, in the solitude of her own chamber, shut away from all sight and sound of merry-making, would indulge the bitterness of her grief for the husband she had loved and lost. Last Christmas had been her wedding day, and the husband to whom she had confided her Christmas motto had said, with eyes shining with joy and tenderness:

"And this year the gift is mine—literally yourself—my priceless Christmas gift!"

They had enjoyed three months of earthly paradise and then—there was a railway accident, and a horrible bruised mass, upon which she was not allowed to look, but from which they extracted the ring she had given him and the watch on whose dial was her own picture—this had been brought home at an hour when she expected her husband, and all the light of the world had for her gone suddenly out.

They had wanted her at home this Christmas, but how could she go where everything would remind her of that joyous wedding day? No, solitude was best for her, and so her day had been planned.

But as she sat now in the deepening twilight with the words of her discarded motto echoing in her mind, this quaint saying lodged there from some long past reading awoke to keep them company.

She gave a quick little gasp and a hot wave—was it shame, remorse, or pure amazement?—swept over her. A coward? Certainly not! But a hero—what was a hero? A hero thought only of others—to save, to succor, to uplift others. For this he sacrificed comfort, honors, life even, that is, he gave himself. So it all came back to that after all; and if she carried out her plans for the morrow, would she be a coward? But it was so late to make new plans. Twilight died slowly away and the electric lights flashed out over the busy avenue and still Mrs. Saxton thought. At length she turned from the window, closed her magazine, drew down the shades and turned on the light in her cozy sitting-room and, touching a bell, summoned the housemaid.

"You will be taking dinner with your sister-in-law to-morrow, Nellie?"

"Yes, Mrs. Saxton," responded Nellie, with the tone and manner of a well-bred lady.

"Do you think it would put her out much—that is, do you think she would enjoy having me dine with her also?"

The girl's face lighted with surprise and pleasure.

"Do you really mean it, Mrs. Saxton? Would you? Amy would be so glad. She speaks of you so often. She feels so—"

The girl hesitated.

"Yes, I know, Nellie. My friends are all very kind—kinder than I deserve. Well, then, if you think I shall be welcome would you run over to-night and tell her to expect me? Say that to-morrow will be a sad day and I should like to be among friends. Stay—I shall not need you any more this evening. You may as well stay all night. Then if my coming makes extra work you can help her."

"Work! O Mrs. Saxton, how can you say it? Amy will count this among her very happiest Christmases. You see," she said, with a sudden frankness quite unusual with her, "since my brother has been out of work so much, Amy has a pretty hard time, and sometimes it seems to her as though her old friends forgot her. She says the past is all slipping away from her and the future looks dark. Forgive me for telling you, Mrs. Saxton. She was not thinking of you so much—for she knows you have had trouble of your own—but Amy has been a good sister to me and it hurts me to see her getting so discouraged."

"I thank you for telling me, Nellie. Good night, and a Merry Christmas to you!"

"I was getting to be a coward," she said to herself, sadly, as the door closed upon the smiling girl. "I was thinking that mine was the only trouble in the world."

Nellie's sister-in-law had been a classmate of Mrs. Saxton's in the seminary and one of her many admiring friends. The fact that she had married a mechanic and Mrs. Saxton a wealthy man had not interrupted their friendship, and when the young sister-in-law had asked to be taken as one of Mrs. Saxton's servants, she had been cordially welcomed and given a place of friend as well as servant. But during these months of terrible bereavement she had shut herself away as far as possible from all past associates.

From little remarks that Nellie let drop occasionally, Mrs. Saxton had half-suspected the state of mind into which her old friend Amy Harris was lapsing; and the thought that had come to her, when she sat in the twilight trying to reconstruct her plans, was that her own deep sorrow might in a way minister to Amy, might remind her that, in spite of financial hardships, she still had the best that life could give, her husband and her children; while she—Sunshine Saxton—as she had always been called—in spite of wealth, had nothing.

When Sunshine Saxton made up her mind to give, she gave unstintedly and without grudging. Having resolved to give herself that Christmas day, she determined to be no specter at anyone's feast. Therefore, alone in her bedchamber on that beautiful Christmas morning, she fell upon her knees and opened her heart to the ever-new, Divine message of "Peace and good will to men." And when she came out dressed for dinner, it was with a smile upon her face—not a glad, joyous smile, perhaps, such as it had worn a year ago, but a wistful, yearning smile as of one who would fain bear the "glad tidings to others."

"TELL ME," SHE WHISPERED, WITH DIFFICULTY, "HOW LONG?"

"She looks just like the Christmas Angel on that big card in the store window," whispered one little Harris boy to another when she had left her wraps in their tiny bedroom and came forth to greet them cordially and take her place by the open Franklin stove which was their Christmas hearth.

And indeed, as she stood there, in a dress of soft white wool with white chrysanthemums upon her breast and the sunlight from the window touching her wavy blonde hair and the firelight flickering across her delicate features and dancing in her deep blue eyes, the artist of a "Christmas Angel" might have chosen a much worse model than Sunshine Saxton.

At dinner the talk drifted naturally and safely back to the old school days, and Nellie and her brother exchanged glances of satisfaction as Amy's laugh rang out now and again with an old-time heartiness which the cottage walls had not echoed for many a day.

"Oh! I had almost forgotten to tell you," said Amy, as they lingered over the dessert in the mid-afternoon; "you remember Carrie Cramer?"

"Yes, very well. A brilliant girl. She did not finish her course. I have often wondered what became of her."

"Oh, she married like the rest of us. Her husband was a poor artist with consumption. He died two years ago and left her with three children, no money, and—his disease."

"How sad! That girl ought to have had a brilliant career. Where is she now?"

"She lives only a few doors away. I only discovered her a few weeks ago, and then by chance. She had a hemorrhage and the children, who were alone with her, became frightened and ran over here for help."

"You say her husband left no income. How, then, do they live?"

"Upon the little she earns with her pen. She was our best composition writer, you remember. But it is a meager and uncertain income. Besides, it is hastening her death. The doctor says she cannot possibly live until summer. She sits indoors and writes and coughs when she ought to be in the open air and sunshine."

"Why did you not send me word? Certainly she needs a friend—friends, rather—I know you have done all in your power, but I must do my share. Poor woman! Poor Carrie! Who could have imagined such a life for her!"

"I thought of you, and meant to tell you sometime, but your own trouble was so great—"

The street door, which opened directly into the sitting-room, which on this occasion served as dining-room, was pushed suddenly open and a delicate girl of seven or eight years, with wide-open, frightened eyes, rushed into the room exclaiming:

"O Mrs. Harris, please come quick! Mother has another—"

"You will excuse me," said Amy, springing to her feet and turning to her guest. "It is Carrie's little girl. Her mother is ill again. I feared it. She was working so hard this morning to make a merry Christmas for the children. She said," lowering her voice, "that it would likely be the last they would spend together."

"I will go with you," cried Mrs. Saxton, rising also.

They found their friend lying on the lounge, fainting from loss of blood and scarcely able to speak. Yet she gave a smile of recognition as Mrs. Saxton took her hand. She knew who was to be guest at the cottage. Mrs. Harris had promised to bring Sunshine to see her after dinner. In one corner of the room stood a tiny Christmas tree which she had been helping the children decorate when the hemorrhage came. Under its branches sat three-year-old baby Carlie crying quietly, with her present for mamma, a little pen-wiper made by her own hands guided by her sister, clasped close to her breast. The eldest child, nine-year-old Ralph, had gone for the doctor.

The pathos, nay, the bitter agony of it, struck home to Mrs. Saxton's heart so sharply that for a brief moment her own trouble seemed an insignificant thing.

"Have they no one when their mother goes? No relatives to look after them?" she whispered to Mrs. Harris.

She shook her head sadly.

"Absolutely no one, she tells me. To leave them to public charity—the thought of their separation from each other—that is what makes dying so hard for her. Ah! here comes the doctor."

He bent over his patient tenderly, counting the flickering pulse. She looked into his face beseechingly.

"Tell me," she whispered, with difficulty, "how long—"

He did not answer at once, but at last her look compelled him.

"An hour—two—perhaps."

Then the three children gathered close about her now. Her eyes rested upon them with a look of unutterable anguish.

"Don't, mother!" cried the boy, sharply, placing one arm about each sister. "I will take care of them. They shall not separate us. God will help me."

Mrs. Saxton stepped quickly forward, looking more than ever like a Christmas angel as she gathered the three children suddenly in her arms.

"They shall be mine," she said. "God has given them to me—a Christmas gift to fill my empty home."

The dying mother half raised herself. Joy struggling with doubt shone in her face.

"Yours, Sunshine? All three? Not—separated—?"

"Yes, mine—all of them—if you will give them to me. I have money and nothing else in the world. I want them. See," she continued, bending to kiss her dying friend, "you go to join your husband; your little ones shall comfort me for mine."

When Sunshine Saxton stole into the hastily prepared nursery for a last look at the three sleeping children late that Christmas night, her face had a look of deep content which promised well for her future and for that of her new-found treasures.

"It is always so," she whispered. "'Give and it shall be given to you * * * good measure. It was so little I tried to give this morning, and see what has been measured back to me!"

She pressed a kiss upon each tear-stained face and went out with Christmas peace in her heart.—Ella Beecher Gittings, in Chicago Advance.

THEIR FIRST CHRISTMAS TURKEY.

Mr. Honeymoon (somewhat hesitatingly)—My dear, what a queer taste to this turkey. What do you suppose ails it?

Mrs. Honeymoon (boo-hooing)—Why, darling, you don't blame me, do you, if it isn't just right? I took all the pains in the world with it, even to the stuffing with cranberries, which mamma told me always go with roast turkey.

A Christmas Episode.

Tom—Marie jumped six feet when I told her she was standing under the mistletoe.

Jack—Then you didn't kiss her?

"Oh, yes; she jumped in my direction."—Brooklyn Life.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Wants a Pardon.

The state pardon board has received an application for a pardon from Clause A. Blixt, now serving a life sentence at Stillwater for the murder of Catherine Ging, at Minneapolis, on the night of Dec. 3, 1894. His reasons are set forth in the following petition:

First—That he is not guilty of murder or of any crime.

Second—That the real perpetrator of the crime was Harry Hayward, and that the deed had been committed before he had any knowledge of the crime.

Third—That he was drugged when going with the said Harry Hayward that night, and would not under any circumstances have been coerced, if it had not been for the medicine given him by Harry Hayward.

The usual copy of the evidence in the case does not accompany the petition for the reason that Blixt was not tried, pleading guilty to the charge. Blixt's statement is directly contradictory to his statement on which Hayward was hanged, in that he admitted driving with the woman in the buggy some distance before he shot her.

Wage Statistics.

Wage statistics have been compiled from the factory inspection of the labor bureau's second inspection district, leaving out Minneapolis.

The reports cover 21 towns in 14 counties: Anoka and Elk River in Sherburne, Princeton in Mille Lacs, Buffalo, Cokato, Delano, Howard Lake, Rockford and Waverly in Wright, Chaska in Carver, Shakopee in Scott, Glencoe in McLeod, Henderson in Sibley, St. Peter in Nicollet, New Ulm in Brown, Montevideo in Chippewa and Lake Benton in Lincoln, Marshall and Tracy in Lyon and Granite Falls in Yellow Medicine. That is a belt across the middle of the state.

The returns deal with 1,652 workers in 242 shops, of whom 1,530 are men, 114 women, 8 boys and no girls.

Roughly, the bulk of the workers in these country towns were getting wages in the neighborhood of $1.50 a day. In Minneapolis the basis of the general wage scale was found to be $2 a day, which is apparently the difference between country and city wages in factory employments.

Lost Her Life.

A little rag doll cost 5-year-old Teresa Magurany her life, at Minneapolis, after the child had suffered nearly six hours of terrible agony. Unnoticed by her mother, little Teresa was playing about the stove yesterday afternoon at the family home, 89 Thirteenth avenue N. E., with her rag doll. The doll caught fire from the stove and with a child's true instinct of motherhood to her doll Teresa tried to extinguish the flame. Her own clothing caught fire and in a second's time she was a mass of flames and she ran from the room, screaming for her mother.

Mrs. Maguany ran to her child's assistance and just as the child had tried to save the old rag baby, but was unable to quench the flames in time to save the child's life.

Mining Man Robbed.

Henry Sweet, a Rat Portage mining man, was robbed of $400 in a hack in front of the Lyceum theater in Duluth while crowds were coming out of the theater. Patrick Holmes, a bartender, and Sweet were taking in the town on the former's invitation, and while in the hack Holmes gave Sweet a knockout blow and went through his pockets, getting his money. Holmes was arrested in Superior and had $350 with him when he was caught.

Youthful Thieves.

The normal school at Moorhead was broken into and $65 in cash abstracted. Chief of Police Murphy succeeded in locating the thieves in the persons of Earl Barnard and Ross Steele, two of the students of the institution. When searched at the city jail the money was found upon them with the exception of $6. The boys confessed their guilt and Justice Odegard sentenced them to a term at the reform school.

News in Brief.

Two cases of black diphtheria appeared at Crookston. One of the patients died and was buried at midnight.

The Winona & Western Railway company expects to complete and commence the operation of the Rochester extension early in the new year.

Gov. Lind has issued a requisition on Gov. Tanner of Illinois for Fred Hartman, accused of a serious crime committed in Rock county.

Nathan O. Ross sued the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis for $550,000 for the use of a patent fire department harness. The courts allowed him $1.

The beet sugar factory at St. Louis Park has closed down after a run of 100 days.

"Bish" Dorsey was indicted at Crookston for the murder of Jonn McCabe at East Grand Forks.

Nelson Kelsey was killed at Cannon City in the yard of an infuriated bull. The animal thrust his horns in his victim's eye, forcing it far into the head and causing instant death.

From Jan. 1 to Dec. 1, the total amount expended upon the new capitol building was $305,805.78.

The Daughters of the Revolution of the state of Minnesota have filed articles of incorporation. Headquarters are in Minneapolis.

V. Neuman paid $28 into the police court treasury of Minneapolis for selling oleomargarine not properly labeled.

Mrs. Margarite Carleton, mother of Sergeant Carleton, of the 13th Minnesota, has applied for a mother's pension.

Four druggists of Winona were fined for employing unlicenced clerks.

Loretta, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kreuchten, was playing at a pile of logs at St. Cloud, when they began to roll. The child fell beneath one and was crushed to death.

Pardon was granted to Edward Riedell and Anton Jacobson, who have served a year and a half of a five years' sentence in Stillwater on conviction of playing the "lock game" in Minneapolis.

Richard Kuyben blew out the gas in a Minneapolis hotel and was nearly dead when discovered.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD.

A Remarkable Difference Between Trade and Industrial Situations and Speculative Interests.

New York, Dec. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Unusual depression in stocks this week has displayed the great divergence between the trading and the productive industries of the country and its speculation. Never has production been greater, the number of hands employed larger, the wages distributed higher, or the purchasing power, based upon earnings, greater than at this time, and never have conditions of trade or returns of earnings and traffic given certainty of greater business for transporters. Yet as the earnings of the railway and manufacturing companies mount upward, their stocks decline as if it were disastrous for a road to double its earnings and ruinous for a mill to realize unprecedented profits. Inflated capitalization has, of course, done much harm, and speculative excitement has counted profits in many cases long before they were earned. Money markets here and abroad have been strained by British reverses in South Africa, and wherever they were overloaded have been pushed to quick and disastrous instead of gradual liquidation. The result is that while industries and transporting companies realize great profits, the speculative holders of their stocks realize severe losses.

"Iron production still expands. The Iron Age reports the output of pig 296,959 tons weekly December 1, against 288,522 November 1, and the decrease in stocks not held by the great steel companies, 5,029 tons. The boot and shoe works are hastening deliveries to meet the enormous consuming demand, and have shipped from Boston 186,421 cases in two weeks of December, against 152,668 last year, and still less in any other year, except 1897, when 191,824 cases were shipped. The movement of wheat is disappointing, but prices have declined only 2½c, with corn a fraction higher. Exports of breadstuffs in November decreased $3,500,000, which with losses of $30,000 in provisions and $13,000,000 in cotton lowered the value of staple exports $15,327,567, in spite of an increase of $2,000,000 in oil. But enormous shipments of manufactured products made the excess of exports over imports more than $49,000,000 for the month.

"Failures for the week were 215 in the United States, against 261 last year, and 26 in Canada, against 31 last year."

BIG FAILURES.

Two Suspensions on Wall Street Cause a Panicky Rush to Unload Stocks.

New York, Dec. 19.—Two failures, one of a trust company with liabilities of $11,650,000, and the other of a stock exchange firm; sales of 1,615,000 shares of stock on the New York stock exchange, the biggest day's business in the history of the institution; call money bid up to 186 per cent. and declines ranging from one to twenty points in all the active stocks, were the features of a market Monday which almost ran into a panic. The expected happened when the Produce Exchange Trust company failed to open its doors in the morning, and the news of this, coupled with the failure of the stock exchange firm of Henry Allen & Co., brought on serious declines in all of the active stocks traded in on the exchange. Added to these unfavorable developments there was a stringency in the money market which resulted in call loans being marked up to 125 per cent., with 186 per cent. bid near the close. All of these influences tended to encourage liquidation, which was general throughout the day, though there was supposed to be a large amount of short selling by some of the big operators. J. Pierpont Morgan came to the relief of the market when the call rate was at 186 with an offer to loan $1,000,000 at six per cent. This relieved the strain, and later other bankers poured money into the market.

BURIAL OF MAINE DEAD.

Probable the President and Cabinet Will Be Present During Ceremonies at Arlington.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, having selected the place where the dead of the Maine are to be buried, is now making arrangements for the reinterment, substantially on the same lines as those followed in the case of the Santiago victims. The remains of Maine victims will be brought by a special train directly from Fort Monroe to Arlington. They will be carried through Gen. Sheridan's gate and placed in hospital tents pending the burial services, each casket covered with an American flag.

It is expected that the president, the members of the president's cabinet, most of the army and naval officers in Washington, and a large number of persons will be present at Arlington when the final interment takes place, probably the last week in December.

Currency Bill Passed.

Washington, Dec. 19.—The currency bill, which was debated all last week, was passed Monday by the house by a vote of 190 to 150. It had the united support of every republican in the house and of 11 democrats, Messrs. Clayton, Driggs, Fitzgerald, Levy, Ruppert, Scudder, Underhill and Wilson, of New York; McAleer, of Pennsylvania; Denny, of Maryland, and Mr. Thayer, of Massachusetts. All the other democrats voted against the measure or were paired against it except Mr. John Walter Smith, governor-elect from Maryland; Mr. Stallings, of Alabama, and Gen. Joseph Wheeler, of Alabama.

Live Stock Convention.

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 19.—The first national live stock convention of the twentieth century, the third annual meeting of the National Live Stock association, which is to convene in this city January 16, gives every indication of being one of the most important gatherings of live stock men and those interested in the various branches of industry ever held in the United States. From information so far received by the general committee, it is estimated that there will be not less than 5,000 delegates and visitors present.

Protests Sent to Turkey.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Earnest remonstrances have been addressed to the Turkish government by the United States against the enforcement of arbitrary regulations calculated to exclude American flour from the Turkish dominions. It is presumed by the authorities that the adoption of these regulations is in compliance with the wishes of the agrarians of Turkey, who will naturally be benefited by the closing of the Turkish door to American flour.

Noted Engineer Dead.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—Walter Shanly, a well-known civil engineer, died Sunday at his home in this city, aged 80 years. He constructed the Hoosac mountain tunnel and was general manager of the Grand Trunk for four years. He was associated with the development of the St. Lawrence canal system.

The Typewriter Invention.

A Statistician has proved that the invention of the typewriter has given employment to 500,000 people, but he fails to state how many cases of weak stomachs and dyspepsia it has induced. All people of sedentary occupation need Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It helps nature to bear the strain which ensues from confinement and it is a wonderful medicine. No one realizes this more keenly than the man or woman who has been cured of stomach trouble by its use.

Not Good Kickers.

I never heard but one Porto Rican man make a kick about anything. I was sitting on the hotel veranda at Ponce one day when a merchant came down the street to see me. There was a vicious bull tearing about the street, and the animal got after the merchant and run him a block and gave him a toss which landed him on the veranda, almost at my feet. Of course I went to his assistance, thinking him seriously hurt, but it turned out that he had come off almost without a bruise. I began to congratulate him over his escape, but he interrupted me with:

"Senor, I like it not. The bull should have rolled me into the ditch, instead of tossing me up here. Never before was I tossed upon this veranda, and I can't make it out."—Washington Post.

They Are Finer Than Ever.

House-cleaning, in most homes, comes but once a year—in the spring—but it comes twice a year for the North-Western Limited Trains. Twice a year both these famous trains are run into the shops for thorough overhauling and cleaning, and such a cleaning as they receive. Every bit of woodwork, nickel and brass is rubbed and polished, all the mattresses and springs are made over, the upholstering is done over, new paint and varnish, and many skilled mechanics finally turn out two brand new trains. In fact, the daily cleaning these trains receive in Minneapolis and Chicago is much more thorough than the most tidy housewife gives her home.

These two famous trains of the North-Western Line have just received their annual house-cleaning and are fresher, brighter and finer than they ever were. They run every night between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago—one going, one coming—and still are worthy the common and well deserved opinion that they are the most comfortable, elegant and easy riding trains in the world.

The Ruling Passion with Him.

"Elvira is upstairs getting ready," said the little brother to the stout caller. "I'll go and tell her to hurry up."

"Thank you," said the stout caller. "Tell her to hurry up or to hurry down, just as you think best. Anything to reduce my wait."—Somerville Journal.

Care of the Hands In Winter.

To keep the hands in good condition in cold weather care must be given them. Gloves should be worn when engaged in house work, or going out in the open air. They should be washed in tepid water with Ivory soap, and carefully dried on a soft towel. Too frequent washing, or extremes of heat or cold should be avoided.

My Mother Had Consumption

"My mother was troubled with consumption for many years. At last she was given up to die. A neighbor told her not to give up but try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. She did so and was speedily cured, and is now in the enjoyment of good health." D. P. Jolly, Feb. 2, 1899. Avoca, N. Y.

Cures Hard Coughs

No matter how hard your cough is or how long you have had it, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best thing you could possibly take. But it's too risky to wait until you have consumption, for sometimes it's impossible to cure this disease. If you are coughing today, don't wait until tomorrow, but get a bottle of Cherry Pectoral at once and be relieved. It strengthens weak lungs.

—For good chinaware, fancy cups and saucers, vases etc., suitable for Xmas presents, call on G. P. Schaffer.

—Our energetic music dealer, C. M. Conzet, disposed of a fine lot of Christmas carrols Thursday, to George Sutton.

—The Presbyterian social held in the City Hall Wednesday evening, was quite a success. All of the articles on sale by the aid society were sold.

—The shortest days of the year are now here and Minnesota fall is still with us. The most glorious fall in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

—Having bought a very large amount of Xmas goods for Spot cash, we are bound to supply all comers if prices will do it. C. H. Green & Co.

—The public school will have a holiday vacation for two weeks beginning with today. Several of the teachers will visit their homes during this time.

—The Ladies Aid sociable at the home of J. D. Young was well patronized and a very pleasant evening spent. Receipts, $7 to reduce the parsonage debt.

—The backbone of winter hasn't yet arrived. Nobody seems very anxious to have it come except a few merchants who are tired of seeing their customers about in summer wear.

—The St. Paul Carnival Association has been incorporated and has sent out circulars advertising a grand carnival of fund to be held in the first or second week of February. Everybody invited.

—The regular annual meeting of the Delano Cemetery Association is to be held on the 4th Monday in January, which will be the 22nd. Officers are to be elected. Let lot owners attend the meeting.

—That unsightly old outhouse and coal shed, formerly at the east end of the depot has been torn down and removed. Thanks to the visit of one of the railroad officials whose business it is to look after such things.

--We are headquarters for all kind of Xmas goods, such as, Trees, Candies, Nuts and all kind of presents for old and young. Can trim trees for the Church or Family Circle.
C. H. Green & Co.

—Warren Merriman is about again having recovered from his kick by a horse. He says it looks as if a kind Providence had led him to arrange on purpose to receive the sharp stroke of the horses hoof without being killed.

—Laborers wages on the Great Northern have been cut down 12 per cent just as winter comes on, but the price of a ticket from Delano to Minneapolis is 84 cents just the same. "It's a poor rule that don't work both ways."

—We are headquarters for groceries. Here are a few snaps we have to offer till after Xmas:

30 lbs of Rice for	$1.00
20 lbs Prunes for	1.00

XXXX or Lions Coffee, 10 cts per pkg.
C. H. Green & Co.

—Don't forget the basket social at the Odd Fellow's Hall, tonight. The ladies will bring a basket filled with edibles for two, which are to be sold at auction to the highest bidder. Everybody come prepared to bid. The receipts go on the M. E. church debt, and this will be the last social for that cause.

—The Methodists are working hard to clean up all their debts to Jan. 1, 1900. It is expected that the mortgages will be burned on the last night of this year. They have large congregations to hear Rev. Thompson, who works as hard for the saving of souls as he does for saving the church property, and that is saying considerable.

—Mufflers, Handkerchiefs and the like for presents, at G. P. Schaffer's.

--Rev. Thompson has shown himself an adept in soliciting and preparing advertisements as well as raising church debts and preaching, as evidenced by the neat folder containing the cards of 26 business houses in town and the announcement of Dr. Forbes visit to Delano. Rev. Thompson is a genuine hustler, all along the line for good.

—Please remember there is but two more weeks to buy those calendars to help pay the mortgage on the M. E. church at Delano, only 5 cents each, and you can say when you look at the little calendar, this helped pay the debt on the M. E. church at Delano. The mortgage will be burned the first of 1900, so all who have no calendar get one, and those who have one tell your friends about it.

—A wonderful amount of argument has been made as to whether or not the 20th century begins with Jan. 1, 1900 or with Jan. 1, 1901. It is easily figured. But you must reason from correct premises in order to arrive at right conclusions. If a child was born on the first day of the first year of the first century, he would have to live a full twelve months before he would be 1 year old; the whole year would be called the year 1; he would have to live a full 100 years before he would be a century old, and the year 100 would have to be completed before the century was closed. If it takes a full hundred years to make a century, it must require 1900 full years to complete the 19th century. Jan. 1, 1901 then, begins the 20th century.

School Notes.

School will close Friday, this week, for a two weeks vacation. All of the teachers living out of town will spend the holidays at home. Prof. Carleton will hold arithmetic classes for the upper rooms during this time, to fit them for examinations.

A couple of boys remained after school for playing in the library.

The question was asked in the third room how many bones were in the body. A pupil raised her hand, and when asked said 44.

Dr. Catlin gave several lectures in the school this week on physiology and hygiene.

"It is the 1st person; it is the 2nd person; it is the 3rd person." The answer given by a rhetoric class scholar, to a question asking in what person a word was.

The Virgil class held a sunset session Wednesday evening, a la geometry class.

In the ancient history class, one of the pupils said Christ was born in the 14th century; another said the Roman Emperor Caligula was a religious fanatic and cut off his head and put it on Jupiter so the people would worship it; and still another said Mark Anthony committed suicide and afterwards found out that Cleopatra was still alive.

C. M. Conzet and W. H. Frazee were school visitors this week.

Following is the literary programme for Friday afternoon:

Song by the school; reading, Charles Bentz; solo, Mollie Maxfield; essay, Frank Gabrielson; duet, Lotta Sleight and Katie Frank; solo, Miss Cotton; reading, Nellie Sutton; dialogue; critics report, Mr. Carleton.

Personal.

Emil Zierman is having a run of Typhoid fever.

Dr. Harry Halgrenof Watertown visited Delano this week.

Miss Blanche Rader visited city friends the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Hawker returned from the city Saturday morning after a short visit.

Henry Tuvie, of Hanover, was shaking hands with old Delano friends today.

Miss Allie Murphy, of Annandale, is spending a short time with Delano friends.

Miss Kohler passed through town, on her way home to Watertown, where she will spend her vacation.

Mrs. John Haffner who made a protracted visit with Delano relatives has returned home to Mooreton N. Dokato.

Miss Viola Cunningham went to the city for a couple days visit, and will meet her brother Prof. E. M. Cunningham.

Walter Carleton visited Maple Plain last Wednesday. He took along a few tickets for Rev. Ford's Lecture and sold six.

John Stein came home Monday morning from Fergus Falls, improved in health. His wife met him in Minneapolis. John says Fergus Falls is a nice place and the hospital authorities nice people.

County Cullings.

The county commissioners held a special session, Dec. 15. Present Hudek, Lauzer, Johnson and Reems.

County roads were ordered in Victor and Woodland; Frankfort and Monticello; Clearwater and Silver Creek. Damages were assessed.

Auctioneer license was granted Wm. H. Helm, Charles W. Fogle, and S. A. Gordon.

On the 13th, it was resolved that the County Treasurer be instructed to make a tour of the county for the purpose of collecting taxes during the months of January and February, 1900, and he be instructed to print the notice in the official paper.

Time of hearing school petitions was set for Jan. 3 1900, Johnston Mealey, Robert Mealey, Ann Mealey, Joseph Archambault, Jr. P. A. Holmberg.

For Jan. 4, Charles Dailley.

Resolved that at the first meeting in Jan. the board will receive sealed bids for printing for 1900.

Division of funds for newly formed school districts was made.

The bond of Gillet, Herzog & Co. in the sum of $3,000 for building Mill creek bridge, was approved.

The bill of Cokato town for $200 was recommended to the State Auditor.

Petitions for abatement of taxes was recommended to State Auditor, James Madigan, Mrs. A. P. Webber, George Sherer. Rejected Homer Sook and Peter Steffens.

Usual claims were allowed.

Board adjourned to meet in regular session, Jan. 2, 1900.

The political pot of the county is said to be beginning to simmer. Can it be because of the matter in it is beginning to warm up of itself, or on account of the heating force put under it? In our opinion the latter is the cause.—Cokato Enterprise.

County republicans are having quite a time over whose vote should be taken as a basis for apportioning delegates to the coming conventions. Some of them don't wan't to have it made on the vote of William Henry for governor. What's the matter with Mr. Eustis? He has for years been the boss quarter horse in howling republicanism through this neck of woods; and to think, when he runs for chief executive of the state that he is so far distanced as not even to have his vote used for a basis for apportionment of delegates to the next conventions. Base ingratitude!

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy truth is not so keen
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude."
* * * * * *
"Freeze, freeze thou bitter sky,
Thou dos't not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot;
Though thou the waters work,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remembered not."

Thirty-one farmers in the vicinity of Buffalo raised as many acres of sugar beets the past season and marketed the same at the factory of the Minnesota Sugar Beet Company at St. Louis Park. Two hundred and eleven tons of beets were shipped which, after paying for seeds and freight on the same, netted $4.00 per ton. The largest yield per acre is reported by Henry Peterson and O. E. Stromberg who raised a trifle over fourteen tons to the acre. There is considerable labor connected with raising the beets and is not regarded as especially profitable by those who have large farms and find it necessary to employ labor but the small farmer who has plenty of help finds it a profitable crop. It is is thought that about the same acreage of beets will be raised here the coming year.—Standard.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LAWS GOVERNING THE COLLECTION OF VITAL STATISTICS.

DUTY OF PARENTS AND KEEPERS OF PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.—"Parents shall give notice to town clerk or health officer of the births and deaths of their children; every householder shall give like notice of every birth and death happening in the house; the oldest person next of kin shall give such notice of the death of his kindred; the keeper or other proper officer of every work house, poorhouse, reform school, jail, prison, hospital, asylum, or other public or charitable institution, shall give like notice of every birth or death happening among the persons under his charge. Whoever neglects or refuses to give such notice for the period of ten (10) days after the occurrence of a birth or death shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than five ($5) nor more than twenty-five ($25) dollars."

DUTY OF PHYSICIANS AND MIDWIVES.—"Any physician having attended a person during his last illness shall, within ten (10) days after the decease of such person, furnish, for registration, to such clerk or health officer, a certificate of the duration of the last illnes, name of the deceased, his age, the disease of which the person died, and the date of his decease. Any physician or midwife having attended a case of confinement shall, within ten (10) days thereafter furnish for registration, to such clerk or health officer, a certificate of the date of birth, sex and the color of the child, with the names, dates and places of birth of the parents. If any physician or midwife neglects to make such certificate he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten ($10.00) dollars nor more than fifty ($50.00) dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than ten (10) days nor more than thirty (30) days."

Norwood Times: H. H. Bonniwell of Hutchinson is said to have almost decided to make the race for congress in this district and we are satisfied if he does and the fusion forces are united it will be all day with the good looking "Joel," because "Bonny" towers above him even as a poser.

ROCKFORD.

Dec. 18, 1899.

A card from C. L. Angell says that T. M. Cathcart, a former resident of Rockford died at Litchfield, December 14, 1899, aged 72 years. He had been sick about a year with cancer of the stomach.

M. G. Waren will leave here on Tuesday for a three monhhs visit with relatives in Illinois and Indiana. His daughters Lizzie and May will accompany him as far as Minneapolis on a weeks visit to their sister, Mrs. Welek, and family.

Mat Ewing is still in Cumberland county, Ill. His brother died soon after he arrived there.

John W. Walker has sold his farm in the North part of this town for $10,000 to the Schlife brothers: the stock, tools, and a part of the crops going with the farm. John has moved to Minneapolis. He resigned the office of Chairman of Board of Supervisors. The board of appointment has selected O. W. Crawford to fill the vacancy.

The town has a lawsuit on hand vs. Thomas Sook for obstructing a public highway or for damages to a road or something of that sort.

The steam wood sawer is in and about the village sawing up the winter stove wood, that is in fashion and has been the past two years; and saw buck and buck saw have gone to roost with grain cradle, grass sythe, hand rake and other impliments of a past age.

Our village school will take a vacation from Dec. 25, 1899 to Jan. 2, 1900. The schools this year are in all things model schools. The teachers are well qualified and are busy workers. We have watched them closely and do not see or hear any cause for complaint. The heating by a hot air furnace is a great improvement on base stove and is appreciated by teachers and pupils. Parents and all others interested in good schools should make the school an occasional visit. Go so as to be at the opening exercises; the singing will pay you for the visit. The pupils have made wonderful progress in singing, an essential part of education.

All owners of Lots in Elmwood Cemetary are requested to remember that the Annual meeting of the Association will be held at the G. A. R. Hall on Monday evening, January 1, 1900, at 7:30. Business of importance is to be transacted. Let every lot owner attend.

A Great 57 ct Offer.

This is frequently called "woman's century," and the appellation becomes significant when one considers the difference in woman's position today from what it was a hundred years ago. She is rapidly becoming a force in the business of the world, as well as in the world of art and letters, yet her home interests have not seemed to suffer in consequence, as may be proven by the increase in publications for the housemaker during the past few years. The HOUSEKEEPER, established in 1877, was one of the first journals to recognize woman's demand for a periodical devoted to progressive methods in housekeeping. "Helpful, Instructive and Progressive" has always been its motto. It is a thirty-six page monthly illustrated with half-tone plates, and full of good things from cover to cover. It tells the homemaker how to cook, how to dress, how to do many other things and it also keeps her fairly well informed concerning current events, besides giving a large amount of good fiction and special articles on timely topics. Upwards of 140,000 subscribers pronounce it to be of the best of "domestic" magazines. It is certainly a wonderful 50 cents' worth.

A Cook Book Free.

The Housekeeper also publishes the the famous "Buckeye Cookery," which has proven a boon to thousands of housewives. It is a standard up to date illustrated work of 540 large pages. More than 750,000 copies have been sold by subscription at $1.75 per copy. The publishers will give a free copy of this book, bound in strong leather paper covers, to all who subscribe for the magazine, provided they will pay the cost of mailing, which is seven cents. Send 57 cents for The Housekeeper and "Buckeye Cookery." Address is Minneapolis, Minn.

Imperialism for You.

The recent decision of a Justice in the United States district court that a minor over 18 years of age does not require the consent of the parents to enlist in the navy, and when once enlisted must serve his time out in spite of the protest of his mother, and the refusal of a writ of habeas corpus in the case, will set some people to thinking. Is Uncle Sam to send around men to coax our boys, not yet out of their teens, to go into war against our protests, and refuse habeas corpus proceedings? Is Uncle Sam's case so desperate as this? Are the main supports of many a widowed mother with a large family to be enticed away from home by the glitter and show of army life, and her rights, the rights of every American, to be trampled under foot in order to get soldiers to chase people away from their native homes in lands across the ocean, under the guise of benevolent assimilation"? God forbid that our country should continue so unjust a cause. A cause which our young men, not arrived at the legal age, do not favor enough to enlist in. Let every American demand for the widow and the orphan in our own land his or her rights; rights inherited from the fathers of our Republic. Let not the right of a mother to demand her boy not yet of legal age, be refused.

We are not familiar with the circumstance in the case cited. But it is enough to set our mothers, and our citizens to thinking! To thinking about preserving their own rights! To demanding that their servants, the officers of this government execute the laws of our own land, before resorting to such measures to get charge of other lands and other peoples.

Among our Exchanges.

Litchfield Independent: It remains to be determined by the nation's vote next year whether or not the American people will renounce the principles Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and Lincoln, and adopt those of McKinley, Hanna and Cecil Rhodes.

Duluth Herald: The question of Gen. Wheeler's right to hold both a seat in congress and a commission in the army has been properly raised again. Gen. Wheeler is a good man, an able man, an excellent congressman and a fine soldier, but he is trying to do too much. He should resign one of the offices he now holds. If he desires to stay in the army let him resign his seat in congress. If he wants to stay in congress, let him quit the Philippines and resign his commission. His present course is in direct violation of the constitution.

The School Union from the Teachers' Standpoint.

My standpoint emphasizes the value to the teacher. Just a word considering the earnestness which both parents and teachers should show in the subject.

"Our responsibility is balanced with yours in the training of our coming men and women: by giving the best that is in us to them, we ought to develop the best physically, morally and mentally in the children.

"Characters, plastic as yet are being formed by our training—a training for which we are held to account at some future time, when the child's character is formed. In this training, our points of view are different, but our aim the same. This common cause, the training and development of the child shows us the need of co-operation. That parents are interested in the school we admit, but we deplore the lack of expression of their interest.

"Teachers are public servants. All serving the public are subject to inspection and criticism; we cannot complain of the lack of criticism, but we can say, we are gennerally criticised without preceeded inspection. Just criticism is of value to both parent and teacher; by it we better our work, or if we are not capable of doing so, you seek our removal.

"We ought not to have to invite parents to the school room; it is your right to come. You visit the business, the church, the club the social gathering.—but how many visit the school? For six hours a day, of each school week, the child is under school influence. Can you afford not to know under what influence?

"Consider the teacher we have from 40 to 65 pupils in a room, a gathering of as many various dispositions and natures,—each child a composite of father and mother. To the teacher, the school is before the individual, the common weal is first considered and the child must adapt himself to it. Certain restrictions are necessity in order that good work may result, and thus arises the so called school routine. The child takes its place among other children and we observe his relation to his schoolmates, as well as to ourselves.

"See the position of the child—he represents a home where restraints and privileges are more or less flexable; here instead of being a unit in the whole he is often the whole the ideal. In other words, the individual is emphasized in the home, his varying moods are considered and there is little restraints such as he meets with in school. When he enters the school room he always looks fore more consideration from the teacher, finds the restraint irksome. Here we see the first need of co-operation of the parents with the teacher, in aiding the child over his change and helping it to understand various causes and conditions.

"Criticism and trouble between parents and teachers arise often because fathers and mothers fail to appreciate the necessities of the home and the parents' trials. "Come let us reason together." We need your counsel and we need your help. With the grade teacher especially, each year brings a new set of pupils. Unless we meet you, the parents, we must waste some time in reading the pupils, in understanding their individuality; even then we may be unjust. For instance, defects in hearing, eyesight, peculiarities of disposition, etc., not being known to the teacher, may often result in unjust punishment to the child and the teacher's receiving criticism from the parent. If we meet the parents and they tell us of such defects, we can be more just and serve the child to greater advantage.

"Teachers often feel that parents fail to co-operate with them in helping the child to understand the reason for such discipline and its strict obedience. The home ought to teach that order is heaven's first law; parents should see that their children are punctual, should provide time and place for home study and see that the child observes them. can encourage the child and aid the teacher by showing an interest in the child's work as indicated by his reports, and by holding the child responsible to the parents as well as to the teacher for his school work.

"The parents ought to support the teacher until he or she proves to be unworthy of their support. If the parents are critical be shure the pupil will reflect the same spirit in the school. It is hard for the child to give his best efforts to one whom his perants disapprove. 'Honor thy father and thy mother'. If a teacher is a substitute for the parent why not honor thy teacher?

"Our union is of value because we may discuss questions of equal interest; problems for the parents and for the teacher. In the school room we are constantly in contact with immature minds to which we must give, we need the stimulus of mature minds to give us contributions. We from our standpoint, feel that a deeper sympathy between parents and teachers will result from union. The welfare of the child will be promoted by depening his interest in his work: we will stand in a more just light and can do more thorough work.

"Each should strive to consider from the standpoint of the other. Thoughtfulness and kindliness should find expression in the home of the school and in the school before the home.

ALICE L. ARNOLD"

Independence.

The evening shades of the 19th century are casting their last shadows over all the world, and in another week we will be writing 1900. It would take a large volume to write up the history of the United States during the last century. During this period we have been subjected to many casualties, wars, rumors of wars and misplaced confidence in many branches of industry, but as a nation "we still live" and our banner of liberty still floats from the dome of every state capitol. We are tormented and afflicted but not cast down. The currency bill has passed the House by a strict party vote with ten or eleven democrats as an appendage. The vote stood 190 for the bill and 150 against. The senate takes it up immediately after holidays, and it will then soon go forth as an edict from the government, that the millionaire and the gold standard is one and inseperable.

That familiar text of scripture which reads like this, "The love of money is the root of all evil" (not money itself) never struck me so forcibly as now. Everybody is after the dollar from the little boot black up to crowned heads, and officers of state. Money, nowdays seems to have a great purchasing power. It buys honor, position, reputation, and many other things too numerous to mention. Men are looking after money and this world's goods more than after salvation.

Everything is forming into a trust or combination in order to bring about civilization, raise prices on their goods, exacting more and more out of the consumer. Just how much of this the people can stand we can not tell, but when it does fall it will be like the fall of Babylon. In the prosperous days of slavery in this country the slave holders of the South thought to build themselves up into an aristocratic class and they would become the dictators of the government and for a time they seemed to usurp that authority until they were called down by Lincoln, Grant, Sherman, and the war of the rebellion. The institution of slavery being sectional could not long exist under a republican form of government. It became too unpopular as the western territory was settled up and slavery and involuntary servitude had to go, but in order to destroy the institution of slavery much money and many thousand lives had to be sacrificed, and by the shedding of much blood the fires still burn bright upon the altars of liberty, but how long the fires will continue to burn under existing circumstances, we are unable to tell, for we are no prophet nor a disciple of Jonah.

There is another institution now that we have to contend with and that is the money institution. It is universal and is getting in its work all along the line. While this money institution may not be so fiendish in appearance as slavery, yet it wields a power and influence that is hard to overcome, and so today we have an aristocratic money class dictating to our Congress and to our Legislatures, things pro and con. While money is a thing very useful yet it is calculated to do much harm if not properly handled. By unprincipled agents it stalks abroad at the noon hour in broad day light and gets in its ready work, and at midnight it gets in its bloody work. It was money that killed Catherine Ging. It was money that let Menage go out a free man. Money should not be a corruption fund, but an agent to bring to our homes comfort and pleasure. While all of us like money in our business it should not be an agent to keep sin and iniquity continually burning.

But, Mr. Editor, sometimes we think the man with a hobby is the only man that is really happy. Winter's cold nor summer's heat disturb his repose. To him the birds are always singing and in his imagination there is always music in the air.

The brewers want tax reduced on beer. They want it put from $2 down to $1 per barrel and there has been a delegation already to Washington to see if they can't get this brought about and no doubt they will get it. Take tax off of beer and keep it on lumber. Men do not really have to have beer in their business, but lumber they do. But everybody will not be happy in this country until we get the millenium, then beer will be prohibited from being sold on the ground.

Yours in hope of 16 to 1.

This is frequntly called "woman's century," and the appellation becomes significant when one considers the deverance in woman's position today from what it was a hundred years ago. She is rapidly becoming a force in the business of the world, as well as in the world of art and letters, yet her home interests have not seemed to suffer in consequence, as may be proven by the increase in publications for the housemaker during the past few years. The HOUSEKEEPER, established in 1877, was one of the first journals to recognize woman's demand for a periodical devoted to progressive methods in housekeeping. "Helpful, Instructive and Progressive" has always been its motto. It is a thirty six page monthly illustrated with half tone plates, and full of good things from cover to cover. It tells the homemaker how to cook, how to dress, how to do many other things and it also keeps her fairly well informed concerning current events, besides giving a large amount of good fiction and special articles on timely topics. Upwards of 140,000 subscribers pronounce it to be of the best of "domestic" magazines. It is certainly a wonderful 50 cents' worth.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 22, 1899.

Senator Pettigrew rubbed it in on the republicans about their "studied policy to suppress information" so that they became ashamed of themselves and allowed his resolution asking that the full report of the Commission which investigated the conduct of the war with Spain be sent to the Senate to be adopted without a division, after its phraseology had been slightly amended by Senator Cockerill, but not before Mr. Pettigrew had said: "My belief is that we ought to have another commission to investigate the entire conduct of the Spanish war.

While no man objects to the official honors paid to the memory of gallant Gen. Henry W. Lawton, who was killed in the Philippines this week, and who was as brave an officer as ever wore a uniform, thousands object to the picayune war on these Islands, which is costing this country the lives of such men as Lawton. It is all right to issues general order announcing his death and praising his record, and to contribute money to pay off the mortgage on the home of his widow and children, but that does not hide the fact that he lost his life in a war that might have been avoided.

Senator Jones, Chairman, has called a meeting of the Democratic National Committee for Washington's birthday, to select the time and place for the democratic national convention.

Before the adjournment of Congress for the Christmas recess important resolutions were offered in both House and Senate, by democrats, dealing with the Philippine question. Senator Bacon's resolution is being much talked of. It meets all the objections which have been raised to our leaving the Philippines, and allowing the natives to establish an independent government. It provides that this government shall declare its intention and secure a guarantee of the perpetual independence of the Islands through treaties with the leading nations of the world, which would do away with the possibility of fighting among European nations to secure possession of the Islands, should we withdraw, which has been held up by many as one of the principal reasons why we should keep the Islands. It was Senator Bacon who drew up the democratic resolution at the last session of Congress, which was only defeated by the vote of the Vice President. Representative DeArmond offered a resolution in the House, quoting the declaration of independence, declaring that our government has no Constitutional right to maintain colonial dependencies: that the expansion of our commerce should not be dependent upon a policy of imperialism involving subjection and annexation of Asiatic colonies, and that we are opposed to the retention of the Philippines, and that it is our purpose to consent to their independence as soon as a stable government shall be established by them and toward the prompt establishment of such a government we pledge our friendly assistance.

Close friends of Boss Platt say that he is laying wires to try to prevent the nomination of Secretary Root, who has been chosen by Boss Hanna and Mr McKinley, for Vice President on the McKinley ticket. According to this same authority, he expects to succeed by having the New York delegation to the republican National Convention not only refuse to endorse Root, but present Timothy Woodruff, for the nomination. It will be a good thing for the democrats if this information turns out to be correct, as a fight between the Platt machine in New York, and the Hanna-McKinley machine will give the democrats a good fighting chance to carry the state.

No objection was raised to the swearing in of Senator Allen, of Nebraska, who took a seat on the democratic side and who will take a prominent part in the financial discussion of the Senate substitute for the House gold standard bill, which has been reported to the Senate and will be called up and given the right of way as unfinished business on January 4.

Secretary Gage submitted to Congress estimates for deficiencies in appropriations for the current fiscal year, mostly in the War Department, on account of the war in the Philippines, aggregating more than $50,000,000. That is the sort of thing that imperialism brings.

Senator Tillman says he intends making a speech soon after Congress reassembles in favor of his resolution for the immediate withdrawal of all American claims to the Philippine Islands, but he doesn't expect the resolution to be adopted, because "at the present time the senate would vote down the Declaration of Independence and the Ten Commandments, if they were offered by a democrat."

Representative Rhea, of Ky., wants the democrats of the House to hold a caucus when Congress reassembles to decide upon united party opposition to the Reed rules. He said on the subject: "I do not expect to see the gag removed. I realize that the republicans have us in their grip, and that they will continue to hold us as in a vise, but I do expect to see the democrats sufficiently aroused to a sense of the indignity being heaped upon them as to kick in concert and continue to do so until the country is made to thoroughly understand our utterly hopeless condition to influence legislation in the House, which is practically in the hands of the speaker."

The First Orphan.

WHEN Art Halderson, the architect and builder, went out to superintend the erection of St. Hilda's orphanage in the grove west of the city he had to ride three miles in his cart beyond the limits of the most exploratory street car.

"The orphans will never find this place out," he commented to himself.

It was a fact that St. Hilda's appeared to be without neighbors, and for that reason land was cheap and a playground a thing easy of achievement.

The contract had been given to Halderson later in the year than he could have desired, and he saw grave difficulties ahead of him if he did not get the walls and roof in place before the severe weather. So he put a large force of men on and worked them hard and kept himself at the task of pushing the work early and late.

It must be admitted that when the sun shone golden and the haze rested over the prairie Halderson would much have preferred being on the back of a good horse to superintending the laying of girders or the erection of chimneys. The summer, with her work all done, was ready for a holiday, and seemed to call to all her children to come out and laugh with her amid the goldenrod and grapes. Perhaps the young architect might have found the call irresistible had there been anyone to run with him down the shining road to holiday land, but there was no one but the serious mannered workmen near him. He had an ache for a companion. Life was seriously lonely with him since he had left his old associates and come half across the continent to put his abilities to the test at Chicago.

A week of wind and sodden rain took the glory out of the landscape and left the grass and the leaves all brown. The oak leaves lay thick upon the orphanage ground and the place and the work alike seemed melancholy to Halderson.

SHE WOULD SPEED BEFORE HIM.

Sad little faces seemed to peer at him out of the unfinished windows; slow little feet seemed to kick at the leaves. The pathos of life in general and of an orphan's life in particular haunted the young man's thoughts.

One day when the sky was drab and the wind kept up a shrilly shriek through the denuded trees, and the leaves were piled in mounds, he became conscious of a little figure moving along the outskirts of the grove. It was much the color of the leaves, and as it crept along, peering in curiously, Halderson had a curious idea that it might be the spirit of the orphans come to look at their future habitation. The little thing had a sylph-like motion, and now and then some caprice got the better of her dignity and she scampered among the leaves like a kitten, making a great rustling. Her tangled brown hair streamed upon her shoulders, escaping from a tiny hood which she had long since outgrown. Her little frock was fringed at the bottom as the result of impulsive adventures. Halderson was quite fascinated with the antics of this little earth creature—for she seemed as irresponsible as a gnome and as grotesque—and he made up his mind to form her acquaintance. This was not easy to do, for no sooner would he approach her than she would speed before him on the lightest of feet in and out among the trees. Not caring to make himself too undignified before his men, Halderson desisted, and went about his work. Then the leaf-girl drew quite near—so near that he could see her eyes and her little tanned, eerie face.

At twilight she disappeared, and though Halderson looked all about him as he drove home for some house in which she would be likely to live, he could find none. There was, it is true, a group of tar-paper shanties occupied by graders, half a mile to the west, but it did not seem to him that she could have come from there. Moreover the shanties had been there since he began his task. Why had the elf not come out when the days were golden and the flowers were in bloom? Why should she wait till the storms came? Did she ride on the autumn wind? Was she the spirit of the faded leaves?

It was foolish of a sensible and hard-working young man to be haunted by these thoughts at night, but because he was lonesome and not much happened in his life Halderson dreamed of the matter, and, waking early, devoted an hour of reverie to it. The child was so illusive—that was what diverted him.

The morning of the next day wore away without his seeing her, but just before the early autumn dusk she came again. He heard her scuffling in the leaves before he saw her, but when he turned, she waved a tantalizing hand at him, and seemed to vanish in the falling shadows of the day.

"Where does that child come from?" he asked one of the men as casually as he could.

"She's the daughter of one of the graders," replied the man. "I know her father—he's a Dane. His family only came out here two days ago. Jorgenson got tired of backing it, I suppose."

That night Halderson drove to the town's edge and got his supper, and then he drove back over the prairie road again, past the orphanage, to where the tar paper huts were. The night was crisp, and the stars were out, and beside the bed of the projected railroad he saw a huge camp fire. It looked wild and inviting, and Halderson urged his horse on. A sound of music greeted his ears, too—music of fiddle and clappers. As he drew closer he saw the men and women dancing about the fire. There were so many more men than women that they were under the necessity of taking each other for partners, and, locked in each other's arms, the brawny Scandinavians whirled and galloped about on the hard earth. Some tiny children capered about, too, screaming and laughing. And without any partner, quite by herself, went the leaf girl, circling and bending, tossing her pliant arms—the impersonation of the wild, windy night.

Halderson, who had more than his share of northern blood—considering that he always thought of himself as an American—felt the homesickness go out of him suddenly. He waited for no welcome. He tied his horse and joined in the innocent revel, and presently he and the leaf-girl were teasing each other about the fire, he always pursuing, she always vanishing.

The women made black coffee afterward, and there was bread and meat upon it for refreshment, and then Halderson drove away in the biting frost. The doors of the little tar paper houses were closed. But lights gleamed from the windows and twinkled in friendly fashion at the architect as he went on his way.

After that the leaf-girl and he used to talk together at the edge of the grove. But she was as coy as a squirrel that chatters at one from a lofty branch. She brought him little messages, such as:

"There was ice on the ditch this morning. I tried it with my toe. It almost held me. When it is hard I shall skate. Halderson could imagine that she would skate like the wind. He thought to himself that he would like to build an iceboat and put her in it under the stars. Once she said:

"I cannot laugh any more. I cannot run to-day. Something says to me: 'Ingebord, you are not to laugh and run to-day.'"

"That is called a presentiment," said Halderson. "Your people are forever having them. But presentiments never come true. They are old wives' tales."

"I do not know any old wives. I only know I cannot run." She held her little head down and walked sadly among the shadows. Halderson followed her, and laid a hand on her shoulder.

"You must laugh to-morrow," said he. "It is wrong for you to be sad. There are some things, like squirrels, and birds, and you, who ought always to be gay." But she walked slowly with drooping head for all of what he said.

The next morning brought news to him of a bad dynamite explosion among the roadmakers. The leaf-girl's father was killed, and his wife was only Ingebord's stepmother. At twilight she had not come, so he went over to her. She was sitting in the hut beside the dead man, keeping watch.

"I am saying all the prayers," she said, gravely. "I suppose he must be much afraid at being dead. It must be hard getting used to God." She fell to praying again, and Halderson went out.

But it was he who saw to a proper burial for Jorgenson and the two other unfortunate victims of the accident. Ingebord was grateful, and came down to tell him so.

"But what am I to do now?" she inquired. "My stepmother, she must work to care for her own children. She cannot also work for me." She looked with mournful eyes at the murky sky, and the wind blew her sad little garments about her.

"I know," said Halderson, with an inspiration. "See, to-morrow the good sisters move in the far wing there of the orphanage. It is ready for them—heated and lighted, and all. You must be the first orphan. It will bring luck."

She started at the word orphan, and she turned red at the thought of the charity. Halderson saw and understood.

"I shall see you every day then, little one. Come to bring luck to the good sisters. I will tell them you are a mascot. And I will give a gift to the sisters—a gift for you. So it will be no charity. Is it agreed?"

The leaf-girl looked at him wistfully. Then the sadness went out of her eyes. She knew that she had found a friend.

"It shall be as you say," she said, simply. "I do not mind saying 'thanks' to you."

"You shall always be my little earth person," he said; "my little creature of the drifting leaves. I shall watch over you as long as you live."

So she was content, and every day when she sat at her studies or did her tasks among the gentle sisters she knew that without one who was strong and true, watching over her.—Chicago Tribune.

There Is Lying Somewhere.

"Figures," said the bookkeeper, "never lie."

"No," replied the expert accountant, "but the people who use them do."

Then he returned to his task of uncovering shortages.—Chicago Post.

One of the farm journals remarks that the Indiana man whose horse ate up his pocketbook containing $65 may be justified in claiming that it is not always profitable to have money in live stock.

A new cure for rheumatism has been discovered in New South Wales. It is called the whale bath. The treatment consists in depositing the patient in the body of a dead whale. Almost invariably the patient is able to climb right out unassisted. That remarkable cures are reported is not surprising.

A miner in Colorado, disheartened by hard luck, dug a grave for himself with the intention of getting into it and then blowing his brains out. Three feet under the surface of the ground he struck a "pay streak" and sold it the next day for $20,000. If you are thinking of self-destruction, try digging your own grave.

James Eads How, of St. Louis, who has given his fortune of $1,000,000 to the poor, says he was influenced to do this by the incident of the rich young man related in the tenth chapter of St. Mark's gospel. Mr. How is a grandson of James B. Eads, the famous engineer who built the great Mississippi bridge at St. Louis.

Six five-grain capsules of sand after every meal are now prescribed by a Chicago doctor as a cure for dyspepsia, appendicitis and all stomach troubles by "furnishing the digestive apparatus with the grit which man alone of all animals has not the sense to pick up with his food." This is as good a way to bite the dust as any other.

A new machine known as cryptographic typewriter, of which Frederick Sedgwick is the inventor, has been given a public test in Chicago. The machine writes in cipher and translates the matter automatically. It is said to be a marvel of mechanical perfection and has been examined by numerous army officials and business men.

Duncan N. Hood, a son of the famous confederate general, is now fighting with the Boers in South Africa. He is the adopted son of John Morris, a wealthy New Jersey citizen, who at his death left young Hood some money. Hood is a graduate of West Point and at the outbreak of the Spanish war organized the so-called immune regiments which served in Cuba.

The governor of Oklahoma in his annual report, filed in Washington, says that the time is not ripe for the statehood of Oklahoma, and he recommends that it would be best to wait awhile. He believes that the best plan is to join Oklahoma and the Indian territory and make one state of them. Such a state, he says, would be a pride and gratification to its people and to the people of the nation.

When a soldier enlists in the English army he has given him a little volume, containing among other things three blank forms for a will. These are usually found properly made out on the body of the soldiers killed on the battlefield, but often wills are left in other ways. It is related that an English soldier, found dead on the battlefield, had scratched on the inside of his helmet: "All to my wife," using the end of a bullet to write with. The war department held the will to be valid.

Masons from nearly every jurisdiction in the United States participated in the centennial memorial services at Mount Vernon. Washington was buried with masonic honors, and the members of the lodge at Alexandria constituted the main part of the little procession which followed his remains from the residence to the vault at Mount Vernon. The hall at Alexandria where the masons met in Washington's time is much the same that it was in his day, and the apron worn by him is still shown.

The first Mormon woman to enter polygamy died in Salt Lake City recently. Her name was Mrs. E. D. P. Young, and she was the widow of two Mormon prophets. She married Joseph Smith, the first Mormon prophet, at Nauvoo, Ill., with the consent of Smith's first wife. This was shortly after the revelation concerning and commanding polygamy was "handed down from above." After the death of Joseph Smith she married Brigham Young. She died a firm believer in the Divine origin of polygamy.

A new method of domestic refrigeration was shown at the recent international export exposition held in Philadelphia. Instead of delivering blocks of ice to put into the home refrigerators, a sheet iron tank filled with frozen distilled water is delivered and this tank is slipped into the refrigerator. The water in the tank is completely frozen when delivered, of course, and as it melts much more slowly the consumer's expense is not so great. And then, too, the ice water made by the melting ice is held in the tank and assists in keeping things cool.

William L. Decker, of Greenwich, Conn., is certainly an unusual man. He purchased a fine residence property there upon which was located a $5,000 home. It was his intention to build a $25,000 home and to move the house, but he found that the old structure could not be moved without cutting down beautiful shade trees that adorn the place. He sacrificed the value of the house rather than the trees, and had it torn to pieces and removed piecemeal. In these days of merciless destruction of nature's beauty it is pleasing to see that some people have a little respect for it.

The Daughters of the American Revolution in New York city are making a strong effort to save the famous Hamilton trees of St. Nicholas avenue, at One Hundred and Forty-second street. The trees are the ones left of the original 13 planted by Alexander Hamilton to commemorate the 13 original states. It is likely that the society will buy the lot and have it neatly fenced in. If they cannot raise enough money to buy the place the trees will be cut down and a block will be built thereon. We Americans do not pay enough attention to the preservation of such historical valuables.

HIS LIFE WORK DONE.

Death of the Noted Evangelist, Dwight L. Moody.

Passes Away at His Home at East Northfield, Mass.—His Demise Brought on by Overwork.

East Northfield, Mass., Dec. 23.—Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, whose fame was world-wide, died at his home here at noon Friday. His family were gathered at his bedside and the dying man's last moments were spent in comforting them. Early in the day Mr. Moody realized that the end was not far off and talked with his family at intervals, being conscious to the last except for a few fainting spells.

As the noonday hour drew near the watchers at the bedside noted the approach of death. Several times his lips moved as if in prayer, but the articulation was so faint that the words could not be heard. Just as death came, Mr. Moody awoke, as if from slumber, and said, with much joyousness: "I see earth receding; Heaven is opening; God is calling me," and a moment later he expired.

General Breaking Down.

The death of Mr. Moody was not unexpected, although his temporary recovery from illness was hoped for by his relatives and friends. The cause of his death was a general breaking down of his health, due to overwork. His constitution was that of an exceedingly strong man, but his untiring labors had gradually undermined his vitality until that most delicate of organs, the heart, showed signs of weakness.

Sankey Greatly Affected.

New York, Dec. 23.—Ira D. Sankey, who for 27 years was associated in evangelistic work with Mr. Moody, was greatly affected at the news of his death. To a reporter Mr. Sankey told of his work with Mr. Moody from the time they first met, of their tour through England in 1873 and of their preaching and singing in the United States. "You may say," said Mr. Sankey, "that in the death of Mr. Moody the world has lost one of the greatest and noblest men of the age. I have labored with him for the last 27 years, traveling with him by land and sea, and a nobler, braver and wiser soul I never knew. I can apply Prof. Henry Drummond's remark of a friend: 'D. L. Moody was the greatest human I ever met.'"

PERISH BY FLAMES.

Eleven Girls Lose Their Lives at a Christmas Rehearsal at Quincy, Ill.

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 23.—While the school children of St. Francis parochial school, Seventeenth and Vine streets, were rehearsing Friday afternoon for an entertainment to be given next Tuesday evening one of their dresses caught fire from a gas jet and ten minutes later four of them were burned to death, two died an hour later and five others died before midnight. Half a dozen others were burned more or less severely.

The dead are:

Irena Freiburg, May Mavering, Mary Althoff, Bernadina Freund, Colletta Middendorf, Mary Hickey, Wilhelmina Guttendorf, Oliva Timpe, Addie Futterer, Josephine Bohme, Margaret Warner.

All these girls are between nine and eleven years of age. Helen Soebbing and several other teachers, Father Nicholas and Prof. Frank Mushold were painfully burned in trying to save the children.

Will Investigate.

New York, Dec. 26.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Secretary of State Hay will have a thorough investigation made of the reported seizure by British cruisers of several cargoes of American flour off Delagoa bay, South Africa. Instructions have been sent to the American consul at Lourenzo Marques, Portuguese South Africa, directing him to make a thorough inquiry and to do everything in his power to prevent illegal interference with American commerce by either belligerent.

Victim of Heart Trouble.

Milwaukee, Dec. 22.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Fort Atkinson, Wis., says a telegram from Santa Barbara, Cal., announces the death of Dr. Edward H. Williams, senior partner of the Baldwin locomotive works of Pennsylvania. Death was due to heart trouble. Dr. Williams was prominently connected with early railroads in Wisconsin. He was knighted by the king of Norway and Sweden.

Town in Ashes.

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 26.—Nearly three blocks of buildings in the business portion of the town, principally fronting on Vermillion street, were burned early Monday with a loss of about $200,000. The fire broke out in R. C. Libby & Co.'s sawmill, evidently the work of an incendiary, and the entire plant, with planing mill, storehouses, lumber, office, sheds, etc., was consumed.

Gov. Poynter Bereaved.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 26.—William Chapman Poynter, father of Gov. Poynter, died Monday at his home at Albion, aged 79. He was born in Kentucky, lived many years at Eureka, Ill., and has been a resident of Nebraska 15 years. Gov. Poynter was with his father when he died.

AGUINALDO'S WIFE DEAD.

Pursuit of the Filipino Leader Is Hot—Has Crossed Mountains Near Bayombong.

Manila, Dec. 25. — Col. Wilder has telegraphed to Vigan from Bayombong that Aguinaldo has crossed the mountains near Bayombong, going southward. His wife died in a village in that vicinity.

Washington, Dec. 25.—A cablegram from Gen. Otis was received at the war department Saturday, giving the first news for some time of the detachments under Cols. Hare and Howze, who are pursuing Aguinaldo. Gen. Otis' advices indicate that they are close upon the insurgent leader and also state that four of the American prisoners have been retaken, though Lieut. Gilmore is still in the hands of the enemy. Gen. Otis' dispatch follows:

"Manila, Dec. 23.—Gen. Young reports under date of the 21st instant from Vigan that Cols. Hare and Howze were heard from December 17, still in pursuit through the mountains of the insurgent column having our prisoners of whom four captured, Capt. Gilmore remaining prisoner. The insurgents are one day in advance and the pursuit is continued. These pursuing troops have encountered great hardships, but will probably strike Aparri. Two hundred and one Spanish prisoners from Aparri received this morning, 200 more in that section, mostly friars, awaiting transportation to Manila. Entire Sixteenth infantry leaves for Aparri to-morrow for stations from that point as far south as Bayonbong. Batchelder's battalion Twenty-fourth is now on lower Rio Grande in good condition to return to San Jose country, Forty-fourth infantry being sent to Hughes at Iloilo, who reports Pany, Negros and adjacent islands quiet. Arriving troops and supplies being unloaded through service Manila and Dagupan railway, two trains daily. All ports northern Luzon open January 1. OTIS."

Manila, Dec. 26. — Gen. Young has been appointed military governor of the province of northwestern Luzon, with headquarters at Vigan. His command includes the Thirty-third infantry, under Cal. Luther R. Hare, and the Third cavalry. He will establish permanent stations at San Fernando and Laoag, with outposts wherever needed. The Sixteenth infantry will proceed to Apparri, garrisoning such towns as may be deemed necessary in the provinces of Cagayan, Isabella and Nuevo Vizcaya, of which Col. Hood has been appointed military governor. Gen. Young and Col. Hood are establishing civil municipal governments, and the ports in northern Luzon will be opened for trade about January 1.

BOSTON BANK FAILS.

Globe National Is Ordered Closed and a Receiver Is Appointed—Action Causes Surprise.

Boston, Dec. 22.—Comptroller of the Currency Dawes Thursday evening ordered the closing of the Globe national bank of this city. This action was taken on the representations made to the comptroller by Special Bank Examiner Wing, who a few days ago was made temporary receiver of the Broadway national bank and who is now appointed temporary receiver of the Globe national. The news has taken this city by surprise. While the bank was known to have been in distress ten days ago, presumably over the decline in copper specialties, chiefly United States Mining company, it was thought the crisis had passed.

The downfall of the bank is attributed to the heavy shrinkage in the price of coppers and the Equire failure.

In the opinion of conservative people the bank will not pay more than 50 per cent. to its depositors, but to do this the stockholders will lose every dollar of their capital, surplus, and undivided profits, and it is not improbable that the stockholders may be assessed.

A Quiet Christmas.

Washington, Dec. 26. — Christmas day, always quiet at the nation's capitol, was unusually so this year. All of the executive departments were closed, and practically all the members of both branches of congress are out of the city. Services were held in many churches, and, as the dinner hour approached, the streets were deserted. At the white house a quiet day was spent. About ten o'clock the president took a walk alone through the grounds at the south of the mansion, and then joined Mrs. McKinley in the family living rooms. There were no callers and no guests. Neither attended church, and at the usual hour they dined alone.

Killed Himself.

Washington, Dec. 22.—James Duane Taylor, one of the important officers in New York city of the Wagner Palace Car company and a son-in-law of the founder of the company, committed suicide Thursday shortly after noon at the Grafton hotel in this city by cutting his throat with a razor. Mr. Taylor was suffering from some nervous affection caused by illness, and the fatal act was committed apparently on the impulse of the moment. Death was almost instantaneous. The suicide was 63 years of age.

Charitable Work of Salvation Army.

New York, Dec. 26.—The Salvation Army furnished Christmas dinners to almost 25,000 persons Monday. They made the great Madison Square garden their headquarters for the day, and from here in the morning they gave away over 3,000 large baskets of food, each containing enough for a family of five persons. In the evening they took care of over 5,000 people of the poor class and feasted them to an excellent turkey dinner and provided entertainment for them while they ate.

Mrs. Sanderson Acquitted.

Marshall, Mich., Dec. 23.—The case of Mrs. Sanderson, charged with attempting to murder her aged husband by feeding him ground glass in his oatmeal, went to the jury Friday evening. Mrs. Sanderson's trial has been in progress for the past two weeks.

Just at the stroke of 12 the jury entered the courtroom and returned a verdict of not guilty.

Four More Bodies Found.

Brownsville, Pa., Dec. 26.—Work at the Braznell mine is progressing slowly. Four more bodies have been recovered, but not identified. The mine officials admit that two or more bodies are still in the mine, but representatives of the Slavonic society have made a house-to-house canvass and report that eight of their number alone are in the wreck.

THE WALL STREET FLURRY.

Dun's View as to Its Cause—Bradstreet's Presentation of the Trade Situation.

New York, Dec. 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The worst day in Wall street for years was in part the legitimate result of the best year in business ever known. Because the country had prospered so greatly and had so expanded its business, it could no longer afford to have many millions locked up in carrying stocks representing imaginary values. The question was not one of monetary supply. When the country found ample use for its capital in regular trade and productive industry, a contraction of loans became necessary which would only have been more painful if the volume of stocks carried had been larger. Reckoning from the highest general average last spring, industrial stocks had fallen at the close on Monday 22.27 per cent.; street railroad stocks 38.90 per cent., and other railroad and telegraph stocks only 6.70 per cent.

"The business of the country close to the holidays is necessarily smaller than it has been, and yet larger than at the same date in any other year. Exchanges through principal clearing houses for the week have been 33.7 per cent. larger than last year, and 50.4 per cent. larger than in 1892, including 22.1 per cent. gain in payments outside New York. There is not even a suspicion of unsoundness in any considerable branch of industry or trade, the extraordinary expansion in some being as well warranted as the material gain in others.

"Failures for the week have been 220 in the United States, against 258 last year, and 26 in Canada, against 31 last year.

Bradstreet's says: "Holiday trade activity, of course, reaches its highest development during the week now drawing to a close, and it is significant of the prosperous conditions underlying the general business situation that reports almost without exception point to a volume of business having few, if any, parallels in previous years. Another significant feature developed also is that the demand for such goods embraces a higher class and a more expensive grade of materials, a conclusion among trade reporters being that a larger buying capacity exists now than in any previous year in the country's history.

"Wholesale trade at this season usually shows a quieting tendency, but it is questionable whether this tendency is as marked this year as in former periods. To the advanced stage of the season chiefly, and perhaps also to the sentimental effect growing out of stringent money conditions in speculative lines may be charged some of the quietness noted. As above intimated, however, this is less marked than in preceding years.

"Just how much influence upon current bank clearings has been exercised by money market developments, and what effect anticipations of interest payments on January 1, estimated to aggregate $100,000,000, have had upon bank clearings it would be hard to state accurately."

GREAT BANK PLANNED.

Three New York Institutions, It Is Said, Will Consolidate—Secretary Gage to Be at the Head.

New York, Dec. 26.—The New York Journal prints the following: A great financial institution, to be known as the National bank of the United States or the United States National bank, is forming. The bank is to be the result of the consolidation of the National City bank and the Hanover national bank of New York, both controlled by the Rockefeller money trust, and a smaller local concern. This consolidated institution is to be, according to present plans, the central money power of the United States, just as the Bank of England, the Bank of France, and the Imperial Bank of Berlin are in their respective countries. Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage, after his retirement from the cabinet, is to become the head of the bank. Talks with officials of the institutions cast doubt upon the report.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Over Forty School Children Playing on the Ice Are Drowned in Belgium.

Brussels, Dec. 23.—Upwards of 40 school children were drowned Friday in an ice accident at Frelinghem, near the French frontier. The children of the district had been given a holiday with permission to play on the frozen river Lys. When the merriment was at full height the ice broke suddenly and the children disappeared. A few were rescued half dead, but the majority were drowned. Thirty-six bodies have been recovered, but others are still missing. The catastrophe spread consternation throughout the town, where nearly every family suffered loss.

Sol Smith Russell to Retire.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Sol Smith Russell will retire from the stage for a year or more at the conclusion of his interrupted engagement at the Grand Opera house. He has already recovered sufficiently from the attack that compelled him to discontinue his performance last Monday evening, and there is no doubt he will be able to resume next Monday afternoon, as previously announced; but he will not tax his weakened constitution beyond what will be necessary to fulfill his contract at the Grand opera house for the next two weeks. All his engagements thereafter for the entire season will be canceled.

Financial Affairs in Boston.

Boston, Dec. 23.—Another day of unrest in Boston's financial circles went by without incidents of a startling nature. The receivership for the Globe national bank took nearly every banker and broker by surprise, and before business in the money market began forebodings were dire. But prophesying and fears were not realized, for the situation Friday night was conservatively considered as good, if not slightly better, than at any time for a fortnight. Not a failure was announced when the stock exchange was closed, and money seemed easy.

Cuban Cabinet Resigns.

Havana, Dec. 22.—Maj. Gen. Wood, governor of Cuba, has accepted the resignation of the members of the insular cabinet, on the understanding that they were offered in earnest. The members will remain in charge of their offices, however, until their successors have been named, which will probably be by January 1. The cabinet organized by Gen. Brooke has been the subject of much criticism by the Cubans and Americans, and a new set of members is expected to straighten out many tangles.

Death of a Famous Scout.

Washington, Dec. 26.—Bushrod Underwood, who achieved fame as a scout in the army of Northern Virginia, died here Monday, aged 56 years. Many deeds requiring great coolness and courage were credited to him by Gen. R. E. Lee and Col. John O. Mosby, of the Forty-third Virginia cavalry, to which command he belonged.

JACKSON DAY

POLITICAL FEAST TIME, FOR MINNESOTA OBSERVANCE.

The Minneapolis Banquet to Have a Grand Mass Meeting Accompaniment. Mr. Bryan's Attendance Assured for Both Banquet and Exposition—Party Committeemen and Reform Press Publishers Also to Gather—Virtual Inauguration of the State Democratic Campaign on Jan. 10—The National Committee Will Meet on Washington's Birthday—St. Paul's Carnival for February—Resume of State and National Politics for the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Dec. 25, 1899.

Christmas greeting of the Anglo-American alliance:

"Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men,"
—except those of brown skins in Luzon, and those of Dutch extraction who have builded republics in South Africa!

Preparations for the great annual political refreshing period of Jackson's Day are in progress at Minneapolis by united Democrats and Allies, and Jan. 10, 1900, bids fair to be set down as a reference date when was held one of the greatest of the political demonstrations. The occasion may be thus summarized. Jackson's Day proper, anniversary of the victory over Great Britain at New Orleans, falling on Jan. 8, our observance is made the 10th to accommodate Mr. Bryan, who speaks elsewhere on the 8th. The banquet feature is to have the addition of an Exposition mass meeting, both arranged so that the banqueters can enjoy both. For both general invitations are extended to all members of the new Democracy, and to its Allies, and the Reform Press of the state are especially invited, and are to be the guests of the banquet management. But no personal invitations will be issued, beyond those on the programme for speeches. Banquet tickets cost $1.50 each, and are obtainable of William Baldwin, Esq., West Hotel, but the members of the Reform Press will receive tickets from George S. Canfield, secretary of the Reform Press association, through whom the invitation to editors is extended.

Chairman L. A. Rosing of the Democratic state central committee has called the committee to meet on that day, and also called all county chairmen to be present. The attendance is also requested of all party workers and friends of the cause.

The members of the Peoples party committees are also invited.

Headquarters for all meetings of the occasion and for the Reform Press will be the West hotel.

And, for gatherings, the Twin Cities are to be strictly in it this winter. Following the Minneapolis political affairs, St. Paul will have her carnival programme on, set for Feb. 3 to 12. The more the merrier.

The Democratic National committee has been called to meet at Washington on Feb. 22, Washington's birthday, a most fitting day, to decide on the time and place of the Democratic convention. The outlook is that Chicago will be the place, and the time immediately following the Republican convention. A Chicago convention would best reaffirm the Chicago platform and shape the issues for victory. The desertion of the West and Northwest by the Republicans in going to Philadelphia, will go a long ways toward giving us the state of Illinois. And appropriately, too, since the principles of Lincoln are so prominent on the Democratic and Reform banners of 1900.

Lawton, Logan, Diggles, and the long list of brave soldiers who have fallen in the Philippines—and in what a cause!

The cause is so bad, that in all the utterances from officials upon Lawton's death, from McKinley down, not one could make a reference to the principles for which he gave up his noble life. Whenever before was it not possible to refer to our fallen soldiers, as having given their lives for liberty and human freedom?

Hanna's call is out for the G. O. P. convention for June 19 at Philadelphia. The proposition to reduce southern representation was shelved by Mr. McKinley, on account of the large colored vote in Ohio and Indiana.

Imperialism, as shown in the Philippines, and English infamy as shown in the South African war, are twin bedfellows, and deserve, as they will receive, the condemnation of the liberty loving people of the United States.

Judge Collins takes his Hanna-Merriam medicine with many a grimace and squirm, but there are a great host of state Republicans who won't have it!

We have a letter from Captain Patrick O'Farrell, Washington, the brave Irish soldier of the Union, the only blemish on whom, and he admits it, is the fact that he stumped five states for McKinley, in 1896, in which he says:

"I have no doubt of our ability to defeat McKinley in the presidential election. We must have faith in the consciences of the common people of America. McKinley, Pauncefote and Chamberlain, cannot fool all the people all the time. McKinley could not play the part of a Tory any better if he had a seat in Salisbury's cabinet."

Rev. Riley's prayer is still troubling the goppites. What do the said goppites know about prayers anyhow? They are themselves past praying for.

Before departing for South Africa, General Reberts, the new commander-in-chief, issued an address thanking the American people "for their interest and sympathy in the British cause."

My Lord Roberts is misinformed. He and his cause have not the "interest and sympathy of the American people," only the interest and sympathy of the present administration of the American people. Not one true American but sympathizes with the Boers, and not ten people in a hundred, take them as you find them, are with England.

Hurrah for the Boers, Lord General Roberts!

And Canada, too, sympathizes with the liberty fighters, so much so that a serious schism is said to be on foot in the Canadian government, and a rising tide of opposition to sending any more troops to South Africa. Glad to know it.

In London concert halls the taking thing is the waving of the American and English flags, while singing "God save the Queen," in recognition of the jobs in which both countries are engaged, of killing out the spirit of liberty.

True to their colors, the leaders of the Silver Republican organization, Towne, Teller, Pettigrew, Cannon, Wilson, Hartman, Shafroth and Du Bois, embracing those who departed from the St. Louis convention, are out in an address denouncing the Republican party for its open espousal of gold and the surrender to the banking monopoly in the financial bill. Events have justified, the address shows, every position taken by the silver men. The dangers they forecast have been realized. The hypocrisy of international bimetallism is fully shown, and all the wickedness of the pending bill exposed, which would destroy the greenbacks, perpetrate a national gold debt, and erect a great money trust more powerful than all the rest, which are even now overshadowing the republic. The address thus concludes:

"Thus, fellow citizens, the scheme we denounced in 1896 is nearing consummation. The policy that was denied by the Republican party in that campaign stands now confessed. Millions of you who voted the Republican ticket in 1896 would not have done so had you believed your party was destined so soon to be the agent of the forces that now dominate it. Millions of you were bimetallists in 1896 and remain so today. Now that the promises then made you are clearly seen to have been insincere; now that, as a consequence of the deception practices upon your honest confidence, your country is about to be handed to the owner hip and control of the great speculative banks and their associated trusts and combinations; may we not appeal to you to come to the rescue of the liberties of the people and the imperiled institutions? In the spring of 1897 the undersigned took the steps leading to the organization of the Silver Republican party. Against the betrayers of the Republicanism of Abraham Lincoln that party resolved to wage unending war. Today the necessity for its work is more evident than ever. Come with us and help us. We believe that the highest devotion to the Republicanism you once venerated demands that you oppose to the uttermost the present tendencies of the party which still wears the name, but has forsaken the principles of its heroic days."

Was it the glowing prospect of Democratic success in the presidential campaign in 1900, or was it the passage of the gold standard bill by the Republican congress which shook the confidence of the investing public to such an extent as to cause the panic in Wall street?

Twin City bankers, discussing the panic, "gave the whole snap away," as when President Raymond of the Minneapolis Northwestern said that the trouble was largely due to the South African war, for, said he:

"The financial interests of the United States are so closely allied with the English that whatever affects the markets on one side inevitably affects those on the other."

And also Banker Foss of the Nicollet National, admitting the same thing, that—

"Now comes the heavy demand from Europe for money. London money has been tightening and keeping gold at home, and now they are coming over here and paying a premium for ours."

Thus the British financial system which we follow, and its gold standard, are at the bottom of it. And our lower house of congress rushes through the gold bill, and the bill placing full control in the banks, and the senate fixes an early date for consummating the iniquity—all by the Republican party, at command of the gold power!

Secretary Gouge remarks, in apology for forcing the gold standard legislation, that many of our citizens, "have long had the desire for restoration of the double standard." Right you are, Mr. Gouge, and they still have the same desire, and now know how to realize on it.

Well put and timely were the remarks of Hon. S. M. Owen, E. S. Corser and Senator S. A. Stockwell, in connection with the bankers' interviews. If, said Mr. Owen, this condition follows the greatest gold production the world has ever seen, from the mere stoppage of $70,000,000 of South African gold, what disasters may we not have expected from continued loss of one-half of our primary money (silver) during that time? The reduction of gold, large as it is, cannot keep pace with our increasing activities. The world's distressing conditions would not exist if silver were supplementing the world's trade as basic money, says Mr. Owen. The struggle for gold is the primary cause of the troubles and conditions.

Mr. Corser added the point that our supposed improved conditions are largely overestimated, and that not only will the further fixing of the gold standard upon us be injurious, but the proposed surrender of government sovereignty over its money to the banks will make financial panics certain of occurrence, and unspeakably hurtful.

Mr. Stockwell gave as the cause of the panic, the combinations built up under laws for special privileges conferred on private individuals and corporations which control the financial world. The completion of these monopolies and powers for evil is secured in the Republican financial bill which, establishing the gold standard, surrenders the issue of paper money to such banking monopoly.

"Cats," said the gaunt man with the grizzled whiskers, "can comprehend human speech."

"Well?"

"The cat got up, swore vehemently, walked out and hasn't been seen since."—Indianapolis Journals.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Farmers Are Interested.

The farmers' institute just brought to a close, at Fergus Falls, has aroused a good deal of interest in a number of farming operations which are now being successfully carried on in many places, but have never yet been tried here. Perhaps the most important of these is the plan of raising wheat and flax together. Representative Bush, of Olmsted county, who was one of the instructors at the institute, dwelt at great length on this plan, which, he says, is proving very profitable in the southern part of the state. The plan of sowing flax with the wheat was first adopted in order to keep the cinch bugs out of the latter grain. This proved effective and it was soon discovered that the plan had numerous other advantages. It was found that it had a tendency to keep the wheat from lodging and that both grains were improved by being grown together. Mr. Bush recommends that two parts of wheat to one of flax be sown. This plan will produce a crop of about 45 per cent of flax of superior quality. The two grains are harvested and threshed together and then easily separated by a flax cleaning machine. A great many farmers here contemplate trying the new plan next summer.

Cycle Paths All Right.

In a decision handed down by Judge Canty it is held that the commissioners of Henepin county have not only the right to segregate a part of a highway and improve it as a cycle path, but they have a right to protect it from use by those other than cyclists.

The court, in a test case brought in the district court of Hennepin county, decides that the party against whom the charge of violating the ordinance, which prohibits the driving of teams across the path, can be properly prosecuted, as the law is constitutional, but in the particular case at issue there was a flaw in the indictment. The court therefore grants a new trial.

The case is of interest to wheelmen generally as it involves the question of the board's right to set aside part of a highway for cyclists, and decides that as it has that power the ordinance which protects the path from trespassers, is valid.

Carnival at the Capital.

The St. Paul carnival will be held during the first and second weeks in February, the directors of the association having decided that the dates should be Feb. 3 to 10, both inclusive. This will make the opening date Saturday, and bring the close on a week from the following Monday.

Incidental to the fixing of the date it was also practically arranged yesterday that the annual meeting of the Farmers' Alliance Association will take place during carnival week, and the championship meeting of the National Amateur Skating Association will also be held.

Last year the state grain growers' convention was held in St. Paul, and arrangements were made for the national convention to be held there the coming year. J. C. Hanley, secretary of the grain growers, who is also secretary of the National Farmers' Alliance, yesterday notified the secretary that if the carnival association would announce the carnival date he would arrange his dates in accordance.

Two Men Shot.

The Palace saloon, in Moorhead, was robbed and the burglary was traced to two men who were located in a cheap lodging-house in Fargo. Chief Murphy, with two Moorhead citizens, went across and without consulting the local police, arrested the suspects and started over the bridge into Minnesota.

One man, known as Collins, who was in personal charge of the chief, resisted on the bridge and refused to go further. Pulling a gun he shot Murphy through the abdomen.

After firing he started to run, but was tripped by W. T. Larrabee. In the fall Collins lost possession of the revolver, which Chief Murphy caught up and fired a shot into the burglar's head as he lay on the sidewalk. Both men were taken to Dr. Larrow's hospital in Moorhead.

Murphy's injuries are said to be of a very serious nature, as it is thought several intestines were cut by the bullet.

Souvenirs for President McKinley.

President McKinley and members of his cabinet will receive as a New Year's gift from Minneapolis beautiful souveneirs of the home coming of the 13th regiment. At the time President McKinley was here he expressed admiration for the many and beautiful souveneirs that he saw. J. F. Calderwood and members of the committee have secured the different badges, and these are being gotten together in unique book form. The front cover of the book will bear the inscription "Welcome Home of the Thirteenth Minnesota Infantry of Volunteers, Oct. 12th, 1899." Miss Pauline Kruger is carrying out the ideas of the committee.

News in Brief.

Contractors working on the piers for the new Wabasha street bridge, St. Paul, are disturbed over the slight rise in the river, an unusual thing in December.

W. S. Tuttle has received the appointment of engineer for the Hastings asylum.

Several drug store employes at Fertile have been indicted for selling liquor illegally.

The proposition to bond the town of Slayton for $20,000 for electric lights and waterworks was defeated fully two to one.

The streets and business houses of New Richland are lighted by electricity.

The improvements at Preston for the year foot up $32,000.

According to eastern advices, Minneapolis is the only city in the United States where the insurance men will end the year with a good profit.

The Master Barbers' Association of St. Paul has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state.

Henry Underdahl, who runs a temperance saloon at Kenyon, was convicted of selling intoxicating liquor without a license.

A NEW DANGER.

Sickness Among British Cavalry Horses in South Africa—Rumor of a Raid on Canada.

London, Dec. 26.—Nothing has arrived from South Africa that would indicate any change in the military situation there. The war office is issuing lists of further deaths and wounded, as well as accounts of sickness. The most serious report of the last class is that horse sickness has broken out in both British and Boer camps in Natal. Four hundred British cavalry horses, it is said, have already been shot, owing to the occurrence of glanders. The disease is likely to spread with much greater rapidity among the British horses than among the hardy Boer ponies, and this may mean a considerable prolongation of the campaign.

Horse sickness in South Africa generally appears during the latter part of January, and lasts three months. The present outbreak is unusually early.

A dispatch from Chieveley, dated Tuesday, December 19, says: The British naval guns have destroyed the Colenso foot bridge, thus preventing the Boers holding any position south of the Tugela river. The enemy are taking up fresh positions on the eastern side, nearer the British camp. The British position at Frere is being strengthened. The Tugela river is rising and there is a prospect of heavy rains. A two-hour bombardment of Ladysmith has been heard from here. According to reliable native reports the Boers had 200 killed in the fight at Colenso.

Washington, Dec. 26.—Officials here are deeply interested in the report that Holland and Irish societies are planning a raid on Canada broadly similar to that attempted by the Fenians in 1865-6. The administration will make diligent effort to maintain the neutral position which international law demands under the circumstances. The British embassy, it is understood, has within 24 hours called the attention of the state department to the pro-Boer feeling in the United States, with the suggestion that this government exercise the utmost caution in preventing the sailing of filibustering expeditions to South Africa. The state department replied that it would do its best to preserve the law of neutrality.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE.

Causes Much Damage to Property in Southern California — Six Indians Killed.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 26.—Southern California experienced the worst earthquake in recent years at 4:26 Monday morning. The shock was felt throughout the southern third part of the state, with indications that it was central in the desert east of Los Angeles. The most serious damage was done at San Jacinto, a town of 2,000 persons near the mountains separating the populated section from the desert. Reports from San Jacinto are to the effect that six Indians were killed by falling buildings, and that of the business portion of the town not a business block escaped serious injury, most of the buildings being completely wrecked.

At Hemet, three miles from San Jacinto, several brick buildings were thrown to the ground, and it is reported that at least one person suffered injury. The buildings which were most injured were a flouring mill and Johnson's brick block. Through all the towns in San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange, Los Angeles and San Diego counties the people were roused from their sleep, and even old Californians in hundreds of cases ran from their houses, though no town except the two mentioned has reported any loss of life or any great destruction of property.

A tidal wave was caused at San Diego. Clocks were stopped at Ventura. People rushed from their houses in fright at Santa Ana. Windows were broken at Needles. There are two or three towns in the vicinity of San Jacinto which have not been heard from and which cannot be reached. It is certain that the shock must have been severe at those points, but no damage may have resulted.

Coal for Italy.

Philadelphia, Dec. 26.—The Italian steamship Venus, Capt. Trapani, has arrived from Ancona in ballast to load upward of 8,000 tons of coal for Genoa. This will be the third shipment of this kind within the period of a month. It is stated that 50,000 tons of coal will be shipped from here to Italy for use on the railroads. American coal is also being exported to French Mediterranean points, and the British steamship Inca will soon begin loading 4,000 tons at Newport News for Marseilles.

Icehouse Burned.

Grand Haven, Mich., Dec. 25.—The mammoth icehouse of the Spring Lake Ice company, located on Spring lake, two miles northeast of this city, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning, entailing a loss of upwards of $100,000. It was built one year ago by Chicago capitalists, headed by Barry Bros., of the Chicago Independent tug line. About 70,000 tons of ice of last year's cut still remained in the building. It is believed to be fully insured.

Convicted of a Son's Murder.

Frankfort, Mich., Dec. 25. — Mrs. Mate Askins was found guilty of murder in the first degree and was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment. She killed her son Glenn, aged eight, with morphine at Thompsonville, and tried to destroy her own life and that of her daughter. She said she expected the above verdict.

A Christmas Tragedy.

Clonton, Ill., Dec. 26.—At three o'clock Monday afternoon a murder was committed at Weldon, 10 miles southeast of here. Harry Summers, Jr., of Weldon, a carpenter, and "Doc" Marcum, a farmhand near Deland, in Piatt county, engaged in a quarrel in a poker room, when Marcum shot and killed Summers.

The Indians Win.

San Francisco, Dec. 26. — The Carlisle Indians and the University of California football teams met here Monday in the presence of 10,000 people. When the game ended the score was 2 to 0 in favor of the red men.

HER ASPIRATIONS.

A Kansas Girl Who Took a Practical View of Educational Advantages.

There was little of the idealistic about the essay of a Kansas girl at her recent graduation. Her teacher had given her for a theme the phrase: "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy." She astonished her preceptress and schoolmates by these emphatic words:

"I do not care a cent whether Italy lies beyond the Alps or even in Missouri. I do not expect to set the river on fire with my future career. I am glad I have a good, very good education, but I am not going to misuse it by writing poetry or essays about the future woman. It will enable me to correct the grammar of any lover I may have, should he speak of 'dorgs' in my presence, or say he went somewhere. It will also come handy when I want to figure out how many pounds of soap a woman can get for three dozen eggs at the grocery. So I do not begrudge the time I have spent in acquiring it. But my ambitions do not fly so high. I just want to marry a man who can lick anybody of his weight in the township, who can run an 80-acre farm and who has no female relatives to come around and try to boss the ranch. And I will agree to cook good dinners for him that won't send him to an early grave and lavish upon him a whole lot of wholesome affection and see that his razor hasn't been used to cut broom wire when he wants to shave. In view of all this I don't care if I do get a little rusty on the rule of three and kindred things as the years go by."—Chicago Chronicle.

HE WASN'T SUPERSTITIOUS.

And Yet He Was Bound He Wouldn't Travel Without His Lucky Coin.

Just as he was starting on a short business journey his wife called him aside. "William," she said, earnestly, "don't think of going to-day. Put it off till to-morrow or next week. Something awful will happen if you disregard my advice, and I know it." "What's the matter with you? Been having dreams or consulting one of these second-sight frauds?" "No, dear, but this is Friday, and it is simply inviting trouble to make a start on Friday." "Oh, pshaw! Will you never get over such foolishness? What's the day got to do with it? Honest, it makes me tired—this everlasting superstition and belief in signs. If I paid attention to all such things we'd starve, for I'd have no time to do business. Put all of them out of your head, little one. I've had just as good luck on Friday as on any other day, and the only serious accident I ever had was on Monday. I can't disarrange all my plans just to humor a whim. I'll come back as safe and sound as I leave. Good-by." He went, and she sat in the bay window looking just as disconsolate as though her worst fears had been realized. At the end of 20 minutes she saw her husband hurrying toward the house, carrying his hat in his hand and mopping his forehead. She ran to the door, pale with apprehension. "What is it, William? Tell me, quick. I can bear anything as long as you are all right." "Where's that old blue vest? That lucky dime of mine is in one of the pockets. I'd stay at home before I'd go without it."—Troy Times.

Prosperity for 1900.

Indications everywhere point to great prosperity for the coming year. This is an invariable sign of a healthy nature. The success of a country, as well as the success of an individual, depends upon health. There can be no health if the stomach is weak. If you have any stomach trouble try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which cures dyspepsia, indigestion and biliousness. It makes strong, vigorous men and women.

Woman in Finance.

A Detroit man, whose wife was coming to San Francisco on a visit, accompanied her as far as Chicago and put her on the overland train. Before leaving her he gave the porter half of a five dollar bill that he had torn in two, telling the man that his wife had the other half and would give it to him at the end of the journey if she were properly looked after. When he got home he found he had neglected to give his wife the other half of the torn bill, and a few days later he received a letter from his wife reminding him of the fact, and saying she had torn a dollar bill in two and given half of it to the porter. Somewhere along the line there must be a wild-eyed darky with the halves of two worthless bills in his possession and a firm conviction that he has been worked by some sort of a new flimflam game. Meanwhile, the Detroit man is anxious to find out what sort of reasoning his wife used when she gave that porter a half instead of the whole of that one dollar bill.—San Francisco Argonaut.

An Extinguisher.

Thump, thump! Rattle, rattle, crash!

Young Percy Stonebroke rolled down the steps of the palatial residence of Mr. Goldbands.

Mr. Goldbonds returned to the house, rolling down his sleeves.

"Papa, O, papa, what have you been doing?"

This question came in anguished tones from the ruby lips of Arabella Goldbonds.

"Putting out the light of your life," answered papa, who had done a little eavesdropping in the hall the night before.—Baltimore American.

They Are Finer Than Ever.

House-cleaning, in most homes, comes but once a year—in the spring—but it comes twice a year for the North-Western Limited Trains. Twice a year both these famous trains are run into the shops for thorough overhauling and cleaning, and such a cleaning as they receive. Every bit of woodwork, nickel and brass is rubbed and polished, all the mattresses and springs are made over, the upholstering is done over, new paint and varnish, and many skilled mechanics finally turn out two brand new trains. In fact, the daily cleaning these trains receive in Minneapolis and Chicago is much more thorough than the most tidy housewife gives her home.

These two famous trains of the North-Western Line have just received their annual house-cleaning and are fresher, brighter and finer than they ever were. They run every night between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago—one going, one coming—and still are worthy the common and well deserved opinion that they are the most comfortable, elegant and easy riding trains in the world.

return this coupon and three one-cent stamps to the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass., you will receive in return a copy of the 20th Century Year Book.

This is not an ordinary almanac, but a handsome book, copiously illustrated, and sold for 5 cents on all news-stands. (We simply allow you the two cents you spend in postage for sending.)

Great men have written for the Year Book. In it is summed up the progress of the 19th Century. In each important line of work and thought the greatest living specialist has recounted the events and advances of the past century and has prophesied what we may expect of the next.

Among the most noted of our contributors are: Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, on Agriculture; Senator Chauncey M. Depew, on Politics; Russell Sage, on Finance; Thomas Edison, on Electricity; Dr. Madison Peters, on Religion; General Merritt, on Land Warfare; Admiral Hichborn, on Naval Warfare; "Al" Smith, on Sports, etc.; making a complete review of the whole field of human endeavor and progress.

Each article is beautifully and appropriately illustrated, and the whole makes an invaluable book of reference, unequaled anywhere for the money.

The Farmer Scored.

A farmer drifted into a hardware store at Mulhall and was asked by the manager: "Don't you want to buy a bicycle to ride around your farm on? They're cheap now. Can give you one for $35."

"I'd sooner put the $35 into a cow," said the farmer.

"But think," said the manager, "how foolish you would look riding around town on a cow."

"Oh, I don't know," said the farmer; "no more foolish, perhaps, than I would milking a bicycle."—Kansas City Journal.

Unable to Pronounce It.

The neighbors of a certain well-known Memphis Irish family say that the good housewife and her lord never know what domestic discord is except when the old man goes home slightly in his cups. Then there is trouble, and plenty of it, for the old lady is fire and tow and she says she has consistently tried for a score of years to get "Moike to quit it." The storms, according to the story, have grown less violent of late years, and for that matter the tipsy periods of "Moike" are not of such frequent recurrence as formerly. Not long ago, so the story goes, the old man went home pretty well tanked, and his wife met him.

"Yis," she said, "ye're a-comin' home agin, an' t-that dhrunk. My, my, O, my, Moike, an' why is it yez won't call fur sarsaparilla whin ye git enuf?"

"Bekase," replied Mike, "whin Oi gits enuf Oi can't say 'sar-saa-as-april-la,' an' now yez hav it."—Memphis Scimitar.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Dec. 29, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Saturday, January 6, will be the first Delano Fair Day for 1900.

—C. M. Conzet is to have an Auction on next Fair Day, Jan. 6, 99. See what he offers on Posters.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thirsday and Friday.-11tf.

—Don't miss hearing Dr. Forbes lecture at the City Hall, Saturday night at 8 o'clock. He is called a first class lecturer.

—John Dahlgren thinks it bad enough to be kicked by a horse, but when it comes to being kicked by a dead horse it is awful.

—The Epworth League basket sociable at the I. O. O. F. hall was a success. All the baskets were sold, and a good time had in general.

—We are in receipt of a neat calendar from Swedeback Bros., of Bermidji. They evidently believe in advertising, and we are glad to hear they are doing well.

—The members of the St. Cecilia club will give a complimentary recital to their friends and those interested in their work, in the City Hall, on Tuesday evening Jan. 2.

—Don't make a mistake by missing "Mistakes of the Devil and Some Other People" at the City Hall, Saturday evening. This is said to be Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes' best lecture.

—Invitations are issued for the wedding of Charles T. McDonald to Miss Allie Murphy. The ceremony will occur at Delano, the bride's home, on Jan. 1st.—Annandale Advocate-Post.

—If Delano business men would get together as they do in other villages and talk over business matters occasionally it would, doubtless, result in good to themselves and to their customers.

—The League of Democratic clubs of Minnesota will observe Jackson day in a befitting manner, in Minneapolis on the 10th of January. W. J. Bryan and others will speak. Banquet in the evening. Plates $1.50.

--The Methodists in Delano expect to burn their mortgages on the last night of this year, and begin 1900 without debt, if it is a possible thing to do so. Present indications are that they will succeed in their efforts.

--James C. Dunn lost a fine team horse Friday evening. This is the third horse to die on Jim's hands lately, and it seems to be no fault of his, either. Three horses is quite a loss for an ordinary farmer now.

—The Cosmopolitan is one of the best and cheapest magazines published in the United States today. One dollar and eighty cents paid in advance will secure you the GAZETTE and the Cosmopolitan for one year.

--Call in and tell Frank Roban that you read in the GAZETTE that he had learned of W. S. Butler, of Chetek, Wis., how to manufacture choice candies, and sample for yourself. We have tried them, and call them fine.

—Next Monday begins the year 1900. For a whole year we will write 1900, then closes the year and the century. When 1900 full years have gone we will begin on the 1st year of the next century and will have to write 1901.

—The Review of Reviews is one of the leading periodicals of America today. We can furnish free to any of our readers who have not been on their subscription list for a year past, a certificate entitling them to three months trial of the Review of Reviews for 25 cents.

—Christmas was a fine clear day; no snow, but the weather slightly chilly. Several trees were arranged in the different churches and other places; many at private houses. The exercises at the M. E. church were well carried out and enjoyed by the little folks and their friends.

—People who have money they don't know what to do with can buy a money order made payable to themselves at the post office of issue, and pay the regular fees, and draw the money when they see fit. The Duluth Herald says quite an amount is on deposit in the Duluth post office, on that plan. No interest is paid, but regular fees are charged. It ought to be a safe place for money.

—It has been suggested by some of the lot owners of the Delano cemetery that a nice little wind mill and tank wouldn't cost much and would go a long ways towards beautifying the grounds by furnishing abundance of water for watering purposes, ensuring a nice growth of grass and flowers. The Swede burying ground adjoins the Delano cemetery and possibly the lot owners of that would join with the others in erecting a watering plant.

—John Peterson, of Independence, says he improved the stock of horses in his town by shooting one. A few days ago his nephew Peter and he were journeying along the road when a horse trader accosted them and tried to sell a horse. Failing he hastened up to Peters and told his wife that Peter had purchased the animal for $2.50. Mrs. P. didn't like to pay for the animal, so John said it was all right and before Peter arrived the man had got his money, left the horse and gone on his way. John had to make good the price and relieve the neighborhood of the animal.

--Our Rockford correspondent gets up a good lot of news, and our readers enjoy it.

—A grand choir is being drilled to sing at the coming conflagration Sunday night.

—Mr. Bullen is closing out his lumber business here to a Mr. Kerrick, of Minneapolis.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Delano Cemetery Association will be held on Monday evening, Jan. 8.

—G. F. Herman is occupying his new Second street residence. When he has finished it up he will have one of the neatest homes in town.

—Prosperity seems to have struck one of Delano's corner saloons. Three proprietors have tried it and the fourth is anxiously looked for. The Janikula building is also to have a new tenant.

—L. M. Maxfield is constructing a calendar to prove that Monday Jan. 1, 1900, begins the 20th century. The difficulty with it is he persists in calling the first year, the year 0, and having 101 years in the first century. Neither will work.

—On Christmas day all those who wished to see a real game of foot ball, and were able to withstand the boreal blasts of that rather chilly afternoon, went out to Cramer's field on North River street and saw the game between the alumni and high school teams Neither team was made up entirely of alumni or high school boys, but the names were not entirely mis appropriate either. The alumni team had considerable advantage as to weight and experience in the game but the high school boys were gritty and soon learned to go through the alumni lines and break up their plays.

The game was called at about three o'clock with Edward Freeman as referee and Dr. Shrader as time keeper. The high school took the North goal and the alumni kicked off. The kick was a fizzle and the ball was secured on the H. S. 50 yd line, and the two teams lined up. After about ten minutes of hard playing, the ball remaining near the center of the field, the H. S. punted to the alumni 15 yd line where the ball was downed by Mc Donald, of the alumni team; they lost the ball on three downs and the H. S. did likewise as result of fumbles. The H. S. lost ground through foul tackles and hard work by the alumni and when the half was called were within a few yards of the center of the field. The playing in this half was most all in the alumni territory.

After a few minutes rest the 2nd half was called. The playing this half was almost entirely on H. S. territory. The H. S kick off was a fizzle, the ball not going more than 10 yds. After a few minutes hard play with no gain for either side the alumni commenced to walk up the field. The alumni guards, Murphy and Kurtz, each made good gains through center and R. Wilder went around right end for 30 yds but was downed within 5 feet of the end of the field but about 10 feet to the right of the goal. The H. S. line braced up and took the ball on three downs, and then commenced a grand procession towards the alumni goal. After a couple gains around right end and a punt the teams were in the center of the field when time was called with neither side victorious.

The teams were made up as follows: Alumni. Kurtz, Murphy, Catlin A. G., Wilder R., Wilder V., Lord, Cunningham, McDonald, Eppel, Bentz. H. S. Catlin J., Erwig O., Erwig M., Wilder G., Carlson, Martin, Johnson, Berneck, Weise, Wandersee, Borrill.

Notice of Hearing of Application for License to Sell Intoxicating Liquors.

VILLAGE OF DELANO, COUNTY OF WRIGHT AND STATE OF MINNESOTA, S. S.

Notice is hereby given that Martin Stralka has filed in the office of the Village Recorder, according to law, an application for a license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term of one year beginning Jan. 14, 1900 and ending Jan. 14, 1901.

The place where such business is to be transacted is designated as follows: In the front room on the first floor of his two story brick building situated on lot twenty eight (28), of block eight (8) original townsite of the village of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinance of said Village of Delano and the statutes of the State of Minnesota in such cases made and provided.

The hearing of the above application will be held in the Council Room at the City Hall, on Saturday, Jan 6, 1900, at 8 p. M.

Dated at Delano, Minn., Dec 26, 1899.

County Cullings.

We note an eleven million dollar failure in New York this week and one for a million in Boston last week. Is it possible that the storm has commenced all ready. -Wright County Times.

John C. Nugent, Jr. arrested Alfred Biskey at Bemidji last week. The charge on which the arrest was made was for stealing a bicycle. He had jumped his bail, and his bondsmen had to pay $100. Biskey plead guilty and was given a reformatory sentence.

While the combination printing company prints the official proceedings of the board of county commissioners, it is claimed, by some of them, that the unofficial proceedings of at least one of them, like the darkie's eggs "would look better scrambled".

Be on the lookout for primary elections. The first one to be held, usually is the one that presents an opportunity for you to cast a vote for a delegate to the county convention, that elects delegates to the state convention for the purpose of sending delegates to the national convention to aid in making our national platform and nominating our candidates for president and vice president. Be there sure.

If people would pay more attention to politics, and know how and when to exercise their true American privileges and discharge their duty by voting at primary elections, instead of finding fault where their own vote might have changed things we would be better governed.

The Howard Lake Herald announces that W. J. Tousley is a candinate for Sheriff. Howard feels the need of a good Sheriff.

It must be that our "wheelhorse" sheriff has concluded not to run this year, as there is more than the usual scramble by republican candidates for the nomination. If the "right man" fails to be nominated by the republicans of course John can eaisly be harnessed in later.

A. P. Ritchie would make a good sheriff and probably could get the office if he should be nominated.

Wright county is becoming noted, even among its neighbors, as a pork producing county. The Elk River Star News says: A. P. Prought hauled the largest hog ever raised in Wright county, to Minneapolis last week, it weighed 1060 pounds alive, and 860 when dressed.

People living along the line of the Soo who can get only $3 per cord for Maple Wood should drive over to the G. N. with it and get $4 per cord of people living along that line.

ROCKFORD.

Dec. 25, 1899.

Douglas post G. A. R. held a camp fire at their hall on Monday evening, Dec. 18. The ladies of the relief corps had provided a supper to which about seventy did ample justice. The relief corps always provides well. All seemed to be satisfied and happy. After supper a well arranged program was listened to by a large audience. Inspector General Hicks was present, and by songs, stories, and short witty speeches, interested and amused the audience. The Florida quartette sung several good selections, good as usual. The most interesting singing was by three little North Rockford girls, Grace Crandall and the Conklin sisters. They have good voices and have been well trained. The boys on the program made altogether too much work for the prompter. Get ready to prepare your part or keep off the stage. We do not know of anything much more annoying or uncomfortable than waiting for ten minutes at a public meeting for the person standing before the audience on the platform to collect his senses or thinking what to say next.

Prof. W. H. Hatch, superintendent of city schools at Oak Park, Illinois, is spending his Christmas vacation visiting Mrs. Hatch's family, the Floridas. Mrs. Hatch, nee Nellie Florida, is an old settler of Rockford.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Allen are spending Christmas with mother and sister in Rockford.

K. C. Bucklin and A. A. Farnham took a ride on the Soo R. R. on Saturday morning with the intention of looking over the Twin Cities.

Our merchants are kept busy, and were most of last week dealing out Christmas presents. They seemed to have a large stock on.

This year it seems that family Christmas trees and family gatherings are quite the style, not so many public meetings; but almost every family has a Christmas tree. This is an improvement and as it should be.

The Village schools held what might be called a primitive Christmas celebration on Friday afternoon, the 22nd The exercises were quite interesting and instructive. The singing, recitation and everything on the programme were first class. They had a real Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus to distribute the presents, and each pupil was made glad with something. The teachers and the janitor were not forgotten. Some of them received costly presents.

Miss O'Conner and Miss Schmith will spend their vacation in St. Paul; not so very much of a rest they said, as they shall attend the teacher's training school three or four days during the week.

Up North there is another road war on. Last Friday M. Virgine was arrested and brought before Chief Justice G. O Crandall for obstructing or plowing up a public highway. Judgment, $5 fine and costs; Wm. Swartout complainant, and the end is not yet. There is quite a jungle in that neck of the woods. Swartout, Eugene Pickert and others are in for a quarrel. It would be well if it is settled by law and nothing worse.

Boy under the ice was the startling cry on Saturday morning about nine o'clock. In two or three minutes a hundred persons, men, women, and children were on the banks of the river above the mill and at least fifty men working, cutting and breaking the ice and dragging the river bottom where it is open above the dam for ten or twenty feet. "Who is it" said the new comers. The answer was, Douglas Ames, son of D. D. Ames, about 8 years old. Two small children saw him skate down to the dam and disappear. A large crowd gathered along the banks of the river and on the bridge, watching and waiting. The two kids were questioned more closely. They said Douglas did not go into the water but went over the dam Then the search commenced below the dam for the body. The current was swift and the ice thin and only part frozen over; the work was slow and cautious. Just then a shout and cheer was heard and the boy came walking up Mechanic street with his skates over his shoulder. There was a lusty cheer, then a collapse and everybody went home much relieved He had slid over the dam on the East side near the woolen mills, gone down the river on the East side for about half a mile, and not finding any good skating had crossed over at Plumb street and come home. "All's well that ends well".

We have been very fortunate at this place about drowning during the 44 years of the life of the village, two and in many cases three generations of boys and girls have passed, and of the hundreds of boys and many girls who have learned to skate in winter and learned to swim in summer, none have met the sad fate of drowning. Within one mile of the Village, above and below many have been drowned; three at Greenwood or Rockford R. R. station and several below, but none at Rockford, although during the skating season the river is literally covered with skaters, and in summer alive with swimmers. Boys and girls learn to skate and also to swim almost as soon as they learn to walk.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LAWS GOVERNING THE COLLECTION OF VITAL STATISTICS.

DUTY OF PARENTS AND KEEPERS OF PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.—"Parents shall give notice to town clerk or health officer of the births and deaths of their children; every householder shall give like notice of every birth and death happening in the house; the oldest person next of kin shall give such notice of the death of his kindred; the keeper or other proper officer of every work house, poorhouse, reform school, jail, prison, hospital, asylum, or other public or charitable institution, shall give like notice of every birth or death happening among the persons under his charge. Whoever neglects or refuses to give such notice for the period of ten (10) days after the occurrence of a birth or death shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than five ($5) nor more than twenty-five ($25) dollars."

DUTY OF PHYSICIANS AND MIDWIVES.—"Any physician having attended a person during his last illness shall, within ten (10) days after the decease of such person, furnish, for registration, to such clerk or health officer, a certificate of the duration of the last illness, name of the deceased, his age, the disease of which the person died, and the date of his decease. Any physician or midwife having attended a case of confinement shall, within ten (10) days thereafter furnish for registration, to such clerk or health officer, a certificate of the date of birth, sex and the color of the child, with the names, dates and places of birth of the parents. If any physician or midwife neglects to make such certificate he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten ($10.00) dollars nor more than fifty ($50.00) dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than ten (10) days nor more than thirty (30) days."
